EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Bernice R. — I'm afraid I still love my husband.

Bill D. — He'll never make a decent husband.

Bernice R. — Two years ago I was going steady with a young man I had known from childhood. We were planning to marry.

Then I met an older man who had been divorced twice. He swept me off my feet and we married within a matter of weeks. Only a few months after our marriage he started going out with other women and has been doing so since.

I have been driven almost crazy and I want out. My old friend says he still wants to marry me — in spite of the fact that I now have a 6-month old baby. But I'm afraid I still love my husband and I am still unsure about Bill.

Bill D. — Some girls don't know what is good for them. They shouldn't be given a chance to have a choice about their marriages. I told Glenice this guy was no good. I was willing to eat my hat if he turned out a decent husband. Now there's plenty of proof I knew what I was talking about.

I am willing to save Bernice from this situation whether she loves me or not. I hate to see this other guy get away with murder.

I am trying to make Bernice understand she won't find another sucker like me, willing to take her on with a baby. I just feel so sorry for her that I'd do it.

The Council: Aside from the fact that Bernice is a married woman and is, at present, in no position to consider marriage proposals, we would warn her against suitors in Sir Galahad clothing.

When an emotionally mature man wishes to marry, he thinks in terms of finding happiness for himself and giving it to his partner. He does not see himself as a "sucker" stooping to help some pathetic waif. Of course, the damsel in distress always has a certain appeal to the male ego, but the distress should not cause a man to look upon the lady with contempt.

It is contempt that Bill shows for Bernice when he says that he is willing to marry her because he is "so sorry for her." No self-respecting woman would consider such a proposal. It is a travesty in Bill's mind to a marriage in which he would every day throw up to Bernice her failings, with the object of building himself up to heroic proportions at her expense. Bill is seriously lacking real self-esteem and until he finds this, he is a poor risk as a marriage partner.

Bernice's real problems are elsewhere. There is a question of whether she can get her husband to accept married life or not. If she can't, she may well find life with him intolerable and may have to find other living arrangements for herself. In solving these serious problems, she may find the need of intensive help from an outside agency — a clergyman, doctor or family counselling service.

It is possible for apparently hopeless good-for-nothings like Bernice's husband to change their ways if they want to do it. That it is worse than useless for others to try to nag them into it.

Ken Mosdell May Have Skull Fracture

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Mosdell, veteran centre of Montreal Royals, was under observation in hospital Monday for possible skull fracture.

Mosdell has been suffering from headaches since he was injured Friday night in Sudbury in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game.

The Royals have just returned from a six-game road trip, in which they could salvage only two ties, and in the home-opening Monday it was found there would are four regulars down with assortment of injuries.

Tardif and Sawicki are expected to be able to dress on Thursday's game, however, when the Royals are hosts to Troois-Rivieres, Lions.

The Royals currently are in fourth place in the league standing, with only a three - point margin over South Sie. Marie Thunderbirds. The Royals' last win was Nov. 8 and their slump has coach Floyd Thompson worried.

"We'll have to snap out of it without Mosdell and Perreault," said Curry. "The rookies will get plenty of opportunity to show their ability and I'm counting on them to pick up the slack."

Sad Riders Wend Way On Road Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Disappointed Ottawa Rough Rider football players were homeward bound Monday as the club executive and coaching staff laid plans for the 1947 Big Four football season.

"I can't believe it," said tackle Tom Jones, "I never wanted anything so much in my life," said fullback Leonard Vaughan.

They just about summed up how Riders felt after losing the league final to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Coach Frank Clair said he leaves this week to scout Hardin-Simms college player prospects.

Meanwhile, some 2,000 Ottawa fans are getting ready to invade Toronto for the Grey Cup game, even though Riders are out of the picture.

Club president J. Barry O'Brien said Riders had a successful season considering their bad start.

O'Brien announced that a full time successor to James P. McCaffrey as Riders' general manager will be named next week.

George Terlep, one of Riders' assistant coaches, is expected to get the job. He came to Riders during the season after being fired as head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Bilts' Gilbert Still Tops Junior Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although Guelph Biltmores have relinquished two positions in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings they still lead the scoring parades for the third straight week with two players at the head of the list.

While slipping from second slot to fourth, the Biltmores have Rod Gilbert in front with 31 goals and 13 assists for 34 points followed by teammate Don Ratelle who has scored seven and assisted 14 others for 21 points.

Official statistics released today, and including games to Sunday, show Wayne Boddy of Peterborough Peter is running in third position for the fourth straight week. He is one point ahead of Dave Keon of St. Michael's College Majors. Boddy has 18 points on eight goals and 10 assists, while Keon has collected nine goals and eight assists.

Jerry Cheevers with two shutouts continues to lead the goal-tending department for St. Michael's with a 1.75 goals-against average. Marlboros Ken Broderick, is second having allowed an average of 2.00 goals a game.

SUSPENDED 18 GAMES

KITCHENER (CP) — Coach Jack Couch of Kitchener Dodgers, suspended indefinitely in the Inter-County Baseball Association junior series for striking an umpire, will be back in action after the first seven games next season. The league executive meeting Monday set the term of the suspension at 18 games, of which Couch already has missed three. He was put on the shelf indefinitely after striking umpire Ed Schnett of Stratford during a playoff game between the Dodgers and Listowel juniors in Listowel Aug. 26.

The executive decided to hold the Inter-County's annual meeting in Kitchener Dec. 2.

Max Baer Fantastic Figure, Was Merry Jester of Boxing

By HARRY MARKSON

NEW YORK (AP)—To a sport that is often grim and sometimes cruel, Max Baer contributed laughter. He was boxing's merry jester, always playing the part of a cheap Max, the California Clown.

There was the night he won the heavyweight crown in a wild scramble with Prima Carnera. Time after time Baer's smashing right sent Camera to the canvas. In the 12th round a Baer swing not only dropped Primo but sent Maxie tumbling to the canvas on top of him.

"Last one up is a sissy", said Max to Primo.

There was the night he attempted to halt the progress of a rising young Detroit heavyweight named Joe Louis. Some 50,000 spectators sat in Yankee Stadium to see what would happen when Baer's mighty right fist crashed against the young Brown Bombshell's jaw.

WAVES FANS FAREWELL

Baer never got to throw it. He was too busy defending against the savage onslaughts of the fists of the young Louis. In the fourth round Baer had enough. Dropped to one knee by a sizzling left hook, Max paid little attention to Referee Arthur Donovan's count. He calmly raised his glove hand and nonchalantly waved goodbye to the crowd.

"It was good for a laugh," Max told reporters.

The merry madcap of boxing will be buried Tuesday in Sacramento, Calif., Baer's home base for 30 of his 37 years. Hollywood Saturday, he suffered a heart attack and died as he lived —with a quick quip.

He became ill while shaving in his hotel room and telephoned for a physician. Asked by the switchboard operator if he wanted the house doctor, Max replied: "No, I'm not a house. Call a horse doctor."

WANTED TO AMUSE

Boxing writers, who loved Max because he never failed to make good copy, always said Baer was as good a fighter as he wanted to be. When he was good he was great. But he rarely wanted to be good. He seemed more eager to make the customers laugh than to defend his fees.

On the night he won the heavyweight championship he seemed invincible. One year later he clowned his way through 15 rounds and lost the title to Jimmy Braddock. He didn't seem to mind. When the cost of the crown he was satisfied that he had given the fans some chuckles.

And so it was with Max Baer, in or out of the ring. Most fighters try to keep their opponents flattened. Max Baer was happy if he could leave the customers laughing.

Letter To The Sports Editor

Dear Sir:

It is my understanding that the prime aim of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association is the development of our boys as hockey players and good sports. That idea is good in theory but is not being put into practice by some members of the executive committee. Their main interest is in winning rather than developing. Too much untried talent languishes on the bench.

Many of the boys not getting their fair share of ice time will be lost to hockey through discouragement and this will be a great loss to the game . . . and to the boys. It is a well known fact in sport that some boys develop slowly. Many of the outstanding stars of the N.H.L. were not impressive in their early years but later passed teammates of more apparent skill.

Now to get personal. I am not famed as an early Saturday morning riser but I have made an supreme effort the last two Saturdays of rising and groping my way over to view the contest to see my boy play hockey.

I full 30 seconds the star players were on the ice for at least and what did I see? I saw a couple of coaches' favorites play hockey and they played it very well. And we were there, of our games! From time to time I caught a glimpse of my boy sitting on the bench and I must admit he does it very well. But, I would like to see him play hockey some time. His total ice time for two games is somewhere like four minutes and thirty seconds! This morning he played the ice for at least a half game.

If this is developing hockey players, I can develop my boy at home . . . sitting on a bench watching television. I would suggest, in fairness to all the boys (and fathers), that the system used in the Bantam division be employed in the Pee Wee division. Then, at least, we are changed every two or three minutes and each boy gets his turn in rotation. This might lower the calibre of play but would certainly be fair to all.

At the beginning of this letter I mentioned the aim of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. It's time the executive took another look at their target.

Unhappy Early Riser.

Canada Outdoors

By JEAN SWEENY

Edited from Three-Gun Dispatches by Canada Press

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—"My best advice is to fathers," says Lt. T. Gibson, veteran hunter now in the army. "Teach your boy as I was taught. My father showed me how to use a gun properly.

"He told me if I did not show good judgment in its use, the gun would go back up on the rack, and stay there until I could do so.

"He impressed on me never to shoot until I knew what I was shooting at and drove it home with the old adage, 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.'"

This month Mr. Gibson, who lives at 227 Pitt Street and operates the corner store next door to his home, returned from his annual hunting trip with two fine deer, making the 30th consecutive year he has "got his buck" within a week.

HIS CAREER

Born at Gibson Mountain, Kings County, a few miles north of Sussex, on Jan. 6, 1880, Mr. Gibson explained that the area was named for his great-grandparents, the first settlers on the mountain. His wiry energy developed at an early age, with a two-mile walk to the nearest schoolhouse.

His hunting career started 68 years ago when he was 12 years old and his father gave him a muzzle-loading flintlock shotgun, which he still treasures.

The flintlock, he believes, might be as much as 200 years old. It was brought from England by the Gibson who first settled in the area.

His first rifle was a single-shot Martini Henry. Since then he has always used a .303 Model with a high-power shell.

"It's a mistake," Mr. Gibson says, "to use too small a rifle. Your game will run a long way before it dies." For duck, he uses a 12-gauge pump Winchester.

MEMORABLE DAY

Mr. Gibson does not smoke. One of his most amusing hunting stories is of a time he went into the woods with a companion who disbowered. He had forgotten his tobacco. First thing in the morning he started the long trek back to town to recover it.

"While he was gone," Mr. Gibson went out alone and shot a huge 21-point moose," he said, "and by way back to camp to start plans for bringing it in. I got my two deer. I had lunch and found I had time to spare. So I went on to Park's Lake where I found more ducks than I have ever seen in my life.

"Crawling through the brush I got ready, and as they rose I fired, and bagged six black duck with that last shell." He added: "My friend got back with his tobacco."

LONG RECORD

Many years ago Mr. Gibson hunted the Canaan River area, but since 1924 has returned each year to his camp in Kent County, where he writes an annual hunting record on the sheathed wall.

"The wall is nine feet high," he says, "and the hunting runs the length of the camp. I started carving it the day with one year on each board. I'm now on the third row, with two filled from roof to floor."

A member of the New Brunswick Fish and Game Association for many years, he holds a life membership in the provincial body, and still takes an active part in its many projects.

Mr. Gibson prefers to hunt alone. "Most of the fellows make too much noise—carry the game away," he says.

With his camp nine miles from the road, he had always taken his supplies in by horse and wagon from Apohaqui Farm. But this year progress had reached the area, and the trip was made by tractor for the first time.

GETS NAME STRAIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—After five seasons as professional hockey, Stan Rebuls of Port Arthur, the rookie who is top scorer for Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, has got around to correcting the record books on the spelling of his name. All the books have been carrying it as Rebuls but Stan says the name should come before the I. He pronounced it Ree-Lake.

AVID HUNTER — M. T. Gibson of Saint John, N.B., was just two months short of his 80th birthday when he bagged his two deer during this year's hunting season. It was the 30th consecutive year he has bagged the limit permitted under provincial hunting regulations. He started hunting 68 years ago with the 200-year-old flintlock he holds here. Behind him is the first rifle, a Martini Henry and a muzzle-loading cap gun. (CP Photo).

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Canadiens' Jacques Plant, Jake the Snake, cares not what he looks like with a safety mask adorning his features.

Call him the "Man From Mars," "Spy from Outer Space" or a post-shopping version of Boris Karloff in a man-monster production. Jake cares not a bit, so long as his features are protected from stitch-producing pucks, sticks and skates.

As one Toronto writer puts it, "He looks from a distance as though he had been hit in the face with a custard pie a la Keystone Kops." No one cares less than Jake.

Plante used the mask in practice after being slashed for several stitches in the countenance. Now he wears it in schedule games.

And he will continue to wear it, he says. "When I take it off I'm also take off my shaker," he is quoted as saying. "In other words I'm wearing it from now until I retire."

Somebody yelled at him on Saturday night in Toronto that he was afraid. "Jake" denied this. "I'm not afraid," he said. "But why should a parachute jumper jump without a parachute to show he is not afraid. That would be foolish and he would be dead. If that puck tonight (Saturday) had been inches higher Boyer could have lost an eye. I'm sorry for him but it makes me feel glad I have the mask."

Word has it that Gordie Bell returned from Montreal over the weekend with a mask similar to that Plante wears. In fact it was made from the same model, so we are told.

There is nothing "chicken" about wearing a mask, or any other piece of equipment designed to prevent injury. We do not blame Plante or Bell for using the protection. It may save injury to face and eyes. One can have a broken arm, or leg patched up but unfortunately whoever designed the human body did not throw in eyes as spare parts. Once you lose them you've had it.

We do not know at this time of writing whether Gordie Bell will be playing again, or not. However it does seem that he might, otherwise he would not have gone to the trouble to get the mask.

There is more than one Belleville player over the years who would have escaped serious injury had he been wearing a goalie mask.- If memory serves us right Don "Red Top" Burchat was struck in the face while standing on the line of several teeth as was Bobby Green back in their junior days. Conroy Mazingo suffered an eight-stitch gash before a game started, not too long ago.

But while the injury face has been sniping consistently at Belleville goalies, there has been nothing to beat the concentrated fury the grenadin has levelled at Davy Jones.

This slim winger has been getting the "breaks" all right, but not the kind that accounts goals or wins games.

Davy came up with a broken vertebra during the famous Allan Cup series with Kelowna a year ago. A few minutes on the ice in the world tournament in Prague, Czechoslovakia, saw him carried off with a fractured wrist.

The other night in Kitchener, Davy was sidelined with a fractured collarbone, and taken to hospital in the Western Ontario city. How unlucky can a guy get?

Davy was hit by a clean bodycheck "going down the middle," as he said yesterday. He is recuperating at his home and will likely be out of action for the next five or six weeks.

WRITEY HERE TOMORROW

The Dunlops will be here tomorrow night to add to Ike Hildebrand's worries, but the coach hopes to crack that defeat string at the expense of the Allan Cuppers. And just a reminder, the new game time for the league with the exception of weekend tilts is eight o'clock, not eight-thirty.

Minor Hockey Notes

Four games were played in the squirt division of the BMHA prior to the Junior "B" hockey game at Belleville Memorial Arena last night.

Three of the games were low scoring affairs but Browns and Rangers cut loose with the Browns winning 8-7. Larry Moore paced the Browns with five goals while Paul Goodfellow had a pair. Richard Mc-Vicker and Dennis Clements had the others. Calvin Wilson potted two for the Rangers, singletons going to Robert Carter, Ronnie Banuk, Chris Hannah, Rod McLaughlin and Ron Hall.

Red Wings took a 4-1 victory over the Barons. Paul Finkle knocked two for the winners with Brian Cove and Ted Draucon getting the others. Dave Malvihill scored for the Barons' marker.

Canadiens edged the Black Hawks by a 2-1 count. Ted Sullivan and Brian Melbourne tied of the Canadien markers with Ron Fuller, replying for the Black Hawks.

Maple Leafs won over the Bruins by a score of 3-1. Gregg White scored two Leaf goals with Jim Howe potting one. Rickey Day was the lone Bruin scorer.

Only Time He Played Rock 'N' Roll

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Band leader Guy Lombardo and the designer and driver of his jet-propelled hydroplane Tempo Al Sr. can still aim to shoot for a new world record despite a near-disastrous accident Monday.

The aluminum craft, with Les Staudacher at the controls, skimmed into the beach at Pyramid Lake, 30 miles northeast of here, struck a rock and soared 200 feet before crashing on the sand.

Staudacher, 47, emerged badly bruised but claiming he had topped the world record of 200.35 miles an hour on three runs before the crash.

Except for his right sponson the hydroplane appeared undamaged. However, Staudacher said it would be returned to Bay City, Mich., for repairs before another record try at Pyramid Lake next year.

Staudacher said that after three runs he cut the fuel switch when he hit choppy water. Instead of stopping, the engine kept going.

GREY CUP— SPORT OR ORGY?

That's what people are asking. Don't miss the provocative discussion on Canada's national sports event in this week's Star Weekly.

Bruins Bronk Still Kicking Over Points Traces

Horvath Setting Hot Pace In National Scoring Race; Gordie Howe Close Behind

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins may seem to be heading for hibernation but their lanky centre, Bronco Horvath, is still setting a lively pace in the National Hockey League scoring marathon.

Horvath has compiled a remarkable total of 17 goals, plus 13 assists, for a grand total of 30 points, Closest is Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings with 24 points.

In last week's ice action, Detroit's big right winger broke loose with three goals and three assists.

Howe's six - point outburst doubled that of Horvath, who had a goal and two assists, but the Red Wings paved four games to the Bruins' two. True, slipping Bruins have been able to salvage only two ties in their last six games.

BIG JUMP

Howe's big effort moved him from a sixth-place tie of a week ago into second slot. The NFL's official statistics — released today, show him with 12 goals — closest to Horvath—and 12 assists.

In the shuffling among Horvath's pursuers, Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers scored three goals and climbed from fortfifth place to third. Bathgate has 22 points on 11 goals and 11 assists.

Vic Stasiuk, Horvath's linemate with the Bruins, counted only a single assist and dropped from a second - place tie into fourth place. He has an 8-13 — 21 record.

Five players are bunched at 20 points for fifth-place tie. Two of them—Johnny Bucyk of the Bruins and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens—were idle all last week because of injuries.

Two other Montrealers—Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau—moved into the 20 - point bracket along with Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

MOORE FAR DOWN

Behind them are Norm Ullman of Detroit with 19 points, Jerry Toppazzini of Boston with 18 and Dickie Moore of Montreal, last season's NHL champion, and Don McKenney of Boston with 17 each.

Goalie Jacques Plante, who has played in only 21 games of Montreal's undefeated string of 15 games, has a goals - against average of 1.94 a week ago to 1.85. Closest is Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs with 2.28.

The Montreal string, which counted 11 wins and three ties, began Oct 18 with a 6-3 win over New York. Since then Plante has had a two-goal count against him three times, one goal 10 times and a single shutout.

Juniors Hold Second Place With 9-0 Win Over Trenton

They were not that much better but the scoreboard cannot be denied and it read after the smoke had cleared Belleville 9, Trenton 0 after a hard-fought Eastern Ontario junior "B" tussle last night.

It was the third victory in four start for "Red" Gravelle's Belleville Lambert-Rollins bunch of youngsters and the win leaves them in second spot in the loop standing.

Bucky Ethier and Ralph Plante sparked the Bly team offensive with two goals and two assists each. Don Forsythe rattled the tense twice in the first two minutes while Dennis Kerruish added a pair before the last whistle shrilled. Gary Goyer tossed in one for good measure but added three assists to his scoring total.

Goyer was credited with two assists with Reid getting one in the team's total of 19 scoring points.

It was fast hockey rugged at times with referees Vern Goyer and Tim Williams handing out 16 penalties all minors, eleven going to the city crew.

Red Gravelle's fast-skating club hit for four goals in the first period, added two more in the second and sank three in the final frame to clinch the victory.

The game was delayed some ten minutes in the first period when the Belleville goalie was given ten stitches after stopping a hard Trenton drive with his chin.

The Lambert-Rollins team surged to the attack at the drop of the puck and scarcely two minutes had elapsed before Don Forsythe climaxed a drive with Mavety and Goyer to open the scoring at 2.31. Seventeen seconds later the same trio blasted in to give Belleville a 3-0 lead with all players getting the same credit.

Six minutes later Ralph Plane raced in alone to rack up the third Belleville goal and a minute later Bucky Ethier made it four on a neat play with Plane and Gary Reid.

The Trenton crew played hard hockey, checked well but missed several chances around the Belleville net. Gravelle's defence was good and his front lines were checking hard.

Bucky Ethier scored his second goal of the night after four minutes of play had started. Goyer got back into the picture setting Denny Kerruish up with his first marker at 3.24 and the same pair repeated twelve minutes later to end the scoring and give the Grenville crew a 9-0 win.

At Least He Gets A Ticket!

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker will perform the honorary kickoff duties at the Grey Cup game in Toronto Saturday.

Mr. Diefenbaker kicked the first ball in the 1957 football classic. That boot went just five yards when it was blocked by a crowd of photographers and officials.

Another Sad Hockey Story

NORTH BAY (CP)— Management of the Pembroke Hockey Association Ltd. is withdrawing his team from the Ontario-northern group of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association.

He said the main reason for the decision was that the club was not financially able to risk possible heavy loss by importing players without guarantee of jobs The club ran up a $2,000 deficit during the first three weeks of operation.

The deficit resulted mainly from travelling expenses incurred in the team's two road trips, Palangio said. Another factor was that only 1,500 fans attended the first two home games.

Clancy Favors Masks for Hockey Goalies

TORONTO (CP) — King Clancy, the colorful assistant manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, is in favor of protective face masks for hockey goalies —not simply for protection, though.

"It's like the blinders on a horse," he said Monday. "The goalie has to focus on the puck. He won't be wondering where his defencemen are."

"I remember a goalie who used to keep yelling at his defence to cover up. I told him if he was watching the puck like he was supposed to, he wouldn't notice his defence.

"That's where a mask might come in handy."

Only National Hockey League goalie under new sporting a mask in competition is Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens. He has worn a self-made mask for seven successive games since suffering a facial cut in a game Nov. 1. He says it makes his face sweat a little but otherwise it doesn't seem to be hindering his job. He has allowed only eight goals in the seven games.

Plante says his game has improved because he is more relaxed and no longer worried about a puck in the face.

Some goalies swear they'll never wear a mask except maybe now and then at practice. Johnny Bower of the Leafs is one of them. A mask, however, could have saved him some discomfort and four teeth during the weekend when he was hit in the face by a deflected puck in a game against Montreal.

The shot ripped his lower lip and knocked his teeth out of line. One was removed after the Saturday night game at Toronto. Three others were yanked Monday.

Bower, however, played unprotected Sunday in Boston and was superb in holding the Bruins to one goal as Toronto won 2-1.

What They Won't Do to Dig Up Publicity Gimmicks

TORONTO (CP) — With the Grey Cup only four days away, a certain coolness between East and West is understandable.

This year there's a new element. The easterners are playing it a bit cool among themselves, and a regional playoff loser suddenly is assuming major proportions in the national football extravaganza.

Case in the matter is this: Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Saturday for the prized trophy, know little—or pretend to—about the western representatives.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who aren't meeting anybody except the rest of the spectators, may know plenty.

RIDERS HAVE FILM

The Riders are reputed to have a fat scouting file on the Bombers, prepared by George Terlep before he was fired late in the Western Interprovincial Football Union season by Saskatchewan Roughriders and joined Ottawa as assistant coach.

Hamilton coach Jim Trimble would dearly love to get his hands on it, but there's a dedicate situation involved. It stems from an affair Saturday in Hamilton wherein the Ticats, down 12 points, recovered to smash the Riders 37-7 and take the Big Four's two-game, total - points final 56-34.

"I don't want to ask them for it," Trimble said Monday night. "We'd like them to offer it to us first. Of course, they're probably not in the mood today."

SO EIGHT

He was right. Ottawa coach Frank Clair replied he had received no request from Hamilton and "if they want it, they should ask for it."

Trimble said he would do just that if Ottawa didn't make the first move. And what would the Riders' reaction be?

"No comment," said Clair.

The Ticats may not be as ignorant of western followers as Trimble would indicate. Assistant coaches Hallie Earle and Indian Jack Jacobs scouted the first WIFU playoff game between Winnipeg and Edmonton Eskimos. The only records of the two-point game was by television during the final half.

To complete the total-stranger atmosphere, coach Bud Grant led his Bombers into Toronto Monday and professed not to know much about Hamilton either.

TAKE FAST LOOK

Grant, however, planned to get at the Hamilton scouting reports right away. "That's what we're down here early for."

While the Ticats rested in their ignorance 40 miles west of here along the shores of Lake Ontario, Grant settled his charges on the unscheduled Park Plaza Hotel on midtown Bloor Street and announced he would exercise them in nearby Varsity Stadium.

He called a 55-minute workout in a drenching cloudburst and smiled when eastern critics said the lowly Hamilton line would outweigh the westerners by perhaps 10 pounds a man.

"We weren't up to western standards either," said Grant. "For heavier teams we just use something a little different."

CAUSE FOR WORRY?

Which was precisely what Trimble was talking about as he was asked why the documents buried in the Ottawa vaults are so important.

"Vital," said Trimble. "The element of surprise could hurt you. For example, if Bud Grant tries to use the single-wing attack he's been talking about."

Trimble's easterners are an underdogs for the first time in Grey Cup history, even if only by a single point.

How did he feel about that?

"Well, they make mistakes as anybody else, don't they!"

Saturday's Grey Cup final is the 47th since the trophy was offered in 1909. It is the 32nd East-West final. The East has won 23 times, the West eight.

The West first challenged in 1921. There was no West challenge in six later years.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers are defending champions, winning 35-28 over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1958 at Vancouver.

Last East win was Hamilton's 33-7 victory in 1957 over Winnipeg.

Cus D'Amato May Appeal Court's Right to Stew Him

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—A "shocked and dismayed" Cus D'Amato expects to appeal his license to manage and second fighters in New York state through legal action.

If that effort doesn't meet with success, the National Boxing Association offers him a glimmer of hope that he'll be able to manage within its jurisdiction. That would give him most of the action in which to operate as manager of former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson if Sweden's Ingemar Johansson will consent to meet Patterson outside of New York.

"I have a legal contract for the return bout and I intend to fulfill this obligation," D'Amato said.

D'Amato, whose license was revoked Monday by the New York State Athletic Commission, indicated Monday he may attempt court action to upset the commission's ruling.

QUESTIONS AUTHORITY

A statement questioned the legal authority of the commission to revoke a license that had expired last Sept. 30, and asserted that the commission believed he had done anything wrong it had in May 29, 1958, well before the Patterson - Ingemar Johansson title fight, yet made no move to revoke it until Oct. 28.

The "wrong" referred to, also on which the commission based its decision, was related to four charges:

1. Failing to appear at a Sept. 14 commission hearing after the alleged irregularities in the title fight promotion;

2. As a licensed manager participating as a matchmaker and promoter in the title fight;

3. Seeking to foist Harry Davidow upon Johansson as a manager, thereby attempting to control both contestants;

4. Failing to file after the fight a manager's financial report within five days.

Anthony Marcroil, NBA president, said in Providence, R.I., Monday night that his organization temporarily would uphold the ban, but that the NBA is leaving the door open for D'Amato

CAHA to Suspend Players Not Given Team Release

KITCHENER (CP)—A move to stop overtime in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A games was defeated at a meeting of the senior A council.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen gave the only support to reten tion of the 10-minute overtime but the council, doubted the legality of making any change without unanimous approval.

The council reaffirmed its desire to enforce a waiver rule, several breaches of which were claimed to have occurred this season.

Mentioned were Bob Madey, released by Chatham Maroons, and Johnny McClelan, dealt by Belleville McFarlands to Milwaukee of the International League.

George Dudley, OHA treasurer and secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he was pleased investigating the cases of four former OHA players now employed by United States teams without release. Minnie Menard with New York, Artie Eskdenuts and Phil Goyette with Louisville and Mary Edwards with Milwaukee.

It was decided that if the matter is not cleared up to the satisfaction of the Canadian clubs the CAHA would suspend all four. Suspensions would be honored in the U.S.

The meeting approved the use by Belleville of Kitchener goaltender Cesare Maniago as a replacement for the injured Gordie Bell.

Want Durelle To Put It On the Line

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Boxing Federation made it plain Monday that if Yvon Durelle is retiring from the ring he should let the federation know about 5—in writing.

Gene Lamontagne, CBF national commissioner, said British boxing officials are asking for his information also.

Both organizations want to know officially whether the Bathe Ste. Anne, N.B., fisherman is vacating his Canadian and British Empire lightheavyweight titles.

After an unsuccessful shot at the Canadian heavyweight title last week Durelle said he is through fighting. The 30-year-old Durelle was bailed out in the sixth round by Toronto's George Chuvalo.

"This isn't the first time Durelle has said he is quitting," said Letourneau. "He said the same thing when he was middleweight champion."

Ring Prospect Makes Comeback

TORONTO (CP) — Al Most, Canada's most promising lightweight amateur boxer seven years ago, made his second comeback attempt Monday night and scored a split decision over Roger Leflieur in a five - round welterweight bout at Palace Pier.

Most, now 31, won his first 33 bouts and was tagged a sure-fire professional prospect. He was named to Canada's Olympic boxing team in 1952, but joined the army instead and gave up the sport.

Last fall he made his first comeback, winning the bout but then giving up the game again.

Other results included:

130-pound class—Louis Tullar, Oshawa, defeated Billie Lehman, Toronto, three-round decision.

130 - pound class — Bernie Guimdroe, Oshawa, defeated Sammy Schiavoni, Toronto, three-round split decision.

New Football League Swings Into Action

MINNEAPOLIS. (AP) — Organizers of the new American Football League girded for a dollar duel with the National League Monday in a scramble to land the big names of college football.

The AFL announced Thursday is a draft Monday and planned to sign at least 40 more players within a few weeks.

From the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, currently one of the firm assurance that it will field a team in the AFL next year despite reports that a franchise in the NFL is open to the twin cities.

Left unsettled, however, was selection of the new league's commissioner. The list was reduced to two unidentified candidates, one in college ranks and the other connected with professional football.

While the AFL owners discounted predictions of a full-scale bidding war with the NFL, it seemed obvious that the entrenched NFL would not yield easily in competition for the top players it wants.

TOP STARS PICKED

The country's ranking stars were plucked early. Houston chose fullback Bob Wilde of Ohio State and halfback Dick Bass of College of Pacific after picking Louisiana State's Billy Cannon in the first round.

Boston named halfback Ron Burton of Northwestern and centre Mel Fugler of LSU. Buffalo picked halfback Ray Jauch of Iowa and end Jim Houston of Ohio State. Los Angeles chose LSU and Tom Moore of Vanderbilt were drafted by Dallas.

Denver drew quarterback Dean Look of Michigan State, New York tapped halfback Jil Kovac of Cincinnati and Log Angles halfback Bob Oster of Iowa and fullback Charley Flowers of Mississippi State.

Minneapolis - St. Paul, after naming quarterback Dale Hackbart of Wisconsin as the opening round, added Iowa end Don Norton and halfback Abner Haynes of North Texas State.

Well, They Can Do It In Texas!

LUBBOCK, Tex. (CP) — Workmen started digging Monday on the job of developing a football field 30 feet. And soon other workmen will begin the monstrous task of moving 12,500,000 pounds of steel and concrete football stands 200 feet to the rear.

How can you move a stadium that heavy?

Easy, says Ed Pescheau, boss of the job for an Indianapolis contractor. You just put it on railroad tracks and roll it back.

When the work ends Texas Tech will possess a stadium seating 40,000 for its first year in the southwest conference.

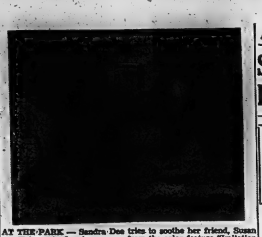
MOSCOW (AP) — World chess champion Mikhail Botvinnik of Russia and challenger Mikhail Tal of Russia agreed Monday to begin their world title match here next March 15.

Spar Mates Draw Blood

LONDON (AP)—Heavyweights Mike DeJohn of Syracuse, N.Y., and Cuban champion Nino Valdes had their first—and last —sparring session in the same ring Monday.



It ended with blood pouring from DeJohn's nose—and some hard words between the fighters. "You sissy," shouted Valdes from his corner.

"I'm okay but it's not okay," shouted back DeJohn. "You're trying to make a bum out of me. You always said he be the big guy."

DeJohn and Valdes are scheduled to meet British heavyweights on the same card at London's Wembley Stadium, Dec. 1. DeJohn will face Dick Richardson and Valdes will meet Brian London.

Enormous Quantity of Fine Entertainment on TV Screen

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — This is turning out to be a rough year for the broadcasters, now catching the brickbats from both sides. The industry has become such a popular target that even some unlikely thinkers have been taking time off from advising on foreign policy to counsel the networks.

I'm as much against phony quiz shows, vulgar commercials and unleavened doses of rock 'n' roll as the next viewer. But I think it's about time somebody remembered in print that there's an enormous quantity of fine entertainment on the television screen any night in the week.

And it's no trick at all, for literate and illiterate people alike, to turn that dial to some westerns, crime thrillers or anything else they may find objectionable. For that matter, you don't even have to have the set on constantly. There's a serviceable little knob marked "on-off" when programs fail to please.

BE SELECTIVE

I don't know how many concerts, lectures, films and plays are being staged and attended in a year. I do know that any one of them, or hundreds ahead of it by being selective in our choices of programs, is much more high-level entertainment right in our own homes than we ever dreamed of.

Without refreshing my memory, these are some of the fine things I've seen in the last 10 weeks: Two concerts by the New York Philharmonic; several Telephone Hour concerts; two original musical comedies; special programs devoted to the music of such composers as Gershwin and Jerome Kern; Beethoven's opera Fidelio, Gian-Carlo Menotti's adaptation of Don Quixote; new operettas by Sigmund Romberg and Adiaio to Zsa Zsa.

There have been regular shows on the World, Wall Street and quest; there have been baseball, football, basketball, prize fights, horse racing, golf, bowling and bridge for fans. There have been news shows, shows interpreting news events; there has been comedy and situation comedies and plenty more.

Television has faults, but right now it really isn't fair to condemn it all with a broad generalization. A lot of it undeniably is mediocre stuff, but there has never been more top - rank TV entertainment than during this very season.

Recommended tonight:

Merman on Broadway, NBC, 8:30-10:30 EST — Ethel Merman, that is, with Tab Hunter, Tom Poston and Fess Parker and a lot of hit tunes.

Reunion, ABC, 10—With Betsy Palmer Furnberg.

Garry Moore Show, CBS, 10-11 —The show regulars plus Gertrude Berg and the Jonakh Jones Quartet.

"Hogtown" Readies for Grey Cup Feed

TORONTO (CP)—Grey Cup Festival Week was proclaimed Monday launching a six - day series of events which will reach a climax with Grey Cup victory celebrations Saturday night.

Top attractions will be a Grey Cup dinner and party Friday night in the Queen Elizabeth building at Canadian National Exhibition Park, a million-long parade Saturday morning and a victory dance that night.

Mayor Phillips read the official proclamation Monday from the steps of city hall surrounded by a bevy of cheerleaders and Miss Grey Cup contestants, in front of the mayor, the Grey Cup itself was displayed with an armed guard standing by.

The white-haired mayor performed a symbolic kick-off from the top of the steps. The football, bucking a headwind, went only a few yards. He tried again and made five yards.

"Oh with the fun," Mayor Phillips called to the crowd. "This is a week of hilarity and good fellowship."

More than 4,000 are expected to attend the Friday night party in the old of the big week-end. Already 70 floats and 30 bands are lined up for the parade through downtown Toronto. Arrangements are being made for 2,000 dancers Saturday night.

Some Feel Payola Inflicted Poor Music on the Public

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The payola primer:

Q. What is payola?

A. It is a payment by record and song promoters to disk jockeys, parties, especially disk jockeys, to get songs and records before the public.

Q. Is it something new?

A. No. It has been going on since the beginnings of Tin Pan Alley.

Q. Then why all the fuss about it now?

A. Because some people feel the payola has been employed to inflict poor music on the record-buying public principally teenagers. Some believe gangland elements are involved.

Q. Is the payola illegal?

A. Possibly. Some say it constitutes a bribe of responsible individuals.

Q. Is payola immoral?

A. Most, probably, would think so. Some disk jockeys report to be reflecting public tastes, while the reality they are playing records they are bribed to play. And they are using air that belongs to the public.

Q. How does payola work?

A. A record producer pays a jockey a sum of money for repeated plays of a special record. Or he pays the jock may receive a regular sum, say $100 or $150 a week for playing the promoters' product.

Q. Can this get to be big business?

A. You bet. Some jocks are unabashed in what they draw $50,000 a year under the table. And the record is a key character for a big-time operator. He can demand to have the records he has pressed incorporated by companies, the songs published by his own firms and even take a percentage of the singer's income.

Q. Can hit records be created by the payola?

A. In the rock 'n' roll field, yes. Such records with no artistic value have been created by a million-dollar merely by constant play. If teen-agers hear the records often enough, they'll buy 'em.

Q. Can the payola create stars?

A. Absolutely. Several young stars have been showed to fame by the use of payola on their records. The publicity outlets cooperate, either because of a similar payola or their eagerness to cater to what they think is teen-age taste.

Q. How do gangsters figure in the picture?

A. By their control of juke boxes and their interests in certain singers and record firms.

Q. Who is going to be hurt in this investigation?

A. Some parties who have played cynically with public tastes. And those persons who will lose their idols are false.

Q. Who is going to be helped by this investigation?

General tendencies: The daytime brings you all sorts of opportunities to gain the good will of those who are very exact and particular in whatever they do, and which is now possible for you to do in a shrewd and easier fashion. But definite action must be yours if you are to have full benefits. The evening brings need for rest, relaxation.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Endeavor to do whatever work or tasks await your attention with increased speed and efficiency. Tonight may be very trying over some difficult situation with associate, mate or financial person. Avoid it by retiring early.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — There is every opportunity for you to make yourself most charming and attractive today, so take the necessary treatments toward this end. P. M. should then be spent in delightful surroundings with soothing atmospheres. Dress beautifully.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Fundamental affairs and all home matters require your concentrated attention now. Expectantly take care of repairs and utilities. Relax tonight at some delightful pastime that does not need too much outlay of cash.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — A. M. is just fine for speeding things up at the office, in business, getting greater efficiency into all of your affairs. Also good for cementing better relations with all others, studying, doing some important research work. P. M. avoid irate ones.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — This is one day when you can be exactly what is needed to make your real estate, other possessions more valuable. Also fine time to budget property. P. M. take care while out driving. Also, choose words wisely or you alienate others.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You have every opportunity now to concentrate upon what you want in the future and set the wheels in motion toward that direction. Meet all the right people you can. P. M. do not be extravagant. Take care of that throat ailment.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Spend some time today attending to small but important intimate matters and putting surroundings in neat order. P. M. think of your health. Rest more. Enjoy and digest some fine classic.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — A. M. is ideal for going to beautician or barber and sprucing up. Then you will also have time to ferret out that which you do not now comprehend. P. M. assistance in need. Then retire early and restore your lagging energies.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — There is a fine opportunity to get support from influential friend, but you must be there early and act positively. P. M. steer clear of a good pal who is acting strangely because of, or she is troubled about something.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — See that you are alert and broad-minded in A. M. so that you do not lose out on some vital information a comrade brings you, which will help you progress. P. M. follow regulations, do not annoy a higher-up. Be wise.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A word of appreciation to experts now brings additional good ideas which you can use to advantage in the future. P. M. do not go off on some unknown tangent with stranger. Rely on that which time has proven right.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — New facts or an idea comes to light today that will improve partnership relations or bring about a desired reconciliation. P. M. steer clear of anything that will injure the present security and peace in which you dwell.

If your child is born today — Today's child will inherit very fine qualities that spell success and you must early teach to put talents and capabilities to work and not rely on other fellow. Guide properly and your offspring can go very far. farmers generally. Those who should reduce output in eggs or hogs were the large - scale producers.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture in its annual brief urged a system of guaranteed credit for farmers unable to qualify under ordinary crop insurance.

In answering questions, Mr. Harkness said that a record of American slaughter cattle are one reason for recent price drops in Canadian beef, though Canadian beef prices for some classes now are higher than the American level.

He also said the United States is extremely sensitive about any attempts to impose restrictions on fruit and vegetable imports.

Chairman L.W. Pearsall of the Agricultural Stabilization Board said there may be some disruption of prices when the government switches its support system for hogs from outright purchase to deficiency payments.

But he indicated that the board will consider granting an interim measure of relief if the disruption is too severe, in the same way it had promised for eggs.

'Education Does Not Terminate With Diploma,' States Inspector At High School Commencement

On Friday evening Madoc High School auditorium was well filled with parents and interested friends for the annual commencement exercises which included the presentation of certificates, diplomas, and the address by the inspector of secondary schools, Mr. Lorne Johnston, B. A. in which the speaker warned graduates that education does not terminate with the receiving of a diploma. He hoped students would say that they attended a certain school, not that they were educated there. Education should continue to the end of one's life. In this regard he mentioned Canada's great wastage caused by the mental laziness of so many.

"The prosperity we enjoy so much in our Western world does not mean that of itself it will continue. Ancient civilizations have fallen although they enjoyed just as high a degree.

"It is false optimism to believe that because we happen to be on an ascending escalator we will continue so, for a wrong turn could just as easily take us on a descending escalator.

"The truly greatest satisfaction and happiness in life is to be gained from tackling difficult problems and in so doing we will be serving our fellowmen."

Mrs. McCaffrey, the former Ella Krock of Pembroke, Ont., had been in hospital for about nine weeks.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Patricia, of Ottawa; two brothers, Walter and Albert of Pembroke, and five sisters, including Mrs. Adolf (Freida) Witt and Mrs. Arthur (Hilda) Patterson, both of Pembroke.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Woman Killed When Trapped In Burning Car

OAKVILLE (CP) — A woman was killed Tuesday night when trapped in a burning car after a four-car collision on the Queen Elizabeth Way near here. Another woman suffered s e v e r e burns.

Dead is Geoline Pratik, about 38, of Toronto, secretary to Lieutenant Protestant chaplain at Central Command, Oakville. She was in a car driven by her niece, Mrs. Marjorie Watson, 20, of Burlington. Mrs. Wilson suffered burns to her feet.

Police said a previous accident had backed up traffic when a car apparently drove into the back of the Wilson car.

The collision drove the Wilson car forward against one driven by Harold Noor of Toronto, and against another driven by Robert Cowley of Toronto.

The Wilson and Noor cars were jammed together and the car tank on the Wilson car exploded, igniting it and the Noor car in flames.

Charges Sauve Changes Stand

QUEBEC (CP)—Liberal Opposition Leader Georges Lapalme has accused Premier Paul Sauve and his Union Nationale party of not speaking up when Premier Khrushchev was alive and of reflecting an about-face on many issues in recent weeks.

Premier Sauve has countered that the change in his attitude and the government has not changed its policy. It is only continuing the work already accomplished by the Union Nationale governments since 1944.

The Quebec premier and Mr. Lapalme Tuesday opened the national throne speech debate in the legislative assembly.

The premier said he will not consider a hospital insurance program for Quebec until he has complete information on hospital operations and costs.

TORONTO (CP)—Carl Petrovich, 36, who posed as a widowed mother to get $2250 in city welfare money, was jailed Tuesday for six months on five charges of false pretences.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:—Heavy snow was falling today over parts of southern Ontario. In Southern Ontario there will be flurries later today in most areas and snowsqualls near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. Temperatures will fall gradually as winds swing into the northwest. Moderating winds and continued cold weather are booked for in all sections Thursday. Flurries will likely continue near the Great Lakes.

MONTREAL (CP)—A National Harbors Board official was threatened shortly before the recent installation of automatic toll-collecting machines on Montreal's Jacques Cartier Bridge, it was learned Tuesday.

There were reports that Transport Minister Hees and an unidentified associate cabinet minister were also threatened.

Guy Beaudet, Montreal port manager, confirmed earlier reports, emanating from Ottawa and Halifax, that a harbors board official had been threatened by gunman.

SAYS HEES THREATENED

The Ottawa Citizen said Tuesday that Mr. Hees had received threatening letters and the minister's office said it had no knowledge of that.

Meanwhile, the Halifax Chronicle - Herald said today it has been told that a number of the federal cabinet also received "several threatening telephone calls."

The senator's report did not identify the member but said Pierre Sevigny, MP for Longueil, Que., had said he would be left to national defence, dealed in a telephone interview that he had been threatened.

An unidentified harbors board spokesman said in Halifax the Montreal board official who was threatened was in charge of the toll machines in August.

NAME WITHHELD

In a prepared statement, Mr. Beaudet said here the name of the threatened official will be withheld to protect his family.

The bridge, connecting Montreal Island with the south shore of the St. Lawrence, came into the news when Mr. Hees announced that its revenues had soared more than 60 per cent following the automatic toll installation.

In September and October, first complete months of the new operation, revenue increased by $158,000 over the corresponding months of 1958. The figure for 1959 was given with two brackets, were: September $254,182 ($130,312); October $284,540 ($131,).

FIRED AND REHIRED

Mr. Hees said investigations launched in the fall of 1958 had resulted in the dismissal of eight toll collectors and one guard, all charged with dishonesty. The number of men later relished on the strength of a conciliation board's majority recommendation.

Harbors board officials attributed the sharply increase in bridge revenues to automatic equipment which had speeded up the traffic flow. These included the installation of automatic toll machines and the use of a fifth traffic lane and better lighting on the bridge from the south shore.

New Feeling Of Freedom Seen in Russia

TORONTO (CP)—Communism will eventually be overcome because people in Communist countries are being taught to think for themselves, Professor J. Tuzo Wilson of the University of Toronto told the Women's Canadian Club Tuesday.

Dr. Wilson, president of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, said there is already a new feeling of freedom gaining a foothold in Russia in his trips behind the Iron Curtain.

Seven Nursing School Trainees Fired by Scarborough Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Seven trainees of the Canadian School of Practical Nursing have been dismissed by Scarborough General Hospital which claims it was ordered to do so by "somebody" in the Ontario government.

The dismissed girls said today they have phoned the school later confirming that the trainees had been discharged because, the hospital's association with the school "might endanger our accredited position with the province."

Today Sister St. Rosaline said that since Health Minister Dymond of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario disapproved of the school, hospital authorities had decided to sever the connection.

She said Mr. Dymond said the Ontario cabinet would be asked to decide whether the school's licence should be cancelled. He said the health department felt the school had not set a satisfactory standard of instruction.

The school, a commercial venture, has graduated about 500 nursing assistants since it opened two years ago. Robert Burns, school director, said Mr. Dymond's department apparently did not like the "commercial" aspect of the school.

CAMPING GROUND ACCOMMODATION DEBATE SUBJECT

Want to Charge Fee Along Trans-Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A debate on whether charges should be made for camping grounds accommodation along the Trans- Canada Highway highlighted the second day of the federal - provincial tourist conference here Tuesday.

Delegates also heard a warning by John Fisher of Toronto, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, that travel revenue is not expanding as much as it should. Mr. Fisher blamed this partly on failure to meet the demand for accommodation and restaurants.

The debate on camping ground charges arose during a report by A. D. Colton, assistant deputy minister of northern affairs and national resources, who was presiding.

Eight provinces have joined in the program under which Ottawa pays 50 per cent of the cost of constructing picnic grounds and picnic sites along the Trans-Canada Highway. Quebec and Ontario are not participating.

INDIVIDUAL CHOICE

Mr. Colton said he "pretended" feeling in the provinces concerned that charges should be left to the discretion of the provinces.

Among those speaking against a uniform fee policy was Deputy Minister Guy E. Moore, Ontario's deputy minister of travel and publicity.

It was decided to shelve the matter pending a check to be carried out by the Canadian government travel bureau of policies and practices in existence in the northern United States.

Mr. Fisher told the meeting that of the Canadian Tourist Association was read to the conference. He spoke at length in his family, Mr. Fisher was unable to be present.

The report expressed concern that "Canada's tourist revenue is not increasing as it should." One of the reasons was that "we have failed to meet the increasing demand for good accommodation. Other countries have not only developed a reputation for hospitality."

SCENERY BEST ASSET

Canada's scenery is its greatest asset in attracting and pleasing American tourists, a report compiled by the Canadian government travel bureau suggested. Tourists' No. 1 complaint was the high prices.

The report, based on a survey carried out in late September and during October, was tabled by bureau director Alan Field.

China Great Question Mark in Asia Today

By JOHN G. McCONNELL
Publisher of The Montreal Star

Mr. McConnell returned recently from a six-week tour of Russia and the Far East. This is the first of a series of four articles giving his impressions gathered during the tour.

The possibility of a tabu world war continues to be a conversation piece in our part of the sphere.

It is a grim subject, but peculiarly our own. Having just circled the world I am struck by the absence of any talk elsewhere—even in places which might be the breeding grounds for it. Japan, Hong Kong, Thailand, in India and in Russia, you never heard the word mentioned.

The Russians are worried about China and the border dispute, but no one thinks it will mean a real outbreak of war. China has become the world's quescion mark.

So far as Russia is concerned, my deep feeling was that the war is over.

On a quick trip like mine, one can do little more than try and get a sense of things. I found myself comparing my journey with a visit to Germany soon after Hitler seized power. The same general mood of the country smelled of war. The Nazis were in control, in fact, and when I walked into a hotel lobby, there would be police agent rummaging in my bags' li didn't do me much harm.

On this trip, I found nothing like that. There was no fear, instead, a great deal of relaxed friendliness. Almost everywhere were going about their business, obviously absorbed in their own affairs, and apparently not bent on conquest or aggression.

It is, of course, early days. Pearl Harbor, and we all remember what we thought of the Japanese then, were charming and friendly, they go to church, they demonstrate their concern is with jobs and housing, they say Communists have won't go into town unless in civilian clothes. They are popular. There was that too because they lost the last war. Perhaps it goes deeper than that, but the impression is one of peace, not preparation for war.

The big business community is undecided on trade matters. The Japanese would have no trouble with the Americans and even some Western parties are too much about mainland

Just Another Working Day For Pope Enjoying Birthday

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John today celebrated his 78th birthday as just another working day.

The peasant's son who three weeks ago marked the start of his first year as spiritual leader of the world's Catholics, and who is said by Vatican sources to be enjoying special observance of his birthday.

His program for the day included the traditional pontifical mass and solemn audience to thousands of pilgrims.

The only outward sign of the occasion was the papal white and gold flags that flew over Vatican buildings.

Propose Shifting UNEF Cost To Shoulders of Big Powers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Delegations were receiving instructions from their governments today on a new proposal for financing the United Nations Emergency Force.

Seven of the eight countries manning the UNEF, which maintains the peace between Israel and Egypt—joined Tuesday in co-sponsoring a draft resolution aimed at solving the force's serious financial problems through voluntary contributions from the bigger powers.

Sweden was adjourned in the General Assembly's 82 - member political committee to enable Australia said a number of countries had to consult with their home capitals before committing themselves.

Informants said the proposal, which would slash the UNEF assessment against medium and small countries by 50 per cent, is almost certain to be approved by the committee. However, a vote is not expected until Friday.

Canada is among the co-sponsoring countries, along with Brazil, Colombia, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Yugoslavia, and Canadian delegate Arthur

Some People Do Anything To Get Votes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Nobody knows your age, said Jo Nahorney, "without my nickname."

And he said, it was a little hour when the Sailors Union of the Pacific ruled that nicknames could not be used on union election ballots.

Nahorney, 38, ran last year for the office of secretary-treasurer, but almost nobody voted for him, he said, because they didn't know who he was.

"I'm a rank-and-filer who lifted of being pushed around," he said in explaining why he went to court after he had his name into his legal name.

So this year against Wally Berger on the ballot in the two-months voting period opening Jan. 1 he'll be known as Jo Ezralia all will know: A. J. Packet Nahorney.

Two Who Fell 80 Feet Into Ocean Missing

BOSTON, Mass. (AP) — The United States Air Force men who fell 80 feet into the ocean from an Atlantic radar station were still missing today.

Two civilians who fell into the chopper waters with the servicemen were rescued within minutes from a rescue ship.

The four were being transferred from a rescue ship to Texas Tower II, 100 miles off the tip of Cape Cod, when the cable of lifting device broke.

A swift current apparently carried the two air force men out of sight.

Just Another Working Day For Pope Enjoying Birthday

—that a previous Pope John in the 14th century lived to be 90.

The 78-year-old Italian pontiff this morning blessed wax discs about four inches in diameter, with on one side a figure representing Christ as a victim on the Cross and Christ as a saint.

The benediction was performed in the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican Palace, where special prayers are said.

The discs, immersed by the Pope in holy water, holy oil and balm, will be given to pilgrims.

The Pope—reported to have lost 11 pounds in a busy year since his election Sept. 28, 1958—is in good health, Vatican said.

"See everything, turn a blind eye, a mouth of it, correct a little."

FORMULA SOUGHT TO PRESERVE CARIBOU HERDS

Dwindle to Perhaps 200,000 Animals

OTTAWA (CP) — An acceptable formula on which to base control of caribou slaughter is still being sought in discussions among federal departments and the provinces.

Without such control, some experts feel, the barren ground caribou, dwindled to perhaps 200,000 animals, may vanish as a useful economic resource.

The rifle in the hands of Indians, Eskimos and whites has brought the once-abundant herds to a low point—confined hunting plus the victims claimed by natural predators, is essential for survival a sig-and-tuck affair.

The federal - provincial meeting here has established several years ago to look into ways of preserving an animal that has been a prime source of food and shelter to Indians and Eskimos.

TALKS GO ON

Negotiations are continuing between the northern affairs and citizenship departmatnts, as guardians of the Eskimos and about 15,000 Indians, on how to lay down the guidelines. Provinces also are involved since many herds migrate.

Russia slaughters years ago suffered a similar drastic decline in herds of reindeer, similar to the caribou. The rifle was blamed and legislative action halted indiscriminate slaughter.

To date, efforts to reduce Canadian caribou herds have depended on persuasion. The Indian affairs branch of the citizenship department has been supplying supplies of fishing nets to reduce dependence on caribou meat and stepped up shipments of buffalo meat.

One stumbling block to any control is that tountitutionally the Indian is entitled to hunt and fish on any land to which he has free access.

House-Broken Lion Jailed In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—George, a house - broken, 35-pound African lion, is headed to be sprung from city jail here today. His pet's human mates with him well.

The nine-months-old lion was booked on an open charge and bunked in a cell near the drunk tank at 11:30 p.m. (CST) here Tuesday night.

It's a little rest. While fellow prisoners snored uneasily, George curled up with his stuffed dog-food shoved through the iron bars.

Lawyer Tech Downing said first thing he heard of the lion's adventure was a low growl. He said he looked up from his desk and there was Mr. Gridwyn - Mayer—there stood George.

Lawyer Ted Moore, said the trouble with George, an Oklahoma City lion, was his size. He asked police to hold George overnight until accommodations could be arranged in the city zoo.

"He's too big," said Moore. "He has taken over my apartment—he's the only one capable of trying to drive my car."

Russia Proposes Study of Way To Avoid Veto

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia today unexpectedly proposed a study of new procedures to eliminate the veto in a control commission for guiding a nuclear weapons test ban.

Hitherto, Russia has insisted on veto rights in the proposed seven-power commission.

United States and British delegates at the three-power talks on a test ban said they would have to study today's Soviet statement closely before they could reply at the meeting on Friday.

After the session, Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin told reporters he had urged the Western side to propose an alternative procedure to the veto system.

Russia originally listed seven points over which the veto rights should apply. Since the talks began months ago, the list has been whittled down to three—budgetary and financial matters.

Student Jailed

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Conrad Lamb, 20-year-old student at West Hill Collegiate, was sentenced to nine months in Guelphe and six months indeterminate in Mimicoreaking, possessing burglar tools and attempted armed robbery.

LONDON (Reuters) — Extra consumer goods worth 30,000,000 to 40,000 (about $7,644,000,000 at the official rate of exchange) will be made available to people in the Russian Federation, the largest Russian republic, Tass news agency reported Tuesday. In a report to the federation's supreme Soviet session in Moscow the chairman of the state planning committee, Nikolai Baibakov, said the goods will include textiles, footwear, sugar, meat and fish.

Russia Proposes Study of Way To Avoid Veto

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia today unexpectedly proposed a study of new procedures to eliminate the veto in a control commission for guiding a nuclear weapons test ban.

Hitherto, Russia has insisted on veto rights in the proposed seven-power commission.

United States and British delegates at the three-power talks on a test ban said they would have to study today's Soviet statement closely before they could reply at the meeting on Friday.

After the session, Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin told reporters he had urged the Western side to propose an alternative procedure to the veto system.

Russia originally listed seven points over which the veto rights should apply. Since the talks began months ago, the list has been whittled down to three—budgetary and financial matters.

Student Jailed

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Conrad Lamb, 20-year-old student at West Hill Collegiate, was sentenced to nine months in Guelphe and six months indeterminate in Mimicoreaking, possessing burglar tools and attempted armed robbery.

MORE CONSUMER GOODS

LONDON (Reuters) — Extra consumer goods worth 30,000,000 to 40,000 (about $7,644,000,000 at the official rate of exchange) will be made available to people in the Russian Federation, the largest Russian republic, Tass news agency reported Tuesday. In a report to the federation's supreme Soviet session in Moscow the chairman of the state planning committee, Nikolai Baibakov, said the goods will include textiles, footwear, sugar, meat and fish.

Co-Op Leader Who Sued Ford, A. Sapiro, Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Aaron Sapiro, 69, lawyer and co-operative who once sued Henry Ford for $1,000,000 dollars for alleged libelling the Jewish religion, died Monday night.

Sapiro was instrumental in founding the co-operative marketing movement in the United States. He also helped organize the Canadian wheat pools and the American tobacco co-operatives.

It was Sapiro's fame as an organizer of farm co-operatives that led to the suit against Ford which was settled out of court. Ford apologized.

Sapiro charged Ford with having damaged his reputation by charging that he had conspired with Jews seeking to win control of America's farm economy.

At the trial Ford disclaimed from the witness stand any anti-Semitic bias. He said he had been misled without disclosing the terms.

After the trial Ford personally reported that the settlement to Sapiro was $140,000.

'If War Thrust Upon Us, We Fight' Says Nehru, But Hopes to Avoid It

NEW DELHI (CP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today that "if war is thrust upon us we will fight" but said he will do all he can to prevent it by every means in his power.

Nehru was opening a debate in the lower house of Parliament on Chinese troop movements into China and the border dispute between them.

Nehru said his proposals to Premier Chou En-lai for settling the dispute were "reasonable and honorable, both for India and China."

Shouting "Shame! Shame!," most members vociferously attacked Chou En-lai's attitude in Nehru's speech on India's Communist neighbor.

Nehru said he had been "amazed and ashamed" at recent demonstrations in Calcutta in which local Communists had backed Communist China in the border dispute.

"What am I to say to people who reject the sun from which they spring and the nationality which gives them protection?" Nehru demanded.

At this point members of the lower house erupted. Veteran observers could recall no comparable scene since the days of the bitterest days of the House. The two Communist members sat in silent.

As the prime minister finished speaking, pandemonium broke out. Members rushed to the centre aisle in a processional of about 2,000 Socialist, headed by a band and a flag bearer with women and children, demanding a stronger government policy against China.

Nehru said he stood by the basic principles of non-alignment and peaceful coexistence, and it was because of these that there was a clear mandate on whether it wished these policies to continue.

Nehru faces 19 motions on Indian - Chinese relations—mostly critical of the government—submitted by the Socialist, Independent and right-wing parties.

Several of the motions expressed concern because insufficient steps had been taken to safeguard India's border, and demanded the expulsion of the Chinese by forces.

OASA President Stresses Need of Lights for Softball As Sponsor Honors Bobcats

Mr. Clarence Perkin, president of the OASA, stressed the need of lights for softball fields in his address, when addressing members of the Belleville Bobcats. The Bobcats were the guests of honor at the team banquet last night.

Mr. Perkin and his gracious wife, Mrs. Perkin, were also guests as sponsor Robert Temple played host to the Bobcats at a delicious dinner and evening of entertainment at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The Bobcats were Belleville and District Softball League champions and OASA Intermediate "AA" finalists this past season.

"I have been asked by your league president why teams from your district do not win many provincial softball championships", began Mr. Perkin. "It is not because you do not have the players, in quality and quantity, my boys because you do not play enough ball, that I am quite sure.

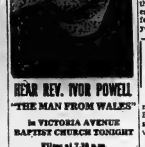
"This year your club was handicapped greatly by injuries or we might well be honoring the championship here tonight and not the runners-up. But the real trouble in this district is the lack of lights for your softball diamonds. I cannot understand why because hundreds of much smaller communities all over the country have one or more well lit playing fields.

"In my home, Simcoe, there is a population of 8,500 and yet within a radius of 25 miles alone we have 18 artificial diamonds with lights. That is just an example. You have in Belleville with nearly 20,000 people where softball appears to be very popular and you have many fine men in your sponsor Bob Temple here, who could donate the lights if you do not have one diamond with lights". Mr. Perkin said.

Introduced by 1st vice-president Don Lee, Mr. Perkin congratulated Bob Temple and his team. "With the fine spirit in evidence here tonight I am sure that next year at this time you will be on top with an OASA championship. And I find it hard to imagine what kind of banquet Bob would have given you boys had you won that final game against Hamilton this grand affair tonight", he said.

MANY GUESTS PRESENT

Seated at the head table with Bob Temple, besides Mr. and Mrs. Perkin, were Mrs. Temple, Mrs. Don Lee, OASA vice-president; Harry Morgan, president of the B. and D. League, and Mrs. Morgan; Floyd Crawford, team captain; and Gordon Carver, sports editor of the Ontario Intelligencer.



Other guests included Mrs. Phyllis Foster, Mr. Harry Mullin, Al Kelleher, representing the district umpires' association, Bruce Miller and Gerry Alexander.

Mr. Lee paid tribute to the local league president and to the Bobcats as well as the press and radio for the fine co-operation and for the excellent job being done here by softball.

Harry Morgan presented the Bill Ott Trophy to captain Floyd Crawford and Manager Bob Temple and D. league title. Crawford responded on behalf of the boys and the wonderful sportsmanship he had made it such an enjoyable softball season.

Temple called on each member of the team present to come forward and accept a certificate from the league and also from the sponsor, which will be available shortly. Each player also received a team jacket.

Team manager Bill Old presented beautiful gifts of cuff links, a desk set and an electric clock to Temple, "Our kindly old boss who has been always a great all around guy", on behalf of the players and their wives.

District Darts League Results

H. Young turned in the top three-darts throw, a dart player's dream of a perfect 180. Young's three triple 20's is a rare feat.

Following is the up-to-date team standings: Skyliners 36, G-Men 45, Murrays 41, McEvoys 41, Carters 35, RCAF 34, Hourtons 32, Legion 28, AMAF 27, Parsons 24, LaPalme 23.

Kiwanians Told About Work of Credit Bureau

An outline of the workings of the Credit Bureau and its early history was given last night at the local Kiwanis Club Tuesday at the weekly luncheon meeting in the Kiwanis Centre by Kiwanian Harry Blume.

Mr. Blume, manager of the local Credit Bureau and president of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Ontario, described how the bureaus, of which there are 30 in Ontario, compile information on individuals for the protection of employers, banks, business houses and retailers who subscribe to the bureau. The bureau is composed of two departments, the collection agency and the credit reporting department.

The files which contain public information, such as judgments, mortgages and other legal encumbrances, a full newspaper clipping service on matrimonial matters and buying habits give a good indication as to whether a person is a good or bad credit risk he explained.

"The Credit Bureau doesn't give or turn down credit," he said. "The subscribing member is warned not to give opinions on a person's credit, but only to supply give the bureau subscriber pertinent information on a person's credit standing and it is up to the subscriber whether the credit is granted or withheld."

Reports can be given either orally or in written form, and the bureau can supply tabulated specifically for industry, such as accounts receivable, pay-roll of the employer, petroleum, finance and automobile reports, he stated.

In addition a monthly bulletin, containing information on collection court actions, "no liability" notices, etc., is sent out to all subscribers.

Mr. Blume particularly stressed the fact that we not collect only derogatory information but compile/money well. Clippings on individuals are collected from nine newspapers, including the Ontario Intelligencer, he said.

He also gave a brief outline of the history of credit bureaus, which date back to 1803 when the organization of the Society for the Protection of Credit was formed. The Credit Bureau became to North America in 1869 and was one of the earliest credit organization.

Mr. Blume disclosed the Associated Credit Bureaus of Canada is setting up a plan whereby bureau can purchase files from one another on persons leaving from one locality to that of other.

He suggested people who plan on moving to another locality notify their local Credit Bureau so their files may be forwarded to the new community.

The prize for three-year-old and thanked on behalf of the club by president Gerry Willhart, chairman for the day.

An induction ceremony conducted by Mark Vanner is to be held to officially induct two new members into the club.

The new Kiwanians are Brian Young, a native of Hampton England, who has been in Belleville in 1857 as assistant personnel agent for the Canada Steel Hydro and Douglas Stock, a native of Belleville, a real estate salesman.

Mr. Young was introduced by Lorne McDougall, and gave a brief and informative address describing the organization of the Kiwanis, including the local and international history; Kiwanis rules particularly that of regular attendance and club objectives.

He then presented them with their Kiwanis kits containing pins, membership buttons, lapel pins and membership certificates and extended a welcome on behalf of the club.

President Wishart added his personal welcome to the new members.

Another new addition, George Hogan, a former member of the Bath-Millhaven Kiwanis Club, was also welcomed into the local club. He was introduced by Wilf Mills and presented with the Kiwanis lapel pin.

President-Wishart announced the Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the Elmer the Safety Elephant campaign in schools in the Centennial area. President Wishart and Lee McKee attended the safety committee accompanied by Sgt. Dennis Robson, local safety officer, at the opening of the campaign at the Bayview Public School, Kingston, on Wednesday.

He also announced the annual Father Night will be held this coming Monday evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front Street, and urged one hundred per cent attendance.

For those unable to attend, a round-table to record attendance only, will be held Tuesday noon at the Kiwanis Centre.

CHINA IS GREAT

China. But Japan has its eye on the mainland and the old channels of trade. The Japanese industrialists are very important politically. Perhaps, as the United States garrisons withdraw, this may lead to something new, some new alignment. But, as of now, there is nothing to fear from Japan.

In India, peace-minded India, there is of course nothing to fear either. Prime Minister Nehru has as much reason for concern as any head of government. There are racial and religious rifts with Pakistan on the one hand. There are Chinese ambitions on the other. Yet, after an interview with Nehru at his house in New Delhi, I came away convinced that the prime minister of India is thinking beyond the immediate causes of tension and beyond war itself.

New Delhi is, as much a gossip centre as any other world capital. Like most new arrivals I got many unofficial briefings before my meeting with Mr. Nehru. The New Delhi consensus was that Nehru had been terrified in 1955 and '56 that global war was imminent. One of the reasons for the pushbutton hard for mediation, reckless of his reputation in the world, was his fear war might break out overnight. Now, my informants said, Nehru had relaxed. He is convinced the cold war is over and that Russia presents no threat to anyone. He is not convinced — and who can blame him? — that Mainland China stands in the same category.

CHINA WORRIES NEHRU

Nehru believes that Russia is a "satisfied" country without external objectives. China, far behind Russia in development, is deeply restless. It is under a standably obsessed by China. It may sound incredible but I got the impression he is as puzzled and as little informed about the inner life of China as I'll get back to that later.

First let's talk to me about the impression he makes on a visitor. I have met few men about the man and his manner and appearance.

The physical impression is different. The photographers, and they are legion, overwhelmingly have given us a Nehru of harsh angles — handsome but prickly, with a touch of arrogance. Actually Nehru has a much more sensitive face than his photographs show. The face is bland and delicate, shadowed by years of suffering—he spent ten years in British prisons — have etched countless fine lines upon it. He has a warm probing concern for all around him. Every corner of the globe. This shows in the Nehru's deep-set eyes. The voice is the key. Every inflection is modulated, everything toned down. There is nothing strident in talk and fine fingers move slowly across the table. He talks quietly, his mastery of English something that I envied. There is no trace of tact beneath but as with every great man moved by a sense of his own personal quality, a sort of spirituality. He has no time for cant, he speaks with his heart or not, he is after all one of the handful of figures of this age. China's attention has been simple practical turn. He is concerned not merely in terms of aggression on the Tibetan border. He does not relish the present mood of the giant to the north. Unmistakably of the Soviet Union, but rather to the extent that China is developing a specially peaceful, he said that, during the rare periods in the past when China achieved a high degree of centralized power, it had always become interested with its own might. I gathered his big worry was that this time it has. He also thought Peking had gone too far too fast with its rapid communization of China, breaking down the old family system. It's only fair to point out that other experts disagreed, believing the system was breaking down before and that the new order of things was permanent.

LACKS INFORMATION

I got the impression there were large gaps in his knowledge of China. He as much as admitted that the Indian mission to that country were a series of explorations. "You get some very interesting reports," he said, "but the country is so vast." We got on the subject of China's population. "You hear that every year — that they are limiting population. The fact is that every year it is that the population is increasing." He obviously was as lacking in basic information as I was. There are many so-called experts.

Nehru is most concerned about India's population. He considers it the basic problem in his domestic policy. In a way India is in the grip of its own progress. It isn't a matter of the high rate of improvement in health. People are not dying so quickly. Therefore it is government policy to limit population. "When we established cliniks, the women flocked to them" the prime minister told me. "In fact, after they have had a few children they go in for sterilization." I asked him was there any tradition in India against birth control. He answered no, though he added the Roman Catholics, all around us in Asia, are not many of them. They have no great influence."

The conversation turned to Soviet technicians in India and China. Nehru thinks they too are regarded as revolutionary by the Chinese. He didn't think that fear. The problem, he said, is to hang on to them. "We have got a lot of them here working in India. We get them to do for a few years things that Russia is clamoring to have back home."

Later on, I met one of them on the plane to Moscow. He was a big, fair man who was glad to be getting home. He and his wife had lived together, worked together, brought in their own food and had been cut off by the Chinese by any other way.

Nehru may have gathered that my conversation with Mr. Mehta did not centre upon the war threat on the Indian border. This is the basis for much of the "peace and coexistence" line of Russian and Chinese propaganda. Privately, They all said Nehru is not taking the threat lightly and that the Indian army, despite its frail idealist is a tough and efficient fighting force. He appeared of late to lag behind the Chinese people whose nationalism is aroused. There has been more outspoken than ever.

CALCULATED MOVE

Shrewd observers believe this is a calculated move by Nehru. As a disciples of Gandhi, a leader in the great passive resistance movement against the British, Nehru is conscious of his place in history as an apostle of peace. If circumstances force him to call in the army, he knows that his own people pushed him to do so.

The first position, when taken, they said, will be a military one. It will be used by military force to sustain a tough political position. What if it goes beyond that stage? I asked them. My informants believe that Nehru will be shrewd enough to avoid that stage. Later on in the day I put the same impression to him.

It is impossible not to like Nehru, his unabashed humanity, his deep simplicity. When our interview was over — and he did not rush me — he walked with me out of the sittingroom along the passage-way, down the front steps. He escorted me to my car. This, mind you, was the prime minister of three hundred and fifty million people.

'Not Impaired, Intoxicated' Says Accused

TRENTON — Frank Wood of R.R. 2, Carrying Place, charged with impaired driving in Trenton yesterday with "impaired driving" when asked by Magistrate T. Y. Wills if he were satisfied with the charge, replied "No sir, I am not impaired, I was intoxicated."

Sergeant J. Steenburg of the Trenton police force testified that on November 14 he had been called to the scene of an accident at the corner of Dundas and Division Streets. Wood admitted that a car, owned by Leslie Simmons of Carrying Place and driven by the accused, had struck a car driven by Fred Ireland of Glen Miller, in the rear, causing a considerable amount of damage. Wood had readily admitted that he had been the driver of the car which caused the damage, and when he was brought to the police station he had submitted to a humiliating hilarious gaiety and depression. The sergeant observed that the accused gave evidence of being "impaired" rather than "intoxicated". Magistrate Wills asked with a smile if this observation was based on previous experience with the accused and the latter admitted that such was the case.

Sergeant Bradshaw who also had been a witness to the accident, stated that he had been just coming off duty and was on his way home in his car when Wood's vehicle came to a standstill for the traffic light to change at the intersection. He said that Wood appeared to be under the influence of liquor. Wood was driving had jumped out of his car, opened the door of the trunk, and started away from the scene. Upon investigation he had found that the box contained six bottles of wine, which evidence had been taken to the hospital suffering from shock and the wine was received when the collision occurred.

Magistrate Wills, after considering the evidence, included that there was no doubt as to the charge with the sentence on an additional charge of having liquor in a place other than the accused man's residence, and meted out the overall penalty of $100 and costs, or three months in jail. The liquor charge was a fourth offence.

Group Accepted Into Membership

TRENTON — Members of the executive of the recently formed Trenton and District unit of Association for Retarded Children have been informed by W. R. Kirk, Provincial Director for the association at the provincial level, that the local association has been accepted into the membership of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children and a charter was enclosed in the communication. A meeting of the unit called in the early part of December, it is hoped that a charter for the local group will be devised and forwarded to the provincial headquarters for ratification. The appointment of a board of directors and an advisory council also be discussed at this meeting.

From all reports available at the moment, the association has met with considerable success in the door-to-door canvas for funds to expand the present school facilities in Trenton. Public interest in this project is evinced by the questions the canvassers have been asked during the campaign.

Both Frankford, Wooler Will Get Dial Phones

TRENTON — All of the two-letter five-figure telephone numbering districts in effect in nearby Frankford and Wooler on December 4 are contained in a directory supplement to be mailed within the next few days to all customers in these two communities and in Trenton.

"The new numbers will come into use early Sunday morning, December 6, coincident with the inauguration of dial service in Frankford and Wooler and the interconnection of local calling among Trenton, Frankford and Wooler telephones," J. E. Parker, Bell Telephone manager here, pointed out. "Because of these changes in numbers, the supplement should not be used for Frankford and Wooler numbers until December 6."

The directory supplement is printed on pink paper and has a gummed edge so that it can be easily fastened between pages of the present directory.

Mr. Parker reminded Frankford and Wooler customers to pick up their copies of the supplement at their local offices prior to the changeover on December 6.

The new Frankford-numbers will feature the exchange name "Frankford" as the first figure, and the Wooler numbers will become those starting with "Trenton-Frankford-Wooler local calling area by dialling only the last four figures of the telephone numbers," Mr. Parker explained.

Because of the greatly increased number of telephones in the Trenton-Frankford-Wooler calling area of Frankford and Wooler, monthly telephone rates for exchange service in these centres will be raised to conform with those now in effect in present in Trenton, Mr. Parker pointed out. There will be no change in Trenton rates, he added.

Court Is Told Of Wild Chase; Driver Jailed

TRENTON — In magistrate's court here yesterday, in the case of Ronald Lane, charged jointly with careless driving, failing to report an accident, and operating on a town street at speeds over 30 miles per hour, Sergeant Bradshaw unfolded the story of a wild early-morning ride through the streets of Trenton with the police cruiser clocking speeds of around 70 miles per hour in pursuit of a car, driven by the accused. Sergeant Bradshaw told how the Belleville police officer had observed a car driving at a reckless pace on Front Street. The car did not "have" any lights and when the cruiser approached, it had turned onto Elgin Street and sped along in front of the cruiser to Murphy Street, when the driver made a sharp right turn and proceeded to Middle Street, turned into Dundas and took a "short cut" through Victoria Park, raced out onto Division Street, and then back onto Front Street again, with the cruiser in pursuit. The car then made an abrupt stop at Murray Street, when, failing to make a turn, it hit the curb, ran up on the lawn, anchor pole, shearing off the bumper. The driver and three passengers in the car had been considerably shaken up by the impact.

Referring to the charge of careless driving, Sergeant Bradshaw court heard evidence that on November 15 at 11 p.m. Lane had been the driver of a car which struck a car driven by Earl Hatfield, on the Trenton bridge, and had sped away without stopping. The car driven by Mr. Hatfield, although both suffered damage, was still driveable, had managed to secure the licence number of the fleeing car, which proved to be the property of the accused.

S. G. Robertson, Q.C., appearing for the Crown, suggested that this case would be called for a jail term, as the accused had appeared in Magistrate Wills' court of the law. Magistrate Wills agreed and imposed a jail sentence, with the accused man's licence being suspended for three months.

Woman Hunter Bags Two Deer in Buckshot Lake Area

Well girls, maybe you "can't get a man with a gun" as the song advises — but you can bag a couple of deer if you're a crack shot with a rifle.

And a local woman, Mrs. Arthur Thompson of 27 Jones Street has a quiver full of the experiences of venison to prove it.

One of two women in a party of seven hunters, Mrs. Thompson went deer hunting for the first time this year and when the hunting season opened November 15th.

They camped for a week at the Thompson cottage at Buckshot Lake.

On the third day out, Mrs. Thompson, brought down a three-year-old doe, and on the following day she bagged a three-year-old buck both weighing between 175 and 180 pounds each, with her trusty 30-30 Marlin rifle.

Other members of the hunting party, including her husband, Arthur, and daughter-in-law Patsy Ann, Eddy Thompson, returned home empty-handed.

The men were so sure as was that they returned for a second week of deer hunting the following week-end. "This time they came home with three deer.

Mrs. Thompson said she accompanied her husband deer hunting trip last year but "didn't let to do any shooting."

The deer were also shared among members of the party which also included Mrs. Thompson's brother, Chris Hawes of Arden, Cec. Jack Whiteman and Joe Seanes, both of Belleville.

Sudden Splurge Of Delinquency Puzzles Court

TRENTON — Robert Howe, 17, pleaded guilty to the charge of theft of an automobile in Collingwood on October 30th, when he appeared in magistrate's court here yesterday. Constable Russell King testified that on the 17 year old youth of a chain store in Trenton had called the police and informed them that Dr. Gordon Hall had taken a shirt and a pair of trousers from the store. Howe was later brought to the police station and searched by police and found a travel alarm clock on his person and he had admitted that the theft had been his.

Upon further investigation, it developed that Howe had driven to Trenton, where he spent the night with a friend, Gary Fowler.

When asked for comment, S. G. Robertson, Q.C., appearing for the Crown, said that his sentence would be "based on the sudden burst of delinquency. Magistrate Wills stated that the matter deserved some consideration and said that, in all fairness to Gary Fowler, that there should be a pre-sentence report made of him and that he was remanded for sentence until December 1st.

William R. Lane of Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving. Constable J. Vickers testified that he had been called to the intersection of vicinity of 281 Front Street on November 7th. The car driven by the accused had apparently severed across the road and struck a car, driven by Mr. Sheppard. Mrs. Sheppard had received facial cuts and bruises and had been taken to the hospital. Mr. Lane had insisted that his wife and children were in his car at the time but when the constable called the house Mrs. Lane said that such was not the case. Constable Vickers said that there was a strong odor of alcohol on Lane's breath. Mr. Robertson, was of the opinion that a substantial fine should be imposed and he therefore, his agreed levying a $100 fine and costs.

Let's Welcome This Battle

Viewing with alarm must certainly be today's most popular international pastime. Perhaps there were always participants in this painfully pleasant way of passing the time, which stores up as compensation for future calamities the satisfaction of having predicted them. But modern improvement in communications must have multiplied the number of prophets, by providing them with a world-wide coverage of ominous news, while at the same time letting men of every nation know of their forebodings.

When, however, one of the prophets of future woes is as eminent a person as Dr. Claude Bissell of the University of Toronto, it behooves even the most obstinate optimist to cheer up and chuckles long enough to listen. Dr. Bissell, in an address to the Institute of Canadian Life Underwriters, Toronto Chapter, has added his voice to the already swelling chorus of those warning the world of a new threat from the East. Moreover, in his case he does not just substitute the possibility of nuclear strangulation for the threat of nuclear irradiation—he adds to the coming Communist challenge to produce goods, the challenge to produce thinkers. The Russian challenge, he says, is three-fold, scientific, technological and cultural. The scientific and technological challenges, of course, are implied in the suggestion that the West faces a stern fight for world markets. Dr. Bissell, though, says that there is competition on the cultural front, and declares "if we neglect our own creative arts, we may be sure that we will make no impression on those different civilizations of the East for which art is as necessary as daily bread."

Now we agree with Dr. Bissell's conclusion that under circumstances like this the nations of the West ought to strain every muscle and brain cell to meet the Communist challenge and to produce more goods, more and better scientists and technologists and a higher standard of culture.

Yet we cannot escape the conviction that, if Dr. Bissell is right and the challenge is not just in the scientific and technological fields but in the cultural field too, this is good news for the West and for the world.

Some maintain that a high standard of scientific and cultural achievement is not synonymous with a high moral standard. We doubt this assertion. True, there have been wicked men who possessed to a high degree the knowledge and evil men who could lay claim to being cultured, but we refuse to believe that if a whole nation achieves a high level of both scientific and cultural achievement it can possibly be a wicked nation. If the Communists beat the West in the sort of three-fold race which Dr. Bissell describes, it will not only be after some startling changes in Communist society as we know it today. Without a respect for the humanities, a love of liberty and a release from the deadening hand of dogma, no surpassing of the West in the cultural realm is possible.

In fewer, therefore, that in such a race the major reasons for fearing Russian superiority would be removed by the very changes necessary for the Communists to achieve such a victory. The danger, and it is grave, is not in a competition in which there is civil war, on a challenge confined to economic warfare, in which the lower living standards of the Communist lands would be a powerful weapon. But if the Communist lands try to match us in all ways, they must inevitably come to accept many of the standards which we hold dear.

It will be, too, that in the winning of such an all-out race, the West will have to accept some changes in its present principles, will have to cease to value the strip-teaser above the professor and the gossip columnist above the theatre critic.

There remains one disquieting feature. Such a total competition is fiftinitely to be preferred to total war, but if both sides enter it with their stockpiles of hydrogen bombs intact there will almost inevitably come a time when some inspired patriot will feel compelled to drop one to keep his countrymen from the terrible sin of accepting Communism, or accepting capitalism, as the case may be.

Yet, if the world is to survive, it can only be in peace and only some eventual synthesis of the two systems could make permanent peace possible.

Strictly Personal
Specialists And General Practitioners

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

"You're quite right," said the doctor sitting next to me at dinner, "about the difficulty in finding a physician who is willing to go out on house calls — especially in the city. But there's a method to my madness.

"There always is," I replied. "That's why I have to ask you pat answers. What's the other side to this one?"

"Well," he continued, "one of my colleagues is a heart specialist. He was called by a new patient with the flu, and decided to make an exception and visit the patient at home.

"A few weeks later, he was treating one of that company's patients, a man. The man's wife told her sister-in-law about the fine heart specialist they had. Upon hearing his name, the sister-in-law replied, 'Specialist indeed! He was out to treat a cold sore for flu a couple of weeks ago.

"This doctor immediately lost a patient, added my dinner companion. "He was no longer considered a specialist. Ordinary man, but an ordinary GP who took care of sneezes and sniffles. His practice grew pretty fast."

"What can we do about that?" I asked.

"It's not a simple matter," he said. "No doubt some doctors are lazy and incompetent to go out at night to treat a sore throat or a sneezing patient. On the other hand, as long as patients themselves are snobs about their doctors, many doctors are going to be willing to downgrade themselves in their practices.

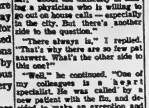
"As you know," he continued, "right now, the number of GPs in proportion to the public is pretty small — because the prestige and money in long years of training are all in favor of the specialties.

"Well, I'll get over it. Specialists can't be taken born are still delivered by GPs; only the wealthier urban families can afford obstetricians. In a sense, the GP is the most valuable man in medicine — but he is losing status, and most lads in medical school aspire to some form of 'specialty.'

"Is there any way to combine them?" I inquired, "so that we can get the benefit of specialized training and the personal attention in the general practitioner?"

"I think that group practice is the coming answer," he said. "A half-dozen doctors banded together in an office can give you both, more efficiently and more economically. Except in a few rare specialties, I think that the group practice principle is coming to an end in America."

Carolinians Behave Well



Boston Herald

One swallow doesn't make a summer and one desegregated basketball game doesn't make a civil rights program. But the gracious reception Guinea's Sekou Toure received in North Carolina recently is heartening to all friends of American democracy.

North Carolinians are famous for their hospitality, and they have always been courteous to foreigners, whether white skinned or colored.

What caused the racist reception special was that Governor Hodges and other state leaders deliberately arranged a social recital pattern in order to include North Carolina's Negroes in the welcome to the African chief of state. There were interracial meetings, and interracial planning of the whole affair. The race-conscious North Carolina this produced no public protests or unpleasantness.

North Carolina is to be congratulated for giving the head of the world's newest nation so good an impression of our new-born democracy. The state should

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 25, 1938

Britain turned today to the scientist in his laboratory and to the fisherman in overalls in her fight to cope with Germany's mine warfare, which a naval authority termed an "extremely grave menace." Officials said they had been unsuccessful in bringing to the surface for inspection, one of Germany's "magnetic" mines and until they do they are seriously handicapped. Meanwhile, explosive experts, ski sorts of scientists and electrical experts are kept busy trying to find a counter-weapon for Germany's latest underwater menace. More than two hundred German mines have been washed up on the coast of Eastern England, it was announced officially.

Police will be examined for some clue to the new Nazi mines. Trawlermen have intensified their efforts — the most dangerous job in the navy — instead of sweeping the sea lanes on which Britain depends for food. Whether the mine is magnetic . . . one that explodes by the magnetic field produced by a ship passing over it, or acoustic . . . one exploded by the sound of a ship's propellers, or a combination of both . . . type, is not known and will not be known until one is lifted from the bottom of the sea and taken to pieces.

Naval authorities said that the Admiralty, profiting by the experience in combatting mines during the last war, was aware of the reported new device. Certainly no other warfare is designed to close British ports to shipping and starve the country depends but in the opinion of naval authorities it is not shown that Germany has discovered that Britain cannot be impounded upon to starve Britain.

LOVE'S MIXTURE

Love's mixture is like that of the earth, God-formed and enriched by every element in the mystical laboratory of Earth. A man's love is like the soil in the choicest of elements and constantly being renewed. Nothing is pure.

A favorite poem of mine is Thomas Moore's "Love and Memory." In it is the poem "Paradise and the Peri." It is the story of an Angel turned out of Heaven and the only way back was to gain something from earth. Many things of the most bovine character were presented, but the final gift to Heaven was the repentance of a man of former evil deeds. The Angel took those words and tears, and was readmitted to the Heaven from which he had come.

THE FOLLY OF CONCEIT

By EDGAR A. GUEST

You can never tell what the other man knows,
You can never guess from his face or his shoes
If he's a fool or a wise man who knows.
It's safer and wiser always to suppose
That he is as clever as you.

So beware of conceit and the danger that lies
In believing that you know it all.
It is folly to think that you only are wise.
If you do, you have started to fall.
Never sneer at a foe, for you never can tell
Just how much he is liable to do.
Give him credit for fighting as hard as ye will,
And for being as clever as you.

Plainfield Home Operated by Board

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants, Incorporated at Plainfield has since its inception aimed for the severely mentally retarded infant. With the permission of the Honorable M. B. Dymond, Minister of the Health of Ontario, it has been granted a licence for the operation of a hospital for the mentally retarded infant as of January 1st, 1958.

It behooves the writer on behalf of the Board of Governors of this institution to bring to the public knowledge the fact that although it has been stated in your columns last Saturday, that O.H.M.R.F. is a privately operated institution, that on the contrary the Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants, is operated by a duly elected board of directors and is a non-profit organization.

It must be pointed out that Mentally Retarded Week" coinciding with the American and Canadian "Retarded Children's Week" pertains to OHMRI as well, as to all other institutions dealing with the cause of the mentally retarded, be it infant, educable children or adults.

A 64-page progress report giving details of the purpose and operation came off the press a few days ago and will be sent to the public on request and there is no charge. Also financial campaign is a mailing campaign only and is conducted through the mails.

There are at present 46 infants in the hospital. The cause of each mental retardation can be helped and OHMRI has been formed to help them those unfortunates has been a great stimulant to the medical profession and the whole movement.

Utilities Chairman Answers Inquiry

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
To our question in newsprint, Mr. Sherman, 215 Albert Street.

We saw with interest we read Mr Sherman's letter of Nov. 18, in the Ontario Intelligencer in reference to the compulsory deposit of $10 required by the Belleville Utilities Commission when a contract is signed for domestic hydro service.

The Belleville Public Utilities belongs to and is owned by the citizens of the city. We are the elected commissioners or trustees are charged with the responsibility of operating the Utilities by sound efficient business methods providing good public relations and at the same time protecting the financial interest of our citizens.

Mr. Sherman has stated from the statistics that there are 7,144 homes or apartments in Belleville. Of these 2,000 are contracts and at $10 each it would make a total of $20,000 in the ordinary bank. Interest over a ten-year period the Utilities would lose a substantial income of $3,238.43.

Approximately Mr. Sherman in his game of financial bulldup did not ask the interest we were required to pay this deposit but took for granted that we were receiving 2% on deposit.

The policy of the Commission in this regard is that customers signing a contract for hydro service, have the confidence of financial responsibility to meet their obligations and conditions. Therefore, home owners are not required to pay a deposit because of poor credit or business or apartments when the tenant signs a contract but he will be responsible for the payment of the accounts of his tenants if not paid by them. All others shall pay a deposit of ten dollars on the signing of the

While I like (as you know) to guide this column mainly along the lines of questions asked by readers, sometimes things come up that readers don't ask about, because they haven't heard much about them.

One of these is an aspect of heart disease. Everybody is aware, by now, that coronary (or circulatory) disease is the most common cause of death today.

Even cancer is only a lagging second.

Most people, I think, believe that the "heart attack," or sudden stoppage in the coronary artery, is the most important type of heart fatality. It is the one which comes with little or no warning, to be sure, but it is not the commonest one.

Analysis by Carl Murschenhelm, of New York, a few years ago, called attention to congestive heart failure and, in particular, the importance of various lung conditions as the original cause of it.

There are, of course, other causes of congestive heart failure, but he gave us most convincing evidence of lung troubles as the most prevalent.

This, I urge you to keep in mind, when you come to the conclusion that I am talking about tuberculosis. It is only one of the things causing such. There is asthma. There is emphysema. There is bronchitis. There is a number of less familiar ailments.

Now here is the important point. We cannot always foretell the coming of a "heart attack." Indeed, we are shocked at times when they occur. But we can immediately after someone has had a thorough physical examination and appeared to be in good health. The coronary happens to a part of that body at such times (although not always) some widow finds a way warning.

Congestive failure, on the other hand, is a gradual thing, and for that reason it gives us a chance to do something about it.

Dr. Dr. Muschenheim pointed out, illnesses involving the lungs may, in many instances, put an overload on the heart. This overload may eventually become addressed.

After a bout with any lung ailment of consequence, do nothing.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

LUNG TROUBLE MOST PREVALENT CAUSE OF CONGESTIVE HEART FAILURE

become complacent when you get through the acute stage successfully. Exchange afterward will often pay wonderful dividends.

For, if some added strain on the heart follows, it is one of the things that can be aided by breathing. There is not the slightest doubt in Dr. Muschenheim's mind that years can be added to a person's life and I entirely agree with him.

Drugs to aid breathing and to remove excess fluid from the tissues, low-salt diets, proper breathing exercises and sometimes special devices to aid breathing, even the use of oxygen in certain cases, all can be helpful.

This, to me, is an excellent example of what we mean by preventive medicine. If one is to be effective, it should start as soon as the need can be detected. And that, of course, means checking with your doctor even though you "feel pretty good."

Dear Dr. Molner: Can you tell me the names of some of the new medicines that can be used for bronchitis and other lung infections? Are they really useful for athlete's foot? — Mrs. R. P.

You mean the medications that have been developed lately. I've mentioned previously. They are useful in many conditions in that they are very useful for some types of fungus, but don't help others. The "broad spectrum" type are among those it does attack.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is leukoplakia a form of cancer? What is the cure? — Mrs. R. P.

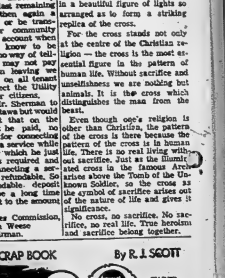
This refers to small, thickened white patches in the mouth or on lip or tongue. Leukoplakia is not cancer but may be, however, what is called a "pre-cancerous condition." And such should be removed by simple surgery before they have time to turn into something worse — meaning, of course, malignancy.

Pemphigus can be cured! It troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other local problems, write to me in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c in coin to cover handling.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE CROSS AND TRIUMPH



As one looks up the Champs-Elysees in Paris at night to the Arch of Triumph, he is amazed to see a contrast and before the service is commenced.

When the tenant moves and gives notice to the landlord that his meter is read and his $10 deposit is applied on his bill and any amount remaining over the amount of the bill is refunded to the customer.

Most tenants undoubtedly would pay their own domestic hydro bill on moving, then again a few would move to another city. Then another community and not pay their account when moving from the municipality before. As we have no way of telling who will move and who will not demand accounts on leaving we require a deposit on all tenants and discourage the utility investment of our citizens.

We wonder Mr. Sherman to our city from Ottawa but would further point out that on the ten-dollar deposit he paid, no charge is made for connecting a service and is not refundable. So also is the $5 deposit paid in would be a long time collecting interest at the amount of $5.

Board Allows Carports in Old Section of City

Mr. R. L. Kennedy and V. S. Milburn, members of the Ontario Municipal Board, are in the city for a two-day sitting conducting hearings in connection with building and zoning regulations in both the old and new sections of the city.

Yesterday the board members approved of a building by-law amendment which allows the building of carports in the old section of the city and reserved judgment on another proposed amendment which would allow construction of warehouses in a "C" class district of the old section of the city.

At the same time the board members suggested certain amendments to the by-law which would provide for parking facilities and which would make for specific definitions regarding setback outside.

Also heard was an appeal against the decision of the local committee of adjustment in which committee members claimed they had no jurisdiction to rule on the request of Black's Wholesale for a change in building regulations which would allow construction of a warehouse in the East Street Street area.

The board upheld the decision of the committee of adjustment, ruling that the committee had no jurisdiction to grant the request.

Board members indicated that when their suggested amendments were written into the city by-law it would be passed without further hearings.

Today the Municipal Board members are conducting a hearing at which objections to the proposed zoning by-law for the annexed areas will be heard.

Alderman Les Digby, chairman of the city planning committee, noted that some minor objection to the by-law was expected.

Foremen and Their Ladies Hear Informative Address About 'Psychology of Color'

Color affects our behavior, our capacity to work, our appetites—and the colors we prefer indicate personality traits.

These startling revelations were made last night by Mrs. Eleanor Bevens of Toronto, a lecturer on interior decorating at Robert Simpson Co. for the past 12 years, in an address on "The Psychology of Color" to approximately 200 Outside District Foremen's Club members and their wives and friends.

The event was the annual Foremen's Club's "Ladies' Night"—an event eagerly looked forward to by the ladies when they can forget their cooking and dishwashing chores for one night, get dressed up in their loveliest outfits, and get taken out for a gala evening of dining and dancing.

Scene of this party was the Club Canada, which was decorated with red streamers hanging from the light fixtures. The tables were enhanced by varicolored floral bouquets and candles set in hurricane lamps.

As honored guests, the ladies were each presented with a rose corsage on entering the hall.

Following the program was the club president Doug McLean.

In an interesting address the speaker, an honor graduate of the Parson's School of Design and New York University, where she received her B.Sc. degree in education, confessed that psychological studies have proven that during our waking hours we are continually affected by colors, even though only aware of them subconsciously.

"Color affects us from the time we get up in the morning until we go to bed at night. It can't be turned off like a TV set," she said, in urging her audience to recognize what color can do for them and to make use of it.

"We are just starting to make color work for us today in industry," she said, in noting that attention is being focussed on interior decoration in factories, hospitals and schools.

STUDIES CONDUCTED

In a psychological study conducted by the Color Research Institute, it was learned that workers do their best work with less physical effects in the middle of combination colors such as violet, which is a combination of yellow and blue.)

In the study groups of workers were placed in each of four rooms: one done entirely in red, one in blue, one in yellow and one in green. Workers in the red room felt warm and excited and their blood pressure and pulse rate increased; those in the blue room had a lowered blood pressure and pulse rate and complained of feeling cold and sleepy; while those in the yellow room had no physical changes but complained of eyestrain. Those in the green room however had no physical changes and no complaints except that of monotony, the speaker said.

"Warm colors such as red and orange have a stimulating effect and cool colors such as blue and violet, have a tranquillizing effect, but for our own psychological well being we need a combination of both", Mrs. Bevens stated.

The Color Research Institute also disclosed we "eat with our eyes" since color is a major part in stimulating or depressing appetite.

"Every good cook knows this instinctively", she remarked.

"Color also influences our purchasing", she added, in experiments undertaken by the Motivational Research Institute it was proven people are semi-hypnotized on entering a brightly colored supermarket; and an increase in sales of a product can be made by changing the color of the box.

"Automobile manufacturers know this, and are now appealing to women's color preference", she said.

Four volunteers, two men and two women were recruited to conduct a demonstration to prove that color preferences indicate personality traits.

The speaker then placed the five color preference cards of each volunteer into a sample interior decorating plan for a living room, dining room, bedroom, and kitchen.

Mrs. Brown was introduced by Jim Dalgleish and thanked on behalf of the club by Jack Berkhuizen who presented her with a bouquet of red roses.

Head table guests were introduced by chairman Doug McLean.

An inspiring sermonette on the theme "Interior Decorating", was given by the Rev. H. D. MacLean, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association.

A toast to the ladies was proposed by Lionel Blaker, who was answered by Mrs. Doug McLean, wife of the retiring president with a lovely bouquet of red roses.

A sing-song of old-time favorites was conducted by Stuart Hall, entertainment chairman. James Conrad was pianist.

An hilarious Chinese auction and dancing to a four-piece orchestra concluded the evening's entertainment.

CHRIST CHURCH CUBS

Quite accidentally we learned recently that the 2nd Belleville Cubs had a Hallowe'en party in the Parish hall. An unusual party—Akela Kemp and her assistants plan these affairs so that the Cubs are kept in keen anticipation of pleasant surprise parties.

The reason we are reporting this is not the fact that it was a very successful party—this is not news for Christ Church Cubs—but that the Cubs, instead of giving each other presents, pooled their gift money and the result was a substantial donation to UNICEF.

A certificate of appreciation was received by Mrs. Kemp from the United Nations Association in Canada, Committee for UNICEF. It reads as follows: "To Second Belleville Cub Pack: On behalf of the United Nations Children's Fund and the millions of children it assists, the United Nations Association in Canada Committee for UNICEF extends sincere gratitude for your generous support. The contribution from your UNICEF program will mean better health and a happier future for many of the world's sick and hungry children."

Without further comments we commend this "good turn" and suggest it may serve as an example to other groups.

Triplet Calves, Born in County Are Thriving

PICTON—Triplet calves born at the weekend on the farm of Merrill Hagerman, Bloomfield road, are thriving. Authorities state that such multiple births occur only once in eight thousand. The calves weighed 78, 56 and 44 pounds respectively, a total of 178 pounds. The mother is a seven-year-old and the sire was Harden Farms Duke Eden, used at Quinte breeding unit at Belleville.

The Hagerman herd has been increasing rapidly as in addition to the triplets they had two sets of twin calves born this year. They have one cow which has produced twins annually for several years.

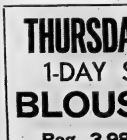
Alpha Mu Progresses in Craft Work

The Alpha Mu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, held another work meeting recently at the home of Mrs. R. C. Boyce. The president, Mrs. Boyce, conducted the business which concerned, among other things, plans for the annual Christmas party for the members and their husbands, the second week in December.

Following the business, members resumed work on their crafts. Mrs. Boyce began laying out a geometrical design in three-quarter inch tiles on a large piece of wood destined to become a table top. Mrs. James began tooling an oriental design on a sheet of copper.

Mrs. Farquharson and Mrs. Miller traced floral designs on leather in preparation for tooling.



Refreshments were supplied by Mrs. James and Mrs. Lennox and hostess Mrs. Morphy, helped serve.

The second meeting of November, held at Mrs. Morphy's home, on the 16th instant, included an advance invitation to Ki Alpha Mu from the three Kingston chapters of Beta Sigma Phi to attend a Founder's Day banquet in Kingston the end of April. There was also notice of a convention in Hamilton early in May.

At this meeting Mrs. Smith also began a scattered tile design in soft mottled shades of turquoise for her table.

Mrs. Morphy, Mrs. Sisson, Mrs. Badger and Mrs. Fairley continued to enamel on copper jewelry forms for pins and earrings, attempting to complete some Christmas presents for the holidays.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. McLean provided and served coffee and doughnuts at the close of the evening.

Weddings

READY — McKINNON

MARMORA — A pretty but quiet wedding took place in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church on Saturday, November 21st, when Wilma McKinnon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McKinnon, Marmora Township, became the bride of Ronald Ready, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Brady, Marmora.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Healey P.P.

The young couple will take up residence in Marmora.

WEATHERBEE — KNOX

St. Andrew's Church, Wellington, was the setting on Saturday, November 14, at 3.00 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when Doreen Lorraine Knox, of Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Knox, became the bride of Calvan Lester Weatherbee, of Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Weatherbee, of Wolfville, Nova Scotia. The Reverend J. J. Rogers officiated before a background of white chrysanthemums, ferns and palms, pews were designated by white satin bows.

Mr. Jack McNeill presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Frank Gerbens of Wellington in her rendition of "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of nylon net and lace with fitted bodice of lace over satin ending below the waistline and extending into a flare at the floor. The bodice top was accented by long tapered sleeves of lace and tiny seed pearls. The long sleeves ended in tiny, pointed wrists, and the shaped bateau neckline outlined the throat. A tiara arrangement with rhinestones and seed pearls with finger-tip veil of nylon tulle and carried a cascade of red roses and white baby 'mums.

The maid of honor, Miss Jennifer Preston, of Willowdale, Ontario, was attired in pink nylon chiffon over taffeta in ballerina-length with full skirt and a bow attached to the back across the shoulders falling into two panels at the back. She wore white elbow-length gloves and white shoes, a feathered headdress, and carried bouquet 'mums.

The bridesmaids, Miss Freda Holland, of Wellington, and Miss Betty Faye Smith, also of Wellington, attired similarly to the maid of honor, but in blue, and carried white baby 'mums.

Mr. Allan Armstrong, of Picton Camp, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Archie Hill, also of Picton Camp and Mr. Donald Knox, of Wellington, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the town hall to which St. Andrew's Guild catered.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing rose-taupe silk brocade in sheath style, with matching jacket, rose-green accessories, and corsage of tawny gold 'mums.

For the wedding trip, by motor, the bride chose a pale blue silk brocaded sheath with matching box jacket, white and black accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Weatherbee will reside on Main Street, Wellington.

Guests attended from Toronto, Willowdale, Picton, Newarket, and Gormley.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus John L. Hay are shown following their marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Joan Magdalene Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Matthews of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hay, also of Belleville. HAY — MATHEWS

The church of St. Michael the Archangel was the setting, recently, for a lovely late autumn wedding when Joan Magdalene Matthews, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Matthews of Belleville, became the bride of Adolphus John Lee Hay, s'n3 of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hay. The Reverend Peter Murphy officiated before a background of white and yellow 'mums. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Miss Dorothy Grant, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Forgie, who sang, "Ave Maria", "Panis Angelicus", and "Mother at Your Feet is Kneeling", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Leo Carnahan, of Toronto, was radiant in her ballerina-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scalloped neckline accented with sequin trim, and long fitted sleeves, lily-pointed at the wrists. A coronet, encrusted with sequins held her white-length veil of tulle illusion and she carried a cascade of tiny red roses. A single strand of pearls with matching earrings completed her bridal ensemble.

Mrs. Donna O'Neill of Longueuil, Quebec, as matron of honor, sister of the bride, was gowned in powder-blue net and taffeta with fitted bodice and ballerina-length skirt. She wore a matching blue headdress and gloves and carried a nosegay of pink and blue carnations.

Mrs. Rosemary McDeen, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, wearing pastel pink net and taffeta, in ballerina-length. Her headdress and gloves were in matching shade, and she carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Leo Gauthier of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Messrs. Donald Hay of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, and George O'Neill of Longueuil, Quebec and Raymond Ryan of Belleville, ushered.

The reception was held at Club Casara, Belleville, where the bride's mother received, wearing a royal blue sapphire ensemble dress, matching hat and gloves with corsage of pink roses and white carnations. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore green taffeta with embroidered brown flowered pattern, matching green wool hat, and gloves with corsage of yellow roses.

The bridal table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped with wedding bells and love birds. Two white candles in silver holders and the bridal bouquets completed a lovely nuptial setting.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride travelled in a red wool sheath with brown muskrat jacket, matching red wool hat and gloves, black accessories and corsage of peppermint red and white carnations.

Guests attended from Toronto; Scarboro; Montreal and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was honored at a number of social functions given by the girls of the Belleville Utilities offices, at the home of Miss Helen Symonds, when the bride was the recipient of a lovely wool blanket, pillow cases and sheet and mattress cover; at a shower by the community at the home of Mrs. Irene Gauthier with Mrs. Irene Gauthier as hostess and Mrs. Jean Whalen as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay are residing at 62 Alexander Street, Belleville.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

No need to remind the shopping housewife what a month from today is! We know that people have started a long long since; already we read that a thief has broken into a home in another city and stolen all the Christmas gifts, along with other things. We must repeat, though, that early shopping will provide the best shopping and will be easier on you.

Even though you shop all the year round as there are some specific techniques to follow for intensive Christmas shopping. First, dress comfortably, and then get to the stores as early in the day as you can. Be sure you have your shopping tools with you; that is, your list, your cheque book or cash, addressed and gift enclosure cards for friends in other parts than the store. Allow yourself a coffee or lunch break to avoid fatigue and to give yourself a chance to relax. Be sure to group the items on your list which are to be bought in the same store. Last, but by no means least, treat salespeople with the same courtesy and friendliness you would like to receive yourself.

If you haven't even begun to think about making a list, here are a few suggestions to get you going. For a man: a wallet including notepad and pencil, cuff links or a portable tie rack are a few ideas. How about fancy slip for a young girl? For a woman, a pretty ornamental hand-bag accessories, a small clothes brush, or a change purse might fill the bill. You might choose some fancy printed dishtowels or a matched printed cotton sheet for a new addition to your own family or a friend's. And for the young-marrieds, ash trays, candy dishes, small pictures and the like are always acceptable.

Last week we gave some advice about buying by grade. This week, we will choose one commodity and give as much information as possible about buying and storing as we can. We choose the plain old potato because of the quantity consumed — it is, with the exception of milk, our most commonly used food. It also grows well in most areas and is one of Canada's most important vegetable crops. If portant vegetable crops. If purchased in quantity, the potato increases the nutritional value of the dipt. It is the only vegetable specifically named in Canada's Food Rules, which recommend at least one daily serving of potatoes.

Potatoes are an important source of Vitamin C; one medium sized potato, properly cooked, will supply nearly half the daily requirement of this vitamin, plus B vitamins and

In the absence of Mr. G. R. Cameron, Mr. Arnold Wolfenden reported on the blood donor clinics. He commented on the wonderful response given by Northern Electric Company employees to the Blood Donor Clinic with 117 new donors making a total of 300 donors during the last six months. The next clinic will be held at Trenaws.

Other routine business matters occupied the attention of the members for the duration of the meeting.

TEA ADDICTS

LOWESTOFT, England (CP)—A fisherman from the Suffolk seaport claims he drinks 30 cups of tea a day. This followed a claim that bus drivers in Leicester can put away 24 cups. One man claims he has 14 cups before breakfast.

Suit Season

BY VERA WINSTON

Shadowy black and brown diagonal check woolen is the fabric used for a suit that is very much of the new season. The jacket has a gathered peplum below the narrow leather belt. The back is slightly bloused and gathered into the waistband above the peplum. A good detail is the detachable scarf.

CONCERNING ENGAGED COUPLES

In the past, the months of May and June were generally referred to as "bridal months." What an exploded theory this is today if the inquiries I receive are any criterion, every month falls into this category.

The harbinger of the wedding to come is, of course, the engagement announcement. The following is an outline of the accepted way to go about making it known to friends and acquaintances alike that the all-important decision has been made.

According to old traditions, a young man always approaches the father of the lady of his heart, and asked permission to plead his case to the young lady. Today, it's usually all decided between the couple before mentioning it to the parents. However the man will still show considerations and good breeding if he goes to the father of the girl after he has been accepted.

The parents of the man should immediately call upon the family of the girl — even if they already know each other. If they live in different cities, his mother should write to the girl welcoming her into their family. When living in the same city, the parents of the bride-elect and the young girl herself must return the call upon the man's family within a few days. While this many seem to be overdoing the amenities, it is to be remembered that it is not a mere formality but a matter of great importance. It is highly desirable that the two families become acquainted. After all, it is a junction between them, and the course of true love will run smoother for the young couple if a foundation of cordial relations can be reached between the two families.

Formal announcement through the social columns of the newspapers should be made by the parents of the bride-to-be. If both parents are deceased, a close relative should do this. The announcement may read in the following manner: "Mr. and Mrs. Philip John Doe announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to Mr. Richard Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown Phillips." A brief resume of the schools both attended, and pertinent facts about their families, may be included if desired. This announcement, signed by a parent, should be sent to the newspapers several days ahead of the time you wish it to appear, and the release date should be stated clearly.

Entertaining at a party to announce an engagement is not obligatory. The formal announcement in the newspapers is sufficient. But if one does decide to give an engagement party, it may take the form of a luncheon, tea, reception or evening affair. In most instances the celebration is held a day or so before the formal announcement is made.

It is considered very bad taste to make the announcement on engraved or printed cards. If there are relatives or close friends who live out of town, or those that one wishes to know about the engagement before it is made public, the gracious thing to do is to write a personal note telling them the good tidings.

Question: I am a young man 18 years of age. I am going to attend a wedding soon and will escort my grandmother, who is 85 years old. Do I escort her down the aisle, as she is so elderly, or does the usher do so? I want to be sure to do the right

'Retarded Children' Talk At PTA Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Holy Rosary P.T.A. was held in the school last Thursday.

With the new president, Mr. Bob Lucy presiding, Rev. Sister Mary Francis Teresa opened the meeting.

After the business of the meeting, Mr. Hollquist introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Tom Stovell, who is well known in the city for his work with Retarded Children's Association, gave an interesting report on the founding of the Association and what is being done for the retarded children in the Belleville area.

Mr. Stovell said that more and more retarded children are being born everyday and that in the average Canadian community about 30 in every 1,000 children are estimated to be retarded to some degree. He also stated that mental retardation is not only a problem for the parents involved; but a problem for everybody, because every family is vulnerable.

Mr. Stovell showed a colored film of Bellwood's summer camp for retarded children. The instructors teach the children to make things and to help themselves. The children are therefore not entirely dependent upon their parents.

After the film, Mr. Stovell told the P.T.A. members that at present, they have a number of children attending half day classes and he hoped that in the near future classes could be formed to accomodate all retarded children in the Belleville area and also provide classes for retarded adults.

Mr. Stovell mentioned the present campaign; it is organized and administered by parents and volunteers.

This campaign is for the Belleville Quinte Association for Retarded Children in no way connected with the Plainfield Institution.

Mr. Jack Darlington thanked Mr. Stovell for his interesting talk and wished him every success with the campaign.

Mr. D.K.W.

Answer: An usher should escort her to her place. However, you should certainly walk on the other side of your grandmother to make things easier for her.

Bonus Readers' Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

Readers' letters are so many that I decided to ease the pressure by using today's column to answer those who need quantity recipes.

Question: I would be pleased if you could send me the amount of chicken and so on to make chicken a la king for two or three hundred people for an afternoon tea, to be served at our Christmas bazaar . . . afternoon 3 to 5. We are using tea biscuits . . . Mrs. L. V.

Answer:

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY
(oven dinner)

Sweet 'n Sour Hamburg Casserole (see Monday); French-ed Green Beans; Baked Acorn Squash Halves; Mixed Lettuce and Tomato Salad with Roquefort Dressing; Apple Crumble with Rich Milk (see Tuesday's column); Coffee.

CHICKEN A LA KING
(To serve 50)
3 qts. (15 cups) diced cooked chicken meat (about 3 5-lb. stewing fowl will yield this)
3 qts. rich chicken broth
4 cups sifted flour
3 tablespoons salt
4 qts. (1 gal.) milk
1 cup chicken fat or butter
2 cups cooked or drained canned peas
2 10-oz. cans mushroom pieces and liquid
3 or 4-oz. can pimientos sliced

In a large simmer, covered, ready-to-cook fowl in water to half cover, until meat falls from bones — turning chicken over once during cooking time. Transfer to large trays and allow to cool enough to handle. Strip meat from bones. Do not use skin and gristle. Strain broth and cool 1 pint of it and heat the flour and salt in until you have a smooth paste. Heat milk and butter or chicken fat. Blend remainder broth into flour and broth paste. Stir into hot milk until smooth and thick. Transfer to large double boilers and cook about 10 oz. (2 cups unsifted) flour
3 1-2 qts. hot milk
3 tablespoons salt
14 — 16 lbs. washed unpeeled potatoes (10 lbs. peeled and sliced)
2 oz. melted butter
1 tablespoon onion flakes may be added if desired.

Make white sauce by melting fat, stirring in flour and salt. Stir in hot milk until thick. Arrange alternate layers of sliced potatoes and cream sauce in greased baking pan, having cream sauce on bottom and top. Pour melted butter evenly over surface. Bake at 190 deg. Fahr. until potatoes are tender and surface is lightly browned (approximately 1 1-3 hours).

Pour canned in the usual quantity of canned or frozen peas for each serving.

Sweater Story

By VERA WINSTON

The shaggy sweater story is very much a part of the history of casual fashions this fall. This pullover sweater is smartly shaggy and goes in for dropped shoulder seams and curved slits at the side that extend to the hipbone. Comes in gray, camel or white. Shown with a black, brown, white and gray plaid skirt. Nice for country or college wear.

Colombo Plan Topic at U.W. Club

Mr. Royden Davis addressed the November meeting of the University Women's Club last Thursday evening in St. Thomas Parish Hall. Mr. Davis, resident of Belleville, is an agricultural engineer who worked in Pakistan and Burma for the Colombo Plan. He has travelled around the world, visiting thirty-two countries.

Mr. Davis outlined two ways in which the more advanced members of the British Commonwealth give assistance to the underdeveloped nations through the Colombo Plan. The first way is to make available funds for the purchase of machinery of all kinds and for the building of such projects as hydro-electric and irrigation systems. The second way in which the Colombo Plan operates is to give technical assistance and direction to those who are without any experience in modern methods and mechanization.

The largest project of all was the construction at Warsak of a dam and hydro - electric system which was undertaken in its entirety by the Canadian Government. Thousands of acres which had been too arid to farm were cleared of the sand overburden and then irrigated.

For centuries bullocks have been used to operate the pumps for such primitive irrigation as the farmers could carry out. Now large modern generators pump water to make arable land which was never before cultivated.

Farmers have been moved here from congested areas. The new land provides them with enough to support a family, more than they could hope for before the Warsak scheme made this land available for agriculture. Mr. Davis believes it will be many years before the final results can be seen but even now Canadians can be proud of their help to Pakistan.

Mr. Davis made an excellent record with his camera and many of his slides drew comments and questions from the audience.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Roberta J. — Jack looks like a handful.

Harold J. — The kid is just going through a stage.

Roberta J. — I am very worried about my 15-year-old son Jack. He has taken up with an awful bunch of boys and goes around looking like a hoodlum.

Jack spends hours dressing, putting a wave in his hair and a duck tail in back. Then he puts on a pair of jeans, a dirty sweater and maybe a leather jacket. That's his costume. It looks awful but it's the only way he'll dress.

Since taking up with these boys he has played hooky several times and hardly ever does any homework. He hasn't gotten into any trouble so far but I'm worried. His father says let him alone.

Harold J. — My idea is don't make trouble until it troubles you. This is just a stage in the kid's growing up. Jack thinks he is being a regular guy when he puts on his zany costume to go out.

As for playing hooky, my brothers and I did it many times and we all got through high school. Two of my brothers went on to college. Boys will be boys. Roberta was brought up in a family of girls and she takes these things too seriously.

I try to laugh the kid out of his hairdo, but it doesn't do much good. I can't figure out why they like that feminine getup.

The Council—Roberta is right to be concerned about her son's manner of dress. The outfit she describes has become virtually a uniform for delinquents and Harold is whistling in the dark when he overlooks this obvious fact.

It is true that not all boys who wear such outfits are equally bad or that all get into the kind of trouble that creates headlines. Yet the mere wearing of these clothes indicates that trouble exists.

Boys who find satisfaction in schoolwork and wholesome outside activities do not take to this outfit. They may be attracted to a uniform, but they select one which has prestige — athletic sweaters or military-style outfits. Jack's outfit has been taken on as an anti-social costume. The boy is saying, in effect, that he doesn't rate in the ordinary world but that he belongs to a secret, elect society in which his prestige is high.

Boys cannot be "laughed out" of this style of dress. To them it represents prestige and they consider those who attack it their enemies. The humiliating laughter reinforces their idea that they cannot win status in normal society.

A father's guidance is very important to a boy at this stage. Harold should be very cheery that one should wait for trouble. We live in a time that supports the world as it is today. Even hooky, which may have made for a happy adolescent when boys went fishing on their day off, becomes a serious matter in a society where boys on the loose look for far more bizarre thrills.

Jack's parents should be more stern about his schoolwork. They should not only see that he does his homework, but that he is encouraged to put his best foot forward on the subjects for which he shows aptitude. He should be encouraged to join supervised group activities and develop his athletic abilities. He should be respected as an individual in his family and be helped to formulate goals for his future.

Mother's Helper

THERE would be obvious advantages in having a sort of Brownie's aid to equip them many morsels which keep emerging in very young diner. A bib with a saver built-in flexible, tray, has been designed for this very purpose. Wonderful when small convalescents have a snack in bed, too.

Assorted Physical Measurements Of 533 Male Adult Eskimos Harvested by Anthropologist

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ESKIMO FIND FOR NATIONAL MUSEUM — Dr. Lawrence Oschinsky holds the bones of a Thule culture Eskimo destined for display at the National Museum of Canada in Ottawa. It will be Canada's first exhibit of the ancestor of today's Eskimo. Other finds are in collections in Europe and the United States. Dr. Oschinsky, New York born physical anthropologist on the museum's staff, found the bones in a cave on Baffin Island on a trip through the Arctic. Carved bone miniatures were recovered on the same site. Examination showed that the Eskimo, who lived about 700 years ago, had arthritis and a broken leg which had healed. (CP Photo).

OTTAWA (CP) — A skeleton, chunks of some explorer's sledge and assorted physical measurements of 533 male adult Eskimos were harvested on anthropologist Lawrence Oschinsky's first Arctic cruise.

The bones of an Eskimo man who lived 300 years ago—he was arthritic and had broken one leg which healed — were recovered with burial-site objects including carved bone miniatures of ducks and fish plus fish and bird spear heads.

The find represents the first authenticated skeleton of a Thule-culture Eskimo—forerunner of today's Eskimo—for the National Museum of Canada. The rest are outside the country, and Dr. Oschinsky said it's "lamentable that many of Canada's Eskimo skeletal materials are in European and United States collections."

FRANKLIN 'SLEDGE?'

The sledge pieces came from the area where Sir John Franklin's final expedition wintered in 1845-46 before its members died on and around King William Island.

The physical data on the Eskimos constitutes the most extensive survey of its kind in the Arctic. The New York-born scientist, 32, went north on the regular Eastern Arctic patrol by the supply ship C. D. Howe, touching a score of settlements to jot down measurements revealing differing racial characteristics.

Dr. Oschinsky is a physical anthropologist first on the museum staff in 25 years. He came to Canada a year ago after holding various posts including research positions in Burma and British East Africa.

In an interview, he credited much of the success of his Arctic mission to two men.

One was helicopter pilot Robert Lavack, geology student who during his regular flying duties kept a scientifically-inclined eye out for likely anthropological sites below. The other was Rev. Guy Marry Rousseliere Roman Catholic missionary from Baffin Island, a trained archaeologist who speaks the Eskimo tongue.

AIDED BY ESKIMO

Father Rousseliere, who went along for part of the trip, questioned natives about handy burial spots or other sites and replies from one led to the complete skeleton at Arctic Bay on upper Baffin Island, about 1,800 miles north of the Lakehead. The excavating party flew in by helicopter.

But Dr. Oschinsky's main work was gathering such data as the Cherchkroe writer of living Eskimos, their skull measurements and the like.

He reckons about 99 per cent of those he examined indicated traces of white ancestry, traceable to bygone whalers, sailors or traders.

He feels there is much less variation among the Eskimos and their near relations than one would ordinarily expect in such a far-flung family. They cover nearly 7,000 miles across the upper part of the globe, stretching from Siberia's 1,100 Eskimos and their immediate Russian tribal neighbors to Alaska's Aleuts and Eskimos, and the Eskimos of Canada and Greenland.

The assumption is that the immigration was fairly recent, he says, and evidence indicates that the Eastern Arctic and Greenland were the last places in the world to be reached by man—perhaps about 2,000 BC.

SPECIALIZED STUDY

Dr. Oschinsky describes physical anthropology as the study of normal biological variations of the human species in time and space.

"The particular study of man's biological development or human evolution concerns itself with the development of man from more primitive species forms."

The study of actual human variations and the practical application bear fruit in medical jurisprudence—especially identification of skeletal remains — and in child health development.

Physical anthropological studies, he says, help establish norms for child development among peoples of varying racial backgrounds. Normal development by white standards, for example, would have no application to Negro or Chinese human growth.

Dr. Oschinsky did note last summer that about 30 per cent of the Eskimos he examined had outstanding labial lacinae"—the scientific term for a form of reversed buck tooth involving the two outer incisors in the upper jaw. He spotted the variation after getting a tip from dentist Dr. Roy Smithurst aboard the C. D. Howe.

While such malformation occurs in other races too, he said, it hasn't reached such large proportions. He could offer no reason for it.

Justice Describes Brief On Carling Conservation Club As 'Shocking' During Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Justice McRuer Tuesday described as shocking some ideas developed in a brief on the Carling Conservation Club.

Extracts from the brief, prepared by McKim Advertising Limited, were read at the Ontario Supreme Court trial of Canadian Breweries Limited, which has pleaded not guilty to charges of having formed an operated a combine.

President Ian R. Dowie of Canadian Breweries also said one of the statements in the brief was terrible. Carling Breweries is a subsidiary of Canadian Breweries.

Parts of the brief that raised the objections dealt with appeals by the club to minors.

The brief said the club was formed in 1945 as a medium for public service in the field of advertising and sales promotion.

"It appeals to the broadest segment of the public body — children, teen-agers, young adults and older people," it added.

Another section said, "the conservation, outdoors and wild life ideas appealed greatly to the miners who today form the major usage of the beer-consuming public. It provided the first contact between these potential customers and a responsible organization."

Mr. Dowie said the statement about public service was fair but the statement about appealing to children was terrible. He said the company was carried in the conservation club program to avoid opposition to children.

The brief was prepared by the advertising agency in 1947. Carling's rejected an agency proposal that the club be suspended. Club activities in Ontario have been reduced in the last few years and also Mr. Dowie said the annual budget now is about $30,000 compared with a peak of nearly $100,000.

He said the club's aim was to try to make the public aware by advertising of the importance of conservation of wildlife. Those who were invited to become club members and the company sent out more details about conservation.

The agency brief said the club "has succeeded for 11 years of changing marketing conditions in promoting the Carling name prominent in the minds of Ontario's and to a lesser degree, all Canadian consumers."

Publicity is tremendously wide appeal, the Carling company and brewery names could have been virtually and completely forgotten during the period 1945-58."

The chief justice said the company could have used a name other than Carling if he was not for advertising.

A move to declare counsel's opening evidence designed to show benefits resulting from Canadian breweries' acquisition of a number of smaller breweries was rejected.

The chief justice ruled that evidence about benefits from the acquisition of large-scale operations was irrelevant.

The ruling arose after the defence objected to questions by counsel Edward Ian R. Dowie as its first witness.

ADVERTISING NEEDED

Mr. Dowie told the court that Carling's declining sales when advertising was banned.

He had been asked by the chief justice what would happen if strict curbs on liquor advertising, such as those in New Brunswick, applied throughout Canada.

"People would not drink as much beer as they do in competition with other beverages," Mr. Dowie said. He added that Canadian breweries reduced its total Ontario marketing budget by about $1,000,000 in the last year and as a result had lost about three per cent of the total industry business.

He said the company discontinued advertising was banned completely last year — Bradley's Ale—and it lost about 10 to 20 per cent of its share of the market in the province.

Advertising is the most economical and efficient way of trying to persuade a potential customer to buy a product, he said.

London Sources See Summit Date Growing Distant

By TOM SCHULTZ

LONDON (AP) — Diplomatic sources here believe the date for the East-West summit conference is getting farther and farther away. But officials in Paris and Bonn say the meeting with Premier Khrushchev will be held before June.

Diplomatic observers here cite the full schedule of engagements for the world's chief political leaders. And they say since the Communist China is trying to put the brakes on negotiations between Russia and the West.

There is speculation that the summit won't be arranged until after a new American president will be in the White House.

West Germany's press chief, Felix von Eckardt, said the preventing opinion in Bonn is that the meeting will be held in April.

American and French diplomatic sources in Paris say the most logical date appears to fall somewhere between the last week in April and the end of May.

They agree that it can't be set before then. Khrushchev will visit France for two weeks beginning March 15. President de Gaulle will go to Russia April 7-14. Following that, Western diplomats of the Khrushchev visit plus time required for technical arrangements could take up to another two weeks.

There is also a possibility that de Gaulle will visit the United States and Canada some time in May, pushing a summit date back some more.

Several visiting British observers maintain there is little to support Prime Minister Macmillan's continuing display of confidence that an early summit conference can be held. They say his hopes received a rude setback when Khrushchev failed publicly to support de Gaulle's call for a slower approach to top-level negotiations.

Belief is also growing that Khrushchev already has lost much of his interest in an East-West conference, due to pressure from Communist China's Mao Tse - tung. According to this theory, Red China wants to prevent the summit meeting because it would not participate.

The New York Times quotes a group of Polish Communists as saying Mao already has pre-empted Khrushchev from negotiating any Far Eastern controversies at the summit.

A Times dispatch from Vienna says the Polish Communist delegation to Red China's 10th anniversary celebrations "came away convinced that there were important differences of approach and policy between Moscow and Peking," although not serious enough to threaten their alliance.

Cross-Canada Survey

Freer Spending, More Entries Regarded as Contributors To Higher Tourist Intake

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tourist spending in Canada may have reached a record level this season.

Reports from the provincers and from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, plus latest bureau of statistics reports on auto entries, provide that indication.

Revenues in 1958, largely drawn mainly from United States visitors, totalled $349,000,000 against a record $363,000,000 in 1957.

Freer spending, the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Royal Tour, all are regarded as contributors to a higher tourist intake in Canada this year. On the basis of records at the national parks more Canadians themselves hit the camping trail.

MORE ENTRANTS

Statistics up to Sept. 30 showed that 85,200 more travel permits were issued for foreign automotrants in the first nine months of the year and that the total was 2,274,000.

While the complete figures on tourist revenue await compilation some months hence, encouraging reports are already in from most provinces, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows. Estimates ranged from Prince Edward Island's indicated 20-per-cent boost, amounting to a record $7,500,000, to Ontario's estimate that tourist spending may touch $250,000,000.

Newfoundland is still assessing its 1958 tourist results, but officials in Prince Edward Island estimate tourists there averaged a five-day stay, spending $5 daily and spreading their choice of holiday sites from the more expensive locations to straight camping. More than 21,000 were registered at the North Shore National Park.

Nova Scotia anticipates a tourist "take" of more than $18,000,000 compared with $43,500,000 last year and 1957's record $48,000,000.

The total of visitors is believed to have been 650,000.

In New Brunswick, a big advance to $46,000,000 from last year's estimated $37,500,000 is predicted. About 1,338,000 tourists, half of them from outside Canada, are believed to have spent their holidays in the province, nearly 200,000 more than last year.

GAIN IN QUEBEC

The tourist total in Quebec is estimated at 5,000,000 against 4,700,000 in 1958 and the record 5,210,000 in 1957. They spent an average of $5.50 a day each, about the same as last year. Quebec noticed a tendency for more tourists coming from other provinces, but the latter is still fairly evenly divided between Canadians and visitors from the U.S. The average stay is five days.

Ontario's motor car arrivals from the U.S. up to Sept. 30 totalled 1,241,870 compared with 1,180,000 for the same period last year, bringing more than 4,000,000 persons. The spending was expected to be around $350,000,000, a jump over last year.

The Royal Tour and the seaway spread their influence heavily from the Montreal area along the Great Lakes, although some Northern Ontario operators reported the twin attractions apparently reduced the flow of customers their way. Touring and sight-seeing of historic spots and scenic areas led in popularity, with big contributions by fishing, water vacationing, camping and cruising.

MANITOBA RECORD

Manitoba's 1958 figures, just issued, show the province had a record 1,200,000 tourists — about 600,000 of them Americans — who contributed $33,000,000 to its economy. This topped the previous record of 1,136,000 visitors — including 671,000 Americans — who spent nearly $32,700,000 in 1957.

Tourists answering a provincial questionnaire lauded the friendly, at-home reception they received in Manitoba's scenic beauties, but some complained of poor fourlocan drivers and high motel rates.

Neighboring Saskatchewan had an off-year in the south, where drought and signs hit hourly spots. But the Northwest Region Tourist Association reported excellent business and good response to northern Saskatchewan's fishing attractions. Estimates of total visitors and tourist money spent were lacking.

Possibilities of revenues exceeding $71,463,000 were held out for Alberta by the province's tourist bureau director, Dan Campbell. He pointed to more conventions this year, and an increase in hotel business of up to 10 per cent. Last year's record income was $72,500,000, when at least 1,273,000 tourists were counted, mainly at national parks.

British Columbia estimates business at least as good as last year, when about $195,030,000 was spent by tourists. There were 1,136,000 vehicle entry permits from the U.S. in British Columbia last year. Business this year ran behind for a time, then caught up in a great upsurge of camping addicts moving by trailer or automobile to outdoor sites.

ADV FOR Nov. 25 PBS .....

CAMPING POPULAR — Popularity of family camping holidays is on the increase in Canada and government-controlled campsites such as this one on the shores of Grand Lake in southern New Brunswick are springing up across the country. Canadians do a lot of travelling from one province to the other, but United States visitors still provide Canada with the bulk of its tourist income. (CP Photo).

Beetle Aiding Weed Control

(From Farm News)

At Belleville, Ont., scientists of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Entomology Research Institute have found that control are discovering ways of controlling weeds by using the insects that attack them.

Toadflax is not a serious problem in Ontario, where the seeds are attacked by a beetle but it is increasing rapidly on farmlands in the prairie provinces, where this beetle does not exist.

Beetles collected in Ontario were liberated at Marsden, Sask., and Cadogan, in the Peace River district of Alberta. They died out at Marsden during a severe winter, but they have increased and spread in the Peace River district.

It is too soon to say whether or not the beetle will reduce the spread of the weed in Alberta. It is not expected to wipe out existing stands, as the weed spreads by underground stems, which are not attacked by the beetle, as well by seeds.

Because of this, a search is being made in Europe for insects that will attack the stems and roots. If found, they will be tested intensively under crop plants. Any that survives quarantine at Belleville is sure that they will not attack crop be liberated in Canada.

Attempts to control St. John's Wort in British Columbia by liberating three kinds of beetles obtained from abroad have been only moderately successful and a search for other suitable insects is in progress in Europe.

A leaf-eating caterpillar being tested at Belleville to see if it is suitable to control tansy ragwort in eastern Canada, and studies on the insects that attack Canada thistle are in progress both at Belleville and in Europe.

'The Face of Canada' Written By Five Authors Presents A Kaleidoscopic Picture

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It Canadians had a distinctive, easily-identified national personality, a book such as "The Face of Canada" (Clarke, Irwin) of slight server have been written. For Canadians have much that is common, they present such a kaleidoscopic picture that it is much easier to write about them within the framework of the regions in which they live.

Five authors, each intimate with the area he was chosen to write about, have separately described, in turn, the Atlantic Provinces, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia.

Anyone looking for a critical discussion of Canada won't find it in this book. But the authors have avoided dullness in their affectionate treatment of the five areas. Their stories are spiced with humor, while they give factual knowledgeably with the history and resources of the regions they maintain a lively pace.

Prof. C. L. Bennet, vice-principal of Dalhousie University, Halifax, has written about the four Atlantic Provinces, describing them as a microcosm of the "exciting diversity" of Canada as a whole.

"Canada at large has been called a 'half-a-dozen nations,' he says. "The Atlantic Provinces may be compared to a sampler of needlepoint."

ATTRACTIVE QUEBEC

Writing of La Vieille Province, Montreal Le Devoir editor Gerard Filion says that while Quebec has had "political and religious hegemony," it has retained its power of attraction through one of its cultural individuality. Its physical contrasts and its economic wealth."

Toronto journalist Gregory Clark sums up his thoughts on Ontario in these words: "It is new but it is old. It is beautiful but it is homely. It is rich but it is frugal. It is tame but it is wild. It is British but it is American. And with all its heart, it cherishes the title of the Heartland of Canada."

Author-poet Wilkins Campbell paints the personality of the prairie dweller as a person midway in the "rather pretty optimistic, even a little naive at times" but also likely to be "wonderfully friendly, warmly enthusiastic and boldly self-reliant."

Roderick Haig - Brown, well-known author and magistrate of Campbell River, B.C., makes a point of the commonly-held opinion that British Columbia finds it difficult to identify with the rest of Canada.

"Perhaps it begins to 'mean' something that nearly three-quarters of us were born in Canada. Perhaps, in spite of the mountains and the balmy breath of the Pacific, we are Canadians and part of Canada."

CHAMPIONS ESKIMOS

Farley Mowat's anger, strong when he wrote "The People of the Deer" published in 1952, is translated in "The Desperate People." (Little, Brown).

Both books concerns the ennu small segment of the 600 caribou-dependent Eskimos north of Hudson Bay, an ethnic anomaly split from the remainder of their race, shunning the sea for the Barren Keewatin barrens.

Where Mr. Mowat dealt first with just one phase in the decline of the group he calls the Chalmuit, his new book chronicles a whole series of human dis-asters detailed by individuals through sickness, misery and starvation.

The basic reason for the plight of the northern Eskimos is simply the decline of the caribou. Rifles have killed the once - mighty herds and families came.

But, writing with rare beauty of the Barren land, Mr. Mowat flies case after case in support of his contention that schedulizative neglect compounded the tragedy of a primitive people jerked from their traditional ways by the white trader and then discarded to fend at least they might, after they had grown to need the guns and ammunition only the white man could provide.

MAY DRAW CRITICISM

Mr. Mowat's first book was bitterly criticized from the federal government level down to the RCMP, and missionary spokesmen. His new book probably will provoke another round of attacks on the basis of the facts he presents.

But it will take effective criticism to answer the central cryo of "The Desperate People"— namely, that a number of Canadian citizens died by hunger and starvation in wealthy that an civilized country should have countenanced.

Mr. Mowat cannot claim to be an expert on the Eskimos in the sense of speaking of all of them. But he knows the Chalmuit who, it must be said, probably faced the horrifying ordeal in the test 10 years than any other of their 16,000 brethren.

And his story is one in which heroism and, when did occasionally, gave a meat-eating people a diet of lard, white flour and baking soda—fare which by laboratory test has killed rats.

"The Desperate People," relaying past government mistakes and the work of some traders, many RCMP and missionaries, concludes on a note of hope. The caribou herds are on the increase, peoples resulted in a re-established economy at Baxter Inlet, on the west coast of Hudson Bay, and the Eskimos, given a chance to work, have responded ably.

LEACOCK BIOGRAPHY

Recognition of human dignity was the key to Stephen Leacock's work.

Ralph L. Curry sets forth this viewpoint in his biography of the celebrated Canadian humorist, economist and teacher. "Stephen Leacock, Humorist and Humanist" (Doubleday, Inc.), a painstaking and carefully documented study.

Leacock believed that "the very essence of good humor is that it must be without harm and malice," said Professor Curry, an American who wrote a thesis on the humorist for his Ph.D. Professor Curry, who teaches English at Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky., is curator of the Stephen Leacock Memorial Home on Old Brewery Bay near Orillia, Ont.

"Literary Lapses," Leacock's first published book of humor, was a typical example of the author's sympathy for man as an individual. He described the individual beset by the complexities of modern life, most of which were due to his disadvantage.

POKED FUN AT SYSTEM

Says Curry: "He saw man so systematized that he could no longer fix his own shoes, shave his own face, keep his own money, or catch his own fish, but Leacock made fun of the system and not the man who struggled against it."

His approach to economics was based likewise on respect for the individual. Professor Curry describes his attitude thus: "Economics was not a budget; it was a service for its citizens, and citizens were people . . . People, not science, should be served by statistics."

Professor Curry traces Leacock's life from his birth in England through his youth in Ontario, his 33 years teaching economics at McGill University and his years of retirement. There are detailed references to his summers at Orillia, to Leacock as a boo vivant and good companion, and to his literary achievements as humorist, economist and historian.

But the emphasis throughout is on Leacock the humorist, a man who made people laugh.

MINING DEVELOPMENT — A new town is taking shape in the wilderness of northern Quebec as part of a $200,000,000 iron ore development.

Gagnon, on the shore of Lac Jeannine, 600 miles from Montreal, is being built to house the employees of Quebec Cartier Mining Company, a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation. Seven hundred men will work through the winter on construction of the townsite.

A second townsite is being developed at Port Cartier on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. A 193-mile railway eventually will connect the two.

Enlarged portion of map at left shows other developments that will take place before the mine starts production, expected for early 1961. It includes the mine itself, a concentrator and 80,000 horsepower hydro-electric project. (CP Newsmap.)

Company Building 2 Towns In Its $200,000,000 Bid To Take Ore Out of Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—The mining town of Gagnon is taking shape in northern Quebec. It is being built to accommodate miners and mill-workers who will mine and process iron ore from a mine of the Quebec Cartier Mining Company.

It is one of two townsites the company is building in its $200,000,000 bid to extract ore from the Quebec wilderness. The second is Bartel, Dease, almost limitless woods, are only five minutes from any part of town.

Some 4,000 people will be housed in Gagnon which should be completed next fall. A crew of 700 men now is building the homes and roads needed. They'll work through the winter.

U.S. STEEL SUBSIDIARY

Quebec Cartier, a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, expects to begin production in early 1961. But before this, the mine, "a concentrator, a 193-mile railway, a 80,000 horsepower hydro-electric project and the harbor will have to be completed.

The mine and concentrator are located at Lac Jeannine, eight miles from Gagnon.

Quebec Cartier says there are 300,000,000 tons of proven ore reserves in the region. The ore is low-grade quality—about 30 per cent—but will be concentrated on the mine site to about 66 per cent.

Shipping from the company harbor will go on all year, although winter navigation in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is still in the experimental stage.

"We have to ship through the winter to handle the tonnage we want," a company spokesman said.

Gagnon will have 175 homes plus five dormitories for bachelor miners. There will be 10 miles of road, 9.3 miles of sewers, 9.5 miles of water-mains and a nine-mile electrical distribution system.

Peaceful Coexistence May Lead to Downfall of NATO

By HAZOLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paul-Henri Spaak has put his finger on what appears to be the real threat facing the North Atlantic alliance—danger that peaceful coexistence in the East and West may lead to gradual disintegration of the 15-country defence pact.

The NATO secretary-general is convinced peaceful coexistence is slowly becoming a reality mainly because of the development and the alertness of both sides of the iron Curtain have almost ruled out the possibility of any clear-cut military victory on either side.

But the Belgian statesman, who recently met NATO legislators in Washington last week, is equally convinced that Russia can switch from friendship to cold war to hot war at a moment's notice whenever it is to her advantage to do so.

Not to down the Western guard during a period of peaceful coexistence might prove to be military suicide. And yet at a time when NATO commanders are crying for more equipment and men, there is thought in Washington that the NATO countries bear the burden of European defence costs might be switched more to Paris, Bonn and London than to Washington and Ottawa.

NOTES COMPACENCY

"Look out," says Spaak, "I know the Western world well enough to know the moment public opinion has a true or false feeling that the danger is over a growing falsier, the first concern will be to cut down drastically on the military effort. This is understandable a period which is before us and a danger which is staring us in the face."

Spaak believes NATO is that it was born out of Western fear of a Communist attack. It has united other functions such as greater economic co - operation but the basic NATO purpose of a decade of experience has shown that the military threat to the field that NATO flourished and this became the strongest financial support by the United States.

"The fear of Communist invasion also the moment" binding the NATO members together. Now with the advent of peaceful coexistence, the West suddenly feels itself. Spaak claims in a period of hesitation and vacillation.

NATO may need a new reason for existence. The thought that it may provide the spur of a broad economic alliance apparently has only limited support behind the alliance. Also given limited support is the suggestion by Spaak that NATO should spread itself a bit, to encompass the problems of underdeveloped areas in Africa.

Says Spaak: "Economic nationalism is today the last refuge of all self-interests and of all illusions."

MURDER TRIAL BEGINS

PARRY SOUND (CP) — A grand jury Monday returned a true bill against Frank Erwin Jacklin, charged with murder in the beating death of his 22-year-old daughter Dorothy Sept. 5 a jury was selected for the trial in Supreme Court of Ontario.

Youth Fined By TCA Charged With Murder

TORONTO (CP) — A youthful clerk fired by Trans-Canada Air Lines a month ago has been charged with murder in the rifle-slaying of James Beverly Wright, 30, chief clerk of TCA operations.

John Hartford, 19, was arrested Tuesday at his home in nearby Fort Credit after police planned with him to give himself up. A .22-calibre rifle was seized at the house.

Wright died instantly from three bullets fired into his chest as he was about to enter the TCA operations building at Malton airport. A rifle was found beside the body.

Airport police received a tele-phone call shortly after the shooting from a man who told them to "come and get me."

Det.-Sgt. Mel Simmons of Toronto Township police said that when he and a group of officers went to the Hartford home a youth opened the door, slammed it shut, then yelled: "You'll have to come in and get me."

WARNED BY TELEPHONE

Inspector Charles Robinson twice telephoned the house and the youth answered the second time. The inspector told him if he would be foolish to try to resist and that police would use guns if he didn't come out.

A few minutes later Hartford's brother Bruce, 16, walked out of the house, leaving the front door open. Police went inside and found Hartford in a corner. He offered no resistance.

Police said Hartford's car had three hose lines attached to the exhaust pipe and running inside the vehicle.

Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright of Collingwood, were told of their son's death by a minister and the chief of police there.

Wright was known as a "very sincere fellow" and was well liked.

Did Not Leave Empty-Handed

GANANOQUE (CP)—A heavy, dark woman wearing a bandana on her head and moccasins on her feet checked into a hotel here. She carried a large suitcase.

Two hours later she walked out. The hotel says she took along $50 worth of bedsheets, blankets, pillows, mattress covers, bath rug and candlesticks packed in the suitcase.

Police said Tuesday they believe the "woman" was actually a man and is part of an organized theft ring looting hotels.

Justice Admits Statement Given By Accused

PARRY SOUND (CP)—Frank Jacklin, 42, charged with murder in bludgeon-death of his oldest daughter, listened Tuesday to the story of her last moments as his trial opened in the Supreme Court of Ontario before Mr. Justice Ian Cameron.

Mr. Justice Stewart admitted as evidence a statement Jacklin made to police. It was in this which he admitted hitting his daughter Dorothy, 22, the eldest of his nine children, on a re-cluded graves round 1½ miles northeast here Sept. 5.

It was established she died of head injuries, probably from a bumper jack.

JULY INCIDENT

Dr. John M. Howes testified Jacklin went berserk at Parry Sound General Hospital in July after taking an overdose of barbiturates. He was treated and released but Dr. Howes said he regarded Jacklin as a man with a mental disorder.

The statement taken by police quoted Jacklin as saying he and his wife had gone to the chief constable after he got out of hospital and asked whether the matter thought he should be turned in, but the officer said he didn't think so.

Dorothy, who had been living away from home, later visited her parents. They started to drive her back to her boarding house but went for a drive instead and stopped near a drive-in theatre. Jacklin said he stopped to check his tires and decided to take the girl home.

QUESTIONED GIRL

"Then I asked Dorothy to come back and I asked her if she was going away," the statement said.

"She wouldn't answer. That's when I struck her. Then I picked her up and put her in the back of the car."

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Frank B. Powell, Dr. Howes said Jacklin had after the overdose of barbiturates Jacklin emailed to Dr. Howes said Jacklin was afraid of what he might do somebody. The crown concluded its case Tuesday and the defence was to start today.

Nelson Eddy Says His Show Is Too Spicy

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Nelson Eddy said Tuesday he won't put his act on where Candy Barr used to take her clothes off.

Eddy thinks his act might be a little too naughty for Las Vegas, a showground for barechested girls which more lately has become surprisingly moral-conscious.

Here's what happened:

Clarke Gamble, entertainment director, trying to elevate the moral tone of resorts in the Nevada city, told hotel operators they found bare bosoms an unrespectable spectacle. They also told the El Rancho Vegas to get rid of Candy Barr, saying the stripper is appealing a 15-year prison sentence for possession of marijuana in Texas.

El Rancho owner Beldon Katleman canned Candy, and it later was reported that Nelson Eddy would take her place.

But Eddy, whose act features a flimsily attired damsel, said: "I'm afraid my act might be too spicy for them."

Clergymen, Teachers, Office Workers Likely Victims of Severe 'Letdown Headaches'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Do you suffer a severe headache when you suddenly ease up after a stretch of tough work? Here's a name for it—"letdown headache." Its most likely victims are clergymen, teachers and office workers.

This newly - recognized ailment was described Tuesday by Dr. Lester Blumenthal of George Washington University.

He said ministers and priests who come up with such headaches on Sunday morning—"when they let down after the week's tension of preparation for and delivery perhaps two sermons on Sunday, hearing confessions on Saturday, and so on."

School teachers are vulnerable on Saturday mornings "when they wake up and suddenly realize they don't have to face 40 young hyenas as they have all week."

Blumenthal said government workers also are frequent sufferers.

He told about the phenomenon at a panel on headaches during the annual scientific assembly of the District of Columbia Medical Society and amplified his remarks at a press conference.

Blumenthal said let - down headaches result from excessive stretching of the blood vessels. For reasons still unknown, many people are physiologically constituted so that their vessels are likely to stretch excessively after emotion or physiological stress.

In the case of the let-down victims, Blumenthal said, they build up tension during the week. This causes certain body chemicals, including adrenalin, to keep the blood vessels and other tissues of the head in proper tone.

Then comes the let - down. With tension's removal, the blood vessels stretch, blood rushes through them faster and headache results.

Blumenthal says that in many cases they can be prevented by:

1. Seeing yourself during the week as you really build up so much tension.

2. Stepping with the head of your bed elevated.

3. Avoiding constipation.

4. Getting up early or setting your alarm clock so you'll wake up in the night for a while. Too much sleep at a stretch may lead to stretch your blood vessels.

Canadians Better off Says President of Imperial Bank

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians are better off than they have ever been, J. S. Proctor, president of the bank at the annual meeting of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

The vigor of the business recovery from the 1957-1958 decline, Mr. Proctor declared, is the most important development of the year.

Government spending had been one of the important sustaining factors in the economy during the government policy, through fiscal measures, should play also its part in curbing inflation in the future.

"A great difficulty," Mr. Proctor said "it is making adjustments quickly enough to avoid anti-recessionary action from becoming a self-defeating force as we move into recovery.

"One of the remarkable features of the economy in the recession and now in the boom is the promptness of business quickly to rise in recession and fall in boom.

"What is needed now is a means of greater promptness in adjusting government budgets during booms to put a curb on inflationary pressures. In the federal government must take the lead.

"Just as fiscal policy has played a role along with monetary policy in curbing inflation, it must be used with monetary policy in curbing inflation. The continuation of government deficits in the face of boom times is throwing a burden on monetary policy that is too large for it to bear unaided.

Mr. Proctor's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

"Interest rates much higher than those of the last 20 years will probably be with us for some time," Mr. Proctor said. "The interest rate, like any other price, will then play its role both in allocating funds to those capital projects which meet the test of being the most productive and in limiting total investment to available savings."

Pacific Coast Swept by Winds Of Gale Force

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gale-force winds lashed parts of British Columbia Tuesday in the wake of weekend rainstorms.

Power blackouts were common in Vancouver as 65-mile-an-hour winds uprooted trees and poles. Hydro officials reported damage to a large window as blown from the fourth floor of a downtown office building.

At Hope, 100 miles east in the Upper Fraser Valley, rain-swollen mountain streams cut the Trans-Canada Highway and disrupted traffic on the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line.

Near Penticton, in the Okanagan Valley, winds gusting to 90 miles an hour whipped through a mill, hurling heavy boards into the air like matchsticks and destroying the cables.

POWER LOST

Large areas in Vancouver's suburbs were without power for more than an hour after the northwesterly struck shortly before early in the afternoon. Several thousand were ripped from their moorings at Kitsilano Beach in English Bay.

No one was injured when a large window crashed to the sidewalk from the fourth storey of the National Trust Company building on downtown Burrard Street.

A washout on the Trans-Canada Highway four miles east of Hope left 50 school children stranded.

100 Refugees Suffering TB Come to Canada

ROME (Reuters) — Canadian mercy teams today began selecting 100 refugees suffering from tuberculosis in Italian and Austrian camps who will be brought to Canada with their families to new lives in Canada.

An estimated 400 to 500 refugees—the sick ones and their families—will be flown to Canada at Canadian government expense as part of a special World Refugee Year resettlement scheme.

Arrangements are being made by the federal government with provincial authorities for treatment in hospitals and for maintenance of dependents if necessary.

It is expected that many of the 100 families will be in Canada before Christmas.

FIRST IN WORLD

This is the first program for non - sponsored tubercular refugees undertaken by any overseas country, the Rome office of the Intergovernmental Committee for refugees said.

To include as many families as possible, the Canadian authorities have ruled that only families with one TB patient will be eligible for the project.

Canadian officials, helped by the inter-governmental committee for European migration, are selecting the refugees from camps in a camp 45 miles south of here, and another 60 miles away.

Dr. A. R. Lindt, UN high commissioner for refugees, noted that Canada has admitted some 300,000 displaced persons and refugees in the last 12 years.

Chicago Crash Toll Placed At Eleven Dead

CHICAGO (AP)—The minute-by-minute roar of low-flying airliners overhead finally got a report continued today as investigators hunted the cause of a fatal crash that hit a residential neighborhood like a flaming bomb.

A crippled Super-H Constellation, one of the largest piston aircraft which annually land at the world's business airport, crashed into blocks about a mile away in Tuesday's pre-dawn darkness and rain.

Eleven persons, including the three-man crew of the Trans World Airlines cargo plane, were killed. Thirteen others were injured. Police said all missing persons have been accounted for.

Eight of the dead were in three homes and an apartment building, flaming gasoline showered over a three-block area.

Civil Aeronautics Board officials set up four investigative groups. One will study the cause of flight 553, which crashed shortly after taking off. Chief veteran pilot, Claude W. Helwig, 46, of Los Angeles, had radioed the control tower that he had lost the plane's No. 2 engine probably was on fire and that he was attempting to return to Midway.

One group will investigate the possibility the engine of a propeller caused the crash; another the possibility that there were weaknesses in the plane were to be found; a fourth to interview any non-flying witnesses in the hope that they can provide a clue. The fifth group will survey baggage carried from the smouldering wreckage to help identify some of the devastated area.

One of the neighborhood's shaken survivors looked up at an airplane and shouted:

"Get up, get up!"

Police in Ohio Nab 3 Fugitives From Carolina

JACKSON, Ohio (AP) — Fast work by Ohio highway patrolmen Monday night ended the prison escapes from a North Carolina road gang wanted in the killing of a guard.

Swooping in from two directions, patrolmen nabbed the trio as they attempted to stop cars on a dark here in an apparent scheme to switch getaway vehicles.

Whereabouts of the men was tipped to the patrol by a truck driver who said he had driven off the road with West Virginia licence tags he had seen on a deserted notice.

On Monday five men broke away from a road gang near Jefferson, N.C., shooting and fatally injuring work foreman Fields Absher, 55. Three of the men commandeered a car at gunpoint Tuesday.

The two remaining escapees are being sought in West Virginia.

100 Refugees Suffering TB Come to Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter thinks the Western powers could negotiate with Russia a new and better plan for the future of divided Berlin—but he says by no means sure they will be able to do so in the summit discussions now foreseen.

This cautiously hopeful view was expressed by Herter at a press conference Tuesday when he struck back at criticism of the administration's Berlin attitude voiced by former state secretary Dean Acheson in a speech last week.

Acheson contended that an effort to make a Berlin deal with Russia would result simply in a defeat for the West. Negotiation, he said, "is only a polite, misleading phrase for the retreat or acceptance of Russian demands."

WRONG ASSUMPTION

Herter told questioning reporters that Acheson had assumed Nikita Khrushchev is standing on the same position he presided over a year ago when he exploded the Berlin crisis - by threatening to give the United States, Britain and France to pull out of West Berlin.

Actually, the Soviet position had moved "a very long way" from that.

Herter declined to go into details for any range of the subjects raised during the press conference, but he did make these points:

1. He doubts that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, basically a military alliance, is the proper instrument for developing joint economic aid plans among Western countries, but serious consideration will be given to suggestions that the alliance's political machinery be expanded.

2. The Western powers should be able to agree in Paris next month on a proposed date for a Big Four summit meeting. But he knows of no plan to delay such a meeting until 1961, as London reports have speculated.

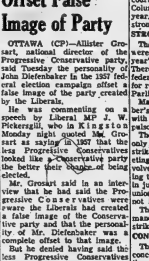
BERLIN QUESTION

Asked whether he thought a new and better arrangement than that now in existence could be worked out for Berlin, Herter replied:

"I can be. I'm not sure that it will be. I wouldn't predict that it necessarily would. I think we would like to make a better arrangement if we could."

Herter did not talk about any new formula which might solve the Berlin dispute.

Says Diefenbaker Offset False Image of Party



OTTAWA (CP)—Allister Grosart, national director of the Progressive Conservative party, said Tuesday the personality of John Diefenbaker in the 1957 federal election campaign offset a false image of the party created by the Liberals.

He was commenting on a speech by Liberal MP Jack Pickersgill who in Kingston Monday night quoted Mr. Grosart as saying in 1957 that the less Progressive Conservatives looked like Liberals the better they looked like Conservatives the better their chances of being elected.

Mr. Grosart said in an interview that he had said the Progressive Conservative caucus was aware the Liberals had created a false image of the Conservative party and that the personality of Mr. Diefenbaker was a complete offset to that image.

But he denied having said the less Progressive Conservatives looked like Liberals the better the party the better their election chances.

Mr. Grosart confirmed that he had distributed copies of a speech by former Liberal prime minister St. Laurent in which Mr. St. Laurent said Progressive Conservative election material described "Conservative-Liberalism" in small type with the emphasis on the words "Liberalism."

"I know I took you for better, but not for worse! You're worse than I took you for."

Truck Drivers Place Union Under Hoffa

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto General Truck Drivers Union said Tuesday members have voted 336 to 19 to place the union under the trusteeship of James Hoffa, international president of the Teamsters Union.

The Toronto union, Local 938 of the Teamsters, represents 8,000 drivers and warehouse men in Ontario.

Voting was held in various Canadio centres but officials had no explanation for the light turnout. The vote was said to be a decision by Hoffa and his staff aide I. J. (Duke) Thompson, Teamster representative named to the local after the union called a wildcat strike in April.

President Ken McDougall of Oshawa had campaigned against the trusteeship move.

Mr. Hoffa made a surprise appearance at a meeting last week in an attempt to restrict the trusteeship would be temporary and that the international union would stand behind any decisions taken by members.

The move was taken to permit new elections in the province-wide Local here.

Some members have demanded the resignation of Mr. McDougall and Mr. Hoffa to restrict the trusteeship.

Commerce Body Seeks Tougher Labor Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today called for tougher federal labor laws to prevent lighter up on strikes and picketing and end the immunity of unions from lawsuits.

Trade unions should "be made civilly responsible before the courts for their actions," the chamber said in its annual brief presented to the cabinet.

It also called for outlawing of strikes and lockouts that would endanger public health or safety, with compulsory arbitration of disputes in this field.

The chamber said unions under the federal labor code be made liable for civil lawsuits in the courts in the same way as British Columbia law enacted earlier this year. Ontario labor law has been strongly critized of it.

STRONGER TERMS

The chamber proposals on labor were in stronger terms than last year's submission to the cabinet. It has been reported that the federal labor code may be opened for revision at the next session of Parliament.

Major new points in the chamber's policy were those dealing with legal liability of unions, compulsory arbitration and picketing.

The brief said picketing should only be legal during a legal strike or lockout exists, with picketing only by the employees involved. It urged legislation banning to establish bargaining rights, to jurisdictional disputes reared unions, or where the employer is not involved in a labor dispute. The chamber reserved its demand for prohibition of sympathy strikes and secondary boycotts.

CONCERN OVER FUND

The chamber also expressed concern over the recent decline in the unemployment insurance fund, which dropped from $627,000,000 at the end of 1956 to $486,000,000 last March 31. It called for an independent inquiry aimed re restoring the fund to a sound financial basis and said the fund should not be used to pay special wintertime benefits for seasonal unemployment.

Turning to other matters, the brief said there are too high, discouraging initiative.

"Government policy should be directed to the reduction of tax penditures as promptly as economic conditions permit."

It urged a tightening up of present tax concessions for co-operative businesses.

On agriculture, the chamber opposed government stockpiling boards, which limit "the free enterprise nature of marketing of farm products. Farm price supports should not act as incentives to over-production.

TOBACCO SELLS BRISKLY

AYLMER (CP) — More than a million and a quarter pounds of tobacco were sold Tuesday at three warehouses of the Ontario Flue - cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board.

ENTERTAINS YOUNGSTERS — Landscape painter A. Y. Jackson entertains young visitors to his Manotick, Ont., studio with tales of his adventures on snowshoes during a lifetime of travel throughout Canada. In Quebec he was nicknamed "Pere Raquette" (Father Snowshoes.) The 77-year-old Mr. Jackson still travels extensively each summer camped in the Barren near Port Radium and at Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories in search of subjects for his canvas. (CP from National Film Board.)

At 77, Artist A. Y. Jackson Says Most of Towns Horrible But Country Full of Scenery

MANOTICK, Ont., (CP)—It was an overcast autumn afternoon and the cluttered studio on the hill seemed gloomy and cool until the veteran artist's cheerful laughter warmed it up.

"You could get along without it," he said of the landscape painting he's practised virtually all his life. "I suppose you could also do without music and literature but life would be pretty flat, wouldn't it?"

At 77, artist A. Y. Jackson still lives as unflat a life as ever. In an interview, he was asked what practical purpose art has. If it has none, then should lit ei least have a message?

"I don't know," he replied, amused again. "I don't think so. I've never done any painting that is going to reform anybody."

After a moment's reflection, he added: "If my painting has made Canadians appreciate the beauty of their country more than they used to, then that's my message."

SEARCH FOR BEAUTY

"I have gone into places where people had never seen anything beauty" he continued. "We beauty," he continued. "We haven't got any old architecture in Canada, any old churches, old cathedrals. Most of our towns are just horrible. But we do have some scenery."

He still prefers the distant, out-of-the way places to paint. He spent several weeks this summer painting in the Barren Lands 'around Port Radium, N.W.T., on Great Bear Lake about 1,000 miles north of Edmonton, living in a tent most of the time.

"Most of my work is done to order now," said Mr. Jackson, whose beginnings as an artist, after he started as a draughtsman in his native Montreal, say him too poor to consider marriage. He remained a bachelor.

"I work on commission, which I don't like very much."

But don't he enjoy the assured income?

"I think artists are probably better without an assured income. It makes an artist strive harder —although he always tries to do a good job on his commissions."

STEADY WORKER

Still spry and vigorous, Mr. Jackson follows a fairly regular schedule of painting. He gets up about 7 a.m. and makes his own breakfast. He works in his studio several hours a day, often for six days a week. But he prefers field work—"that's where you have the fun."

He gets out regularly except during the coldest winter months and during June, when he says everything's too green to paint.

He moved to Manotick from Toronto about five years ago and now lives on a low hill overlooking this pleasant village on the Rideau River, 15 miles south of Ottawa. His home consists of the studio with tall windows on the northeast, and living quarters at one end and on a floor below.

"I used to be more sociable when I was in Toronto. I had a large circle of friends I visited often. It's rather dangerous for a painter to isolate himself. He needs the stimulation of other people around him."

But he's tried, in Manotick's quieter pace now. And when it gets too quiet he takes a trip to Toronto, or somewhere else.

MODERATE CHARGES

As one of Canada's oldest and best-known artists, Mr. Jackson still charges surprising low prices for his canvases, although art dealers get far more for them. (He asked that his prices be kept confidential). Asked whether he is bothered by the fact others might make more from his work than he does, he just laughed.

"Not very much," he said. "I have a lot of old customers and if I raised my prices I'd have to get new ones."

Of course, there are far more paintings sold today than ever before. Far more people are collecting pictures by Canadian artists. I remember when people used to boast that they hadn't any Canadian paintings in their home."

It was a trip to Paris, with the original intention of improving his draughtsmanship, that finally persuaded Mr. Jackson to chuck commercial art.

"I found people in Paris had a wholesome disrespect for commercial art. I never had liked it very much."

NO REGRETS

He decided he would paint only what he wanted to paint. "It was a kind of escape, in a way. But I've never regretted it."

Commercial art is different now, though, he said. In earlier days, any show of originality was suppressed. Now a commercial artist had to have originality to survive.

He estimated that he has done more than 2,000 outdoor sketches, as he calls them—small oil paintings done quickly on the spot. Wood while he's in the field. He copies them onto canvas during the winter in his studio.

He figures he's done about 600 oil paintings on canvas and thrown about 100 in the fire.

With a twinkle in his blue eyes he said:

"Perhaps after I'd seen an exhibition of some very fine paintings and come back to look at my own, I'd decide the furnace was the best place for them."

ABSTRACT ART

The question of abstract art arose.

"I wouldn't want to see it developed to the exclusion of everything else. But there's no use shouting it. The younger painters seem to find it exciting, experts trying to do it — they only make fools of themselves. If an older painter swings, it means he's not sure of his convictions."

Asked how he stays so young in spirit and body—he still enjoys a fine set of original teeth —Mr. Jackson laughed again.

"I haven't any theories at all about long life. I smoke about a dozen cigarets a day and I'm not a teetotaler by any means."

Looking to the future, he said he would like to spend a summer painting grain elevators in Alberta.

"The grain elevator is the only architecture that's of any importance at all on the Prairies. Like France's cathedrals, the Prairies have their grain elevators. White and silver and red— I think they're lovely things. I'd like to spend two or three months just kicking around Alberta town painting them."

Controversial CTA Will Be Subject of Votes in Perth, Huron Counties on Nov. 30.

TORONTO (CP)—When Parliament decided in 1878 that "an appalling state of drunkenness" existed, it invoked the "peace, order and good government" provision of the British North America Act and passed the controversial Canada Temperance Act.

That was in the days when Alexander Mackenzie was prime minister and Sir John A. Macdonald was leader of the opposition.

Now, more than 80 years later, a referendum will be held Nov. 30 in Ontario's Perth and Huron counties to see whether or not they remain as the only two areas in Canada that still prohibit liquor sales under the act.

A vote against the act, unchanged since it was passed, would mean the end of the country's strongest and largest strongholds of prohibition. The old act, however, still has the support of many organizations in the areas. Their spokesmen claim it is better than the provincial legislation that would immediately take force if the act is revoked.

PROHIBITS SALE

The 1878 Act, also known as the Scott Act, prohibits the sale of liquor or beer for all but medicinal or sacramental purposes. Provincial legislation leaves the matter to local option.

Provincial legislation also provides stringent penalties for selling or supplying liquor to minors, consuming liquor in cars or public places, drunkenness, bootlegging and illegal possession. The older federal act contains no provision for prohibiting drinking in public places or prosecution for drunkenness.

So the referendum is not simply a matter of "wet" versus "dry" because some groups want the federal law revoked on the grounds that it is ineffective and unsatisfactory in controlling sale, distribution and consumption of alcoholic beverages. The true "wets," though, are against the act because they want the right of local option to end prohibition. They get legal liquor outlets established.

Various temperance and church organizations are backing retention of the act because, as the Perth Presbytery of the United Church says: "Wider sales of alcohol increase its consumption and also the incidence of alcoholism. Where the Liquor Control Act of Ontario is in force, neither bootlegging nor juvenile delinquency has been successfully curbed."

ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

The Huron Temperance Federation has been plugging the act by leaflets, radio and television spots and newspaper advertisements. Royal F. Mouiton of Toronto, general secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation, says the old act needs strengthening but is still better than the provincial legislation "which has incurred the province with no income."

Don Southcott, editor of the Exeter Times-Advocate, said on a panel discussion recently that the federal act "provides absolutely no control over drunkenness and drinking by minors."

At one time, 72 Canadian cities and counties had voted under the 1878 act to end sale of liquor in their areas. Huron went dry in 1894. The first vote in 1885 failed to gain a straight majority needed under the act but in 1912 the dry side won. But gradually areas under jurisdiction of the act had it revoked.

In some cases the law was suspended by the federal cabinet because of more restrictive provincial legislation. Other areas voted to repeal the sections of the act which applied to them.

APPEAL REJECTED

The Ontario government tried in 1945 to have the act declared ultra vires of Parliament because of existing provincial legislation. It appealed to the Privy Council but the appeal was rejected and the act remained in force. The only way counties could be freed from its provisions was to have 25 per cent of the voters submit a petition for a referendum to the federal government. This is what was done in Perth and Huron.

The last votes in connection with the act—all since the First and World War—were in Quebec's Beauce County, Ontario's Peel County and the district of Manitoulin Island, the world's largest fresh water island located in Lake Huron off Georgian Bay. All voted in favor of repeal. The Peel county vote was in 1951 and its county town of Brampton voted the following year for liquor and beer outlets under the Liquor Control Act.

The Scott Act passed out of general operation in Ontario in 1916, but was taken up again in Peel, Huron and Perth counties in 1916 and 1915. The next year the Ontario Temperance Act, with heavier penalties, came into effect with province-wide application and there was general suspension of the federal act.

In 1935, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that the old act was in force again in the three counties because it was more restrictive than the Ontario Liquor Control Act which had superseded the Ontario Temperance Act.

UNUSUAL SITUATION

One of the most unusual situations in connection with the act occurred in the little Lake Huron village of Grand Bend, straight on the boundary of Lambton and Huron counties. Lambton came under the provincial law and liquor, wine or beer could be sold. Huron remained dry. Lambton county residents couldn't, however, consume these drinks outside their homes.

The first year in Huron county the situation was almost reversed and residents could imbibe in public although they couldn't buy liquor in their own county. They ordered from an outside vendor and had it shipped to them home by a duly-licensed delivery service.

So it would be possible to control private drinking of alcoholic safe from provincial police as long as they stayed on the Huron county side, Grand Bend voted in 1935 by 1,100 to 1,000.

The City of Stratford, scene of the Shakespearean Festival, is exempted from the Perth-wide ban on liquor sales. Perth and Huron are adjoining counties and mainly rural.

Even if prohibition is revoked in the referendum it won't necessarily mean an end to the colorful federal act because some of its clauses are essential to the provincial liquor control system. Importation of liquor from one province to another is forbidden under the act and only the federal Parliament has the power to legislate on these matters of inter-provincial trade.

Back in the 1870s, a number of Canadian communities took advantage of the Canada Temperance Act and voted themselves dry.

Of the 72 counties and cities which placed themselves under the sweeping restrictions of the act passed in 1878, only two remain — the adjoining counties of Perth and Huron in Ontario. How voters in these two communities will decide Nov. 30 in a federal referendum whether to retain or end prohibition.

The two counties, both mainly rural and together forming a block of some 1,600 square miles, have been continuously dry since 1934. Before that, both had stretches of prohibition as far back as 1894-6.

Exempted from the Perth County ban is Stratford, home of the Shakespearean Festival. Goderich, with a population of some 6,000 and biggest town in Huron County, still is dry.

The CTA bans actual sale or keeping for sale within the city, town or county of all liquor, beer and wine unless sold for medicinal purposes or for sacramental use.—(CP Newsmap.)

Officials Will Keep Sharp Eye On Mom Whyte

VICTORIA (CP) — A provincial welfare official said Monday his department will keep a sharp eye on the activities of Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte who plans to open an establishment in British Columbia following closure of her foster home for children in Ontario.

"She has said she plans to establish a home in West Summerland with families of her staff," said E. R. Rickinson, deputy minister of welfare, in an interview. "Naturally we will have to see that she complies with the law."

He said that Mrs. Whyte could keep no more than five children in such an establishment without it becoming a home. And such children must have been awarded to her care by the courts.

He had no comment to make on indications that two teachers among her staff would look after the educational needs of the children. That, he said, would come under the education department.

TOLD ABOUT RULES

Mrs. Whyte visited provincial welfare officials here recently. They told her that B.C. regulations prevent her from operating a foster home along the lines of the one she operated at Bowmanville until Ontario officials closed it.

The West Summerland residence where she plans to establish has been donated to her.

Meanwhile, some Victoria area welfare officials have contended the government should prevent Mrs. Whyte from establishing in B.C.

David Woodsworth, executive director of the family and children's services here, said Mrs. Whyte's establishment "is 35 years out of date."

STIFF PENALTIES

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's lower house of parliament today unanimously passed a bill imposing stiff penalties for kidnapping children and maiming them for begging. The penalty for maiming a child is life imprisonment and for kidnapping 10 years and a fine. Members said organized gangs kidnapped children and broke their limbs before they were sent out as beggars.

Bank's Cheque $4,000,022.75 Still Not Cashed

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP)—Unless the Hadley Falls Trust Company comes to terms with a small segment of the U.S. air force, the quarters of Sgt. James Walsh will be graced with a novel decoration — the bank's cheque for $4,000,022.75. The terms are bear cut.

The sergeant's wife was given the cheque when she applied for a mere $22.75. The bank wants it returned, after firing the teller who conspired it on a cheque-writing machine.

Mrs. Walsh says the bank can have it back if it rehires the author, Miss Ann Hellwell.

"If I have to keep it," she said, "I'll frame it."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Walsh has transferred her banking to another institution.

At the moment, the cheque is not only out of circulation, but out of the country...Sgt. Walsh took it with him on a round-trip flight to Goose Bay, Labrador, and he isn't expected back until Wednesday night. He is on his wife's side.

"He took it with him," said Mrs. Walsh, "because he felt I might give in to the bank and return it."

Meanwhile, Miss Hellwell, employed by the bank five years, is in a state of shock, in a doctor's care.

The bank didn't appear to be resting comfortably, although banking authorities said there was virtually no possibility of cashing such a cheque.

George V. Wallace, president of the trust company, said: "We expect our work to be checked accurately. In this case it was not. If the (Miss Hellwell) couldn't tell the difference in figures, she certainly should be fired."

To which Mrs. Walsh responded: "She could have been reprimanded, I don't think she should have been fired."

EXODUS DAMAGE SUIT

TEL AVIV (AP)—An Israeli Airline official claims in a damage suit that novelist Leon Uris ridiculed him in his best-seller Exodus. Dov Landau says a character in the novel with his name is a passport forger, and that lays the real Landau open to ridicule because he has to handle travel documents. Landau is asking £3,000 from the publishers and a ban on the book's distribution until the forger's name is changed.

Reporter Admits Lying About Offer of Bribe

NEW YORK (AP) — Reporter Eugene Gleason has admitted to the district attorney's office that he lied when he claimed a high city official tried to bribe him to stop investigating New York's slum clearance program.

Gleason, a reporter for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, told Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Scotti Monday that he lied twice about the "bribe"—first in 1956 to fellow reporter Fred J. Cook, and again last Sunday night on a television program.

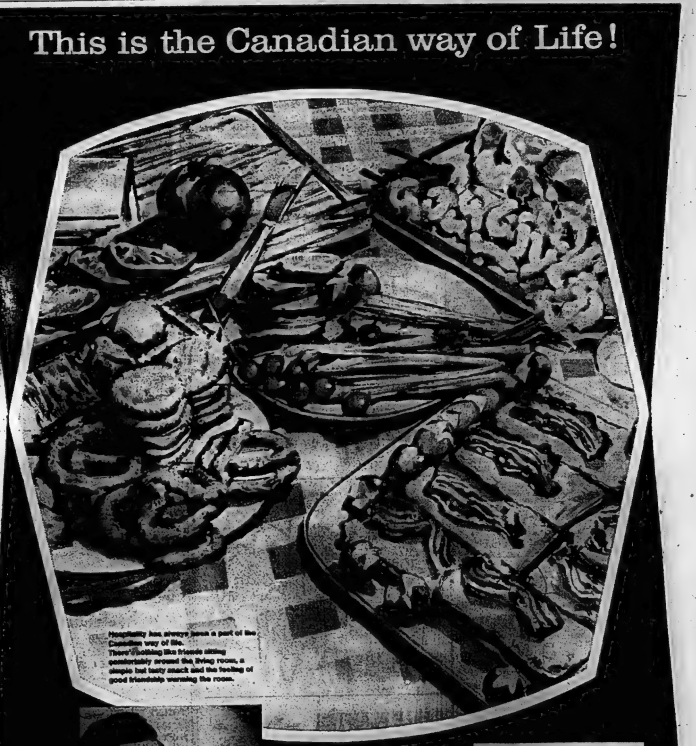
Cook, also with The World-Telegram and Sun, said on WNTA-TV's discussion program Open End that Gleason had told him a high city official offered them $75 to $100 a week each to halt their research on the slum clearance program. Gleason said on the show that the official was still in the city administration.

Along with other newspapermen, Cook and Gleason were discussing their recent article, The Shame of New York, which appeared in a special issue of The Nation, a weekly magazine.

CALLED FOR INTERVIEW

Hogan said Gleason at first District Attorney Frank S. Hogan called Cook and Gleason to his office Monday. After the others left, Gleason remained with Scotti and Assistant District Attorney Francis X. Clark.

Stuck to his story and named a city official, but that after four hours of questioning, Gleason signed a six-page statement admitting he lied.



"He used the name of a high and respected public official," Hogan told reporters after Gleason left his office. "It was a fabrication.

CRISIS CONTINUES

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—A state of emergency in Ceylon, imposed after the assassination of Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike Sept. 25, was extended into its third month today. Official sources said one of the reasons for the extension was to give validity to a decision to revive capital punishment now enforced by the emergency regulations.

Rookie Centre Called up by Boston Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — The skidding Boston Bruins, plagued by injuries and a streak of six games without a win, Tuesday called up a rookie centre from their Providence, R.I., farm team and shifted a defenceman to left wing.

The Bruins called up Stan Faluzik, who ranks third in the American League scoring with six goals and 13 assists. Boston coach Milt Schmidt put him on a line with Dick Meissner and Jerry Toppazzini.

Schmidt also shifted defenceman Doug Mohns to forward, a position he played when he first joined the Bruins seven years ago. He was converted to defence in the 1955-56 season.

Both moves were designed to plug some of the holes left by a recent rash of injuries.

Left winger John Bucyk, who started on the high - scoring line with Bronco Horvath and Vic Stasiuk, is out for at least two more weeks. Defenceman and captain Fern Flaman will be out for another week. Centre Charley Burns may be able to return later this week.

Marlies Victory Drops St. Mikes Into Second Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An average of a little more than 11 goals a game were scored during Ontario Hockey Association Junior A encounters Tuesday night.

Toronto Marlboro bounced St. Michael's College Majors 9-2 while Peterborough Petes outscored Hamilton Tiger Cubs 11-4 and Guelph Biltmores whipped St. Catharines Teepees 7-1.

The Marlboros victory dropped St. Mike's into second place in the standings followed by Peterborough, trailing by one point. Guelph is fourth, Hamilton sixth and St. Catharines is deep in the cellar with only one win in nine starts. Barrie, idle Tuesday night, is fifth.

PLAYED FOR KEEPS

A total of 82 minutes in penalties were handed out in the Toronto game, with Marlboros being assessed 46. Four separate battles were staged throughout the game.

Defenceman Ross Morrison, slap - shot artist, scored three goals for Marlboros, who led 2-1 at the end of the first period and 6-2 going into the third.

Centre Jack Martin also scored three goals and Gaston Brossard, Rickie Hay and Gary Jarrett scored the others.

Losing only their second game in 10 tries this season, Bob Davidson and Dave Keon scored the Majors goals. They have tied one.

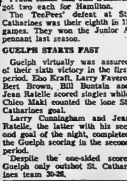
Marlboro centre Don Curry and St. Michael's defenceman Arnie Brown staged an on-skid out battle in the third period which resulted in both being ejected from the game.

BIG SECOND PERIOD

At Peterborough things weren't quite so rosy although the Hamilton Tiger Cubs suffered their most humiliating defeat so far in the 1959-60 schedule. It was 3-1 for Cubs in the first period and 8-4 going into the third for Petes.

With the exception of defenceman Paul Sakes and goalie Yvon Pinsault, everyone of the Petes was in on the scoring or assists. Weiner Connelly and Dave Bessa tallied twice each, singles going to Ray Kanerva, Barc Plager, Gary Mork, Bob Rivard, Fred Dirt, Doug Senior and Reg Mcholland.

Frank Hinks and Jim Dahlmer got two each for Hamilton.



The TeePees' defeat at St. Catharines was their eighth in 11 games. They won the Junior A pennant last season.

GUELPH STARTS FAST

Guelph virtually was assured of their sixth victory in the first period. Ebo Kraft, Larry Favero, Bert Brown, Bill Buntain and Jean Ratelle scored single while Chico Maki counted the lone St. Catharines goal.

Larry Cunningham and Jean Ratelle, the latter with his second goal of the night, completed the Guelph scoring in the second period.

Despite the one-sided score, Guelph only outshot St. Catharines team 30-28.

Louis Lecompte Inaugurates European Referees' School

ZWEIBRUCKEN, Germany (CP)—At the close of the world hockey tournament in Prague last March, Wilhelm Egginger was voted the outstanding referee of the competition.

It was a feather in the cap of the RCAF's No. 3 Fighter Wing sergeant, a lean, confident resident of Munich, is chief referee of the German Ice Hockey Federation and the only graduate of the first Canadian refereeing school, conducted here last fall.

The school, operated by RCAF personnel, held its second one-week session last month for 22 students from Germany, Sweden and Switzerland, and 500 Canadian airmen interested in qualifying as accredited referees under International Ice Hockey Federation rules.

The school's value can be fervently confirmed by any Canadian participant or spectator at previous international tournaments, which have been bedevilled by varying rule interpretations and occasional incompetence by the refereeing staff.

OTTAWA MAN'S IDEA

The idea originated with FO Lou Lecompte of Ottawa, who officiated at international tournaments and refereed in Germany while he was stationed in Canada's NATO Air Division. When he was posted back to Canada, Lecompte suggested that the Canadians could organize classes to help raise the standards of European refereeing to match the improvement in playing ability.

The project was spurred by frequent German requests for off-duty Canadians to handle their important games. The requests got to be more than the airmen could handle.

The school itself was established at a meeting of RCAF personnel and German Ice Hockey Federation officials in December of 1958. Twenty - three German officials took the first course under the instruction of Col Norm Warner of Grimsby, Ont., who has since returned to Canada.

FIt. Lt. Connie Le Feuvre, a member of Ottawa RCAF Flyers who won the Allan Cup in 1947, supervised this year's course. German-speaking FO Joe Farr, also of Ottawa, handled arrangements with the German federation. Farr, the wing's recreational officer, was responsible for most of the administrative details.

EXPANSION PLANNED

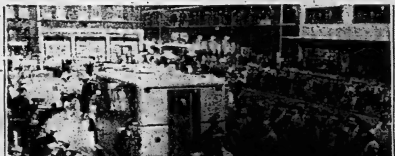
Le Feuvre kept his students on the go from 8 a.m. to 7 or 8 p.m., giving them physical workouts and classroom lectures, as well as practical training.

An important feature was standardization of signals. A frequent source of grief in International matches involving teams speaking different languages is the situation where a player is wise to the penalty box and nobody except the referee has any idea why he is sent off.

The RCAF Flyers co-operate in the practical sessions by splitting into two teams for scrimmages. Two students officiate with Le Feuvre, also on the ice to point out errors. The rest of the class keep score sheets on which they assess the competence of the men on the ice.

Apart from training as many Europeans as can be fitted in, the school plans to institute similar courses for air division and Canadian army personnel stationed in Germany as well as members of the United States Air Force.

Second Best Loses Riders City Dinner



OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders only came close to getting into the Grey Cup final—thus no testimonial dinner from the city.

A suggestion by Alderman Murray Holt that the team be honored was not entertained by board of control Tuesday.

Mayor George Nelms said "we have every appreciation of the team and its efforts to get into the finals. Unfortunately this did not happen and we will have to wait for another and more successful year before we can honor the team."

TIGERS NAME SCOUTS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers Tuesday named full - time scouts to cover Cuba and Puerto Rico, Milo Guerra, former Philadelphia Athletics and Washington catcher, was appointed Detroit scout in his native Cuba. Babel Perez, general manager of the Marianao team in the Puerto Rico League, will cover his island homeland for the Tigers.

HEAVY SECURITY — Armed guards keep a close watch on the Grey Cup as it is removed from an armored car for display at ceremonies in front of Toronto's city hall marking the beginning of Grey Cup Festival Week in the city. The cup, emblematic of Canadian football supremacy, will be kept under guard in a downtown bank until presentation to the winning team Nov. 28. (CP Wirephoto).

Seattle Totems Defeat Canucks, Climb to Second

By The Canadian Press

Seattle Totems Tuesday night defeated Vancouver Canucks 3-1 and moved into second place in the Western Hockey League.

It was the 10th of 22 games which the Totems have played in which the game has been decided by one point. It has been in Seattle's favor six times.

Edmonton Flyers edged Calgary Stampeders 5-4 and the cellar-dwelling Spokane Comets beat Winnipeg Warriors 5-3.

It was Vancouver's first loss in 11 home games.

OVERTIME VERDICT

Edmonton and Calgary went into overtime for a decision which left them in a fourth place tie. The Stampeders, suffering from the 14-day suspension of defenceman Doug Barkley had a tough night. They lost forward Merv Kuryluk in the second period when he came out of a brawl with Flyers' rearguard Pete Goegan bruised and bleeding. Both players were given major penalties.

Chuck Holmes' overtime goal gave Flyers the decision. Other goals were picked up by Forbes Kennedy, Jim McNeil, Hugh Coffin and Len Haley. Ron Leopold got two Stampeder goals. Jim Mott and Jackie McLeod scored one apiece.

Winnipeg and Spokane also ended up in a tie in the standings. They are in sixth place. Les Lilley led Spokane with two goals. Ching Johnson, Al Johnson and Ed Aitwell had singles. Ray Brunel scored two and Steve Wiltuk the other for Winnipeg.

American Loop's Attendance Best In Ten Years

BOSTON (AP) — The American League drew 9,140,454 fans in 1959, its best attendance mark in 10 years, league president Joe Cronin said today.

The figure represents an increase of 1,853,426—about 25 per cent—over the 1958 attendance of 7,286,604.

New York Yankees, who slipped to third place in the standings, led in attendance with 1,522,639 at home and also placed the league on the road, drawing 1,967,782.

Of the eight teams, only Boston failed to show an increase in home attendance, slipping 92,945 to 984,182.

Cleveland enjoyed the biggest increase, drawing 1,497,976 compared with only 683,805 in 1958. Pennant-winning Chicago boosted its home gate 525,621 to 1,422,164. Detroit drew 1,221,221.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This year marks the 32nd East-West Grey Cup clash, but only since that famous Calgary Stampeders-Ottawa Rough Riders clash in Hogtown in 1948 has the classic reached the moose-from-mouse stage.

Two years of the time Buck McCallum rode herd on a bunch of Queen City cowpokes, liberally sprinkled with the crewcuts type from the oil-fields of Saskatchewan, the Grey Cup was something that bothered only a few. In fact it was just another game played by a bunch of athletes who didn't know enough to come in out of a snowstorm.

True, they had their celebration, too. Ted Reeve, one of the Tarzanesia dichard football athletes and dean of the Hogtown sportswriters said he played in one game on November 28th and crowned out from under the shade on Christmas eve. That, he says, was a celebration declare. And Reeves' team didn't even win.

Gad, the Ole Meaner might have been coupled up under the two-by-fours right now had his Beaches come out on top.

But 1948 was THE year for the Grey Cup shenanigans. Gadzooks, the cowpokes and cowgals from ole Calgary and Gadzooks, the cowpokes and cowgals from ole Calgary and points thereabouts as far east as the lakehead took plaid (up to that point) old Toronto by the ears. They came in by truck, car, train, saddle, afoot and chuckwagon. They ripped Hogtown apart and left it to the hometown cowboys to put it together again. In fact some of the pieces are still missing. There is one in this desk, compliments of the Press Club.

From that famous celebration, the Grey Cup and what it means and brings has been the growth of Canada's athletic show in historic Toronto, the Stanley Cup final games soon and spades. It is the setting for a half-million headaches and a half-million bucks in the pockets and cash registers of Toronto business men.

Tickets are scarcer than capitalists in Mr. K's cabinet. A friend of mine, Larry Meagher, has one. Yesterday he went out and hired a platoon of the Hasty Pees to mount guard over it. Larry won't say where he got it. Thus far he's haven't heard of a brewery brass or an insurance magnate being "stuck up."

However, let's get down to the present and facts.

Jack Sullivan, CP sports editor, says the west is favored to cop the gonfalon this year. The prairie punters have won the mug just eight times but it became important in 1921 when Edmonton whomped Argonauts, 22-0. Year after year the eastern clubs cleaned up—so did the eastern boys in the back rooms.

In 1954 Eskimos beat Montreal Alouettes 26-25 in what was, considered the biggest upset since 1935 when Winnipegs knocked over Hamilton Tigers 18-13 to give the West its first victory. Eastern gamblers took a fearful beating that year.

There was a hint of things to come in 1957 when, three weeks before the cup final, the West was installed as favorite at 13-to-5 odds. The oddsmakers had figured the Eskimos would knock off the Blue Bombers in the WIFU final and best Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the cup.

The Bombers exploded the Eskimo myth in a wild three-game western final and the gamblers were quick to jump on the East bandwagon. Tiger-Cats were favored to win with 6-5 odds spread at 6-to-5 odds or 5-to-5 without the point spread.

Bombers lost 32-7 and again were underdogs when they met Tiger-Cats in 1958. Doubting easterners took a financial skinning as the Bombers won 35-26.

A couple of years ago the opening line on the East-West final made the East three-point favorites. That was before the first game of the Hamilton-Ottawa Big Four final. Westerners came in with plenty of bets and the bookmakers made a switch.

At the end of last week they made Bombers favorites at three points, 6-to-5 take your pick. This meant that if you wanted to bet the West you would have to give 6-to-5 odds and three points.

If you wanted to put your money on the East you would still have to give 6-to-5 odds but you would get three points.

Rangers, Boston Meet, Both Trying To Get Out Of Rut

Both Clubs Dips Into Farm Systems to Try and Snap Out of Lethargic Showing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers and Boston Bruins meet at New York tonight in a national Hockey League game which could end either of two tales of futility. Both clubs have dipped into their farm systems to try to snap out of their lethargic showing.

Rangers, who have won only three of their first 19 starts, will have goaltender Marcel Pallie in the nets.

It was against Bruins that Rangers last won a game. They blanked Boston 4-0 in New York Nov. 11.

General manager Muzz Patrick, who sent regular goaltender Lorne Worsley down to Springfield Indians to replace Pallie in the American Hockey League, said Worsley "has looked very nervous" in recent games.

NOT A STRANGER

Pallie's third crack at the big time. Last year he played only one game when Worsley was injured but in seasons ago performed in 33 New York contests, posting a 3.10 goals-against average and one shutout.

Meanwhile, Bruins were doing some shuffling of their own in an attempt to shake the slump which has pushed them from a second-place tie early in the season to a distant fourth.

Hiding a six - game winless streak and plagued by injuries to key players, Bruins Tuesday recalled rookie centre Stan Rebilik from their Providence, R.I., AHL farm team and announced that defenceman Doug Mohns would be moved to a left wing position.

Coach Milt Schmidt said he will use Rebilik, who had a six-goal, 19-assist total at Providence, on line with rookie Dick Meissner and Gerry Toppazzini.

Mohns is moving back to the position he occupied when he started with the Bruins seven seasons ago. During the 1955-56 season Bruins moved him back to the blueline.

Schmidt said the changes were necessary to plug some of the holes left by recent injuries and to try to spread the scoring over three lines.

BUCK STILL OUT

Bruins, who have 18 points, five fewer than third-place Toronto Maple Leafs and eight more than fifth-place Rangers, are without left winger Johnny Bucyk, who is sidelined with a shoulder injury; Guy Gendron has been taking his place alongside Bronco Horvath and right winger Vic Stasiuk on the Uke Line.

Defencemen Fern Flaman isn't expected back in the lineup for another week. He suffered a knee and ankle injury last weekend and joined centre Charley Burns on the inactive list. Burns, out with a head injury, may be able to return later this week.

There's a full schedule Thursday night. Montreal Canadiens, riding a 15 - game undefeated streak and resting comfortably in first place with 32 points, meet the second-place Red Wings at Detroit. Wings have 26 points.

Toronto visits last-place Chicago Black Hawks, who trail Rangers by one point, while Rangers and Bruins meet again at Boston.

PREPARE FOR OPENER

TORONTO (CP)—The University of Toronto Varsity Blues, defending intercollegiate hockey champions, open their 1959-60 season Friday when they play host to Laval University of Montreal at Varsity Arena. Minus about 10 of last year's players, the Blues recently returned from a two-game exhibition tour with 3-4 and 3-4 victories over Clarkson College and St. Lawrence University respectively.

PLANS TO RETIRE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—World flyweight champion Pascual Perez would like to have a go at the bantam title before retiring after a couple of more fights.

The 23-year-old Argentine said Tuesday he plans to leave the ring soon.

"If I win my next defence of the flyweight crown, I would like to challenge Joe Becerra of Mexico for the bantam title," he said. "That would be a nice way to wind up my career."

Clair Offered Another Post Says Journal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Journal says coach Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders has been offered a coaching position with one of the clubs in the new American Football League.

The paper says Clair will meet with the club owner in Toronto Friday.

Rider President J. Barry O'Brien said he has heard nothing about the coaching offer to Clair and doesn't know about Clair being dissatisfied with the terms of his five-year contract.

He said the five-year contract was signed at Clair's urging because he wanted security.

The Journal says Clair didn't want to elaborate on his new offer other than to say he's interested enough to meet the man.

That was an increase of 223,164 over 1958. Milwaukee, San Francisco and Pittsburgh were others to go over the 1,000,000 mark although Milwaukee had a decline of 221,369.

Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati showed attendance increases over 1958 but Cincinnati had the lowest total for the year with 801,286.

$94,200 still was the third highest in the loop's history.

Official figures reported today from National League headquarters showed the 1959 paid attendance was behind only the 10,164,-396 the loop drew in 1958 and the 10,398,470 it drew in 1957.

The league's biggest attendance prior to the end of the war was 9,546,152 in 1930.

"Where Those Good DOVERCOATS Come From"

'Tackle Eligible' Routine Devised by Hamp Pool May Be Used by TiCats Saturday

TORONTO (CP) — The ghost of the Big Four's deadest football team may manage an honorable chuckle it a certain play unbeats at Saturday's Grey Cup game.

It's known as the "tackle eligible" method and was devised by Hamp Pool, fired as coach of the last-place Toronto Argonauts late in the season.

The Argos didn't use it much after injuries to two key men, Paul Fedor and Pete O'Garra. But it has since popped up in the repertoire of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The speculation now is whether coach Jim Trimble will trot it out against Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Exhibition Stadium.

He was reported planning to do so in the first game of the Big Four playoffs against Ottawa Rough Riders but changed his mind after the Ticats' head was tipped in a newspaper story.

It was used in the second game, with devastating effect.

ARGOS FEARED EFFECT

The Argos, in fact, viewed the strategy as so dangerous they were afraid to face it.

"We didn't know how to defend against it ourselves," Joe Thomas, Toronto's former line coach, said a while back. "We knew other teams would pick it up and use it against us."

Briefly, it involves some line-shifting to make an eligible receiver at one end ineligible or eligible. The opposite end pulls back to convert the tackle into an end and therefore an eligible man, making an extra receiver on the other side.

As of Tuesday, Trimble wasn't talking about his plans. He had a closed two-hour briefing with his team after rain at Hamilton washed out a scheduled practice.

It was reported the Ticats had remodelled part of a full moving report on the Bombers and that it did not come from Ottawa.

Trimble said Monday he would like to get the Rough Riders' backfield "a little more extensive."

Trimble did concede that he was considering defensive changes to cope with Winnipeg's powerful running attack which averaged 311 yards a carry over 16 games.

BOMBERS WORK OUT

The Bombers, meanwhile, held a quiet workout on the University of Toronto campus under the watchful eye of coach Bud Grant. They shift today to Varsity Stadium.

Grant's chief worry is that it's been two weeks since the Bombers played a game and even longer since they've been under severe pressure.

"We can't work," said Grant.

There was further activity Tuesday at Exhibition Stadium as the groundskeepers sought to get it in top shape for its first Grey Cup game.

RAIN CAME DOWN

The weather unfortunately, interfered. The stream, in place since last week, was rolled back but the field could be painted. Then it started to rain.

"The field was in excellent condition," said stadium manager Wally Hayter, "but I'd admit it did get a little wet before we could put the tarpaulin down again."

The forecast is for cold and a bit of snow today so the tarp will be lifted again to let the turf dry out.

Just so things will look pretty for the big event, a substance camouflage" will be used to cover any bare spots. It worked well in Ottawa for the playoff game.

Alex Olmedo To Join Pros

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Olmedo will join the ranks of tennis professionals within the next few days, it was reported today.

The 22-year-old Peruvian who led the United States in the Davis Cup last year, declined comment. However, his attorney, Daniel Gage, said he will make an announcement next Monday. Gage didn't elaborate.

Quebec Snaps Winless Streak At Eight Games

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Without Rudy Migay, third-ranking playmaker and scorer in the American Hockey League, Rochester Americans' attack stalled Tuesday night. The result was the end of Quebec's eight-game winless streak and a continuing the for second place in the standings.

The Aces' scoring twice when the Americans were shorthanded, beat Rochester 2-0 and clinched within three points of seventh-place Cleveland Barons.

Norm Corcoran scored one Quebec goal in the second period and Bob Barlow backhanded the other home in the third.

Minus Migay, the injured centre, Rochester's attack lacked cohesion and Quebec goalie Al Millar made only 20 saves to Ed Chadwick's 31.

Rochester and Providence are tied for second with 24 points, Hershey behind the league-leading Springfield Indians.

Patterson Wants Chance Without D'Amato's Help

By MILTON PHILLERTON JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson wants a chance to win back the world heavyweight title from Ingemar Johansson and if he has to do it without the support of manager Cus D'Amato, that's what he'll do.

The next move now is up to Johansson — or possibly the courts.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Patterson, who has been training for six weeks at Newton, Conn., said grimly:

"I want that fight even if I can't have Cus with me."

D'Amato's licences as manager and second were revoked by the New York State Athletic Commission Monday, leaving Patterson free to sign for his own services as his own manager. D'Amato said he would go to court in order to have the licences restored.

Johansson, who has said he preferred to meet Patterson the first crack at his title, returned to his native Gothenburg, Sweden Tuesday to consult his advisers, relax his shoulder and prepare for a tour of Latin America.

CONSULTS LAWYERS

He also wants to consult "law specialists" about the status of a contract held by Vincent Velella, successor to Bill Rosenzweig as head of the firm that promoted the first Johansson - Patterson fight last June. The champion has said he wants no part of a fight promoted by Velella and that he doesn't intend to fight in Miami in March.

Johansson raised a question whether "Velella and his associates have committed themselves so that our contract with them is worthless."

And although still can't collect the $132,000 due to him for the first title fight, which has been held in escrow to guarantee a return match. After one continuance, the court could pick it up any time, chairman Melvin J. Lewick said that wasn't right. The money hasn't been released yet and there's another lawsuit threatened if it is.

Payette Will Play Tonight, Three Placed on Waivers

Belleville Intermediate Manager Keith Macdonald announced this morning that centre Jean-Paul Payette will play his first game in the Bears hockey wheel tonight when they tackle Whitby Dunlops in an 8:30 p.m. game at the arena.

The Bears, hard-hit by injuries in their last two games, have used Payette's services sparingly since he joined the club, but is expected to be in the lineup tonight.

Payette has suffered a rotten collarbone injury.

Macdonald announced that Bears have placed defenceman Jim Adamson, centre Ron Richardson and defenceman Ray Partridge on the waiver list. Only regular out of the Bears because of injuries, Jones is expected to be out from five to six weeks.

And at least four of the other members will be operating under a handicap tonight. Wayne Stevens is suffering from a slight shoulder separation. Lou Gentile will be playing with a sprained wrist. Ron Caporale is nursing a charley horse and Steve Bellamy has the Floyd Crawford flu bug. Macdonald remarked this morning to a hockey fans since the team has been operating games. Adding that the injuries are not aggravated it is expected will be suitably dressed for tonight's game.

Macdonald announced that Belleville has been suspended two weeks by the Ontario Hockey Association for using an ineligible player, Ricky Gardner.

Payette, who has been working out with the club, will be available for some games and possibly Whitby Dunlops will be his first opposing the western swings with the team because of job commitments.

A Small Crowd

Frontenacs Draw Only 1,293 When Team Wallops Hull

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The smallest crowd of the season — 1,293 — turned out Tuesday night at Kingston Arena to support the Kingston Frontenacs, who had won only one of their last five Intermediate Hockey League games.

The crowd was well under the 2,000 mark in a city that 2,900 seeded to operate the club and was perhaps the smallest to see a senior pro hockey game in the Kingston Ontario city since the arena opened in 1951.

But at the end of the game those fans were delighted — and hoarse. Their Frontenacs walloped the second-place Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 8-1 in a scoring onslaught that saw them take the four goal lead in the first nine minutes of play.

WOLVES WIN

But they didn't do anything to the standings as Sudbury Wolves trounced Timmins Timberjacks 8-3 and increased their league lead. But it boosted the spirits of the Frontenacs and may help push the Frontenacs' backers to renewed figures back to normal.

The big guns for Kingston were Gerry Meehan, Stan Maxwell and Barney Krake, who each got a hat-trick. Frontenac coach Cal Gardner and Willie O'Ree scored the others.

Bob Elliott scored for the Canadiens in the third period.

Kingston's Stephens, Krake and Gardener have all had some sort of National Hockey League experience. Maxwell, a right Kingston's Stephens, Krake and Gardener have all had some sort of National Hockey League experience. Maxwell, a right winger and fellow - Marlboro - turned pro with Quebec Aces in 1956.

GOOD CROWD AT SOO

At Sault Ste. Marie, more than 3,000 watched the Wolves score five goals in the second period after a scoreless first frame.

Wally Boyer and Cummy Burton each got two goals. Tom Macarthy, Medric Mallette, Jean Amadio and John Sleever netted the others. The Soo scorers were John Offstad, with two, and Jim Farelli one.

Industrial Hockey League Results

Williams Brothers and Bonds TV's will meet this weekend in a battle for top industrial hockey league's top spot after racking up victories in last night's competition.

Booth's took a 6-3 win over Chris' Drive-in while Williams Brothers edged Ellis Printers 5-3.

Lee St. Denis placed the TV squad with two goals and an assist while Chuck Rowbotham was the top playmaker with three assists. Gardner and Bob Hughes each had a goal to one helper with Jack Calnan and Bob Brooks netting the other goals. Don Wood had two assists, Frank Cris, Cord Irwin and Jim Campbell one apiece.

George Graham scored one goal and assisted on three others; by "Shakes" Baker and Leo Cloyer, for Chris' Super Drive-In.

Williams Brothers came from behind to squeeze out their close win over the juvenile crew. Doug Morsen potted the winning goal with Ron Hall supplying marker for Williams. Bob Green and Jack Hall also scored with R. Knapton assisting on two, Duke Doran and Jack Lucas on one each.

Pete Weston triggered both Ellis tallies, assisted by goalie Jim Sheridan, Billy "The Kid" McGuire and J. Lewis.

Ellis' goalie Jim Chris' open play at 13.20 this week with Booth's and Williams' tangling for first place at 1.30 p.m.

Yvon Gives Up

Durelle Climbed From Fishing Boats to Threshold of Title

By BERNIE ST. PIERRE
Canadian Press Correspondent

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Yvon Durelle, the pride of Memramcook, Acadian who climbed from the fishing boats of Eel River Bar, N.B., to the threshold of a world boxing championship, officially announced his retirement Tuesday.

His decision was made following a conference here with Chris Shaban, genial grocer and Yvon's manager. Shaban said a letter had been sent to the Canadian Boxing Federation notifying it of Durelle's decision.

"Yvon's dead serious about quitting and has given me full permission to notify the boxing authorities," said Shaban.

Gene Letourneau, president of the CBF, said in Montreal that Durelle's Canadian light heavyweight title will be declared vacant as soon as official confirmation is received.

BACK TO THE NETS

Durelle, 30, vacates two titles to return to his first occupation, being. He owns four boats in Baie des Anse. He held the British Empire light heavyweight championship and was ranked fourth among world light heavyweights.

Durelle, a 16-year ring veteran, decided to quit the game after his second loss to Moore because it was too difficult to make the 175-pound light-heavyweight limit.

Boxing was good to Him financially in the last few years. He netted about $35,000 in 1958 and nearly $30,000 this year.

"But expenses - are high and much is left," Durelle said.

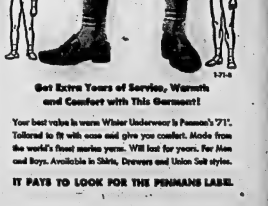
He climbed from the fishing boats to the ring by winning the Light - Heavyweight championship of the Canadian Maritimes in 1956. He knocked out Bobby Dykes in the first round of their world light-heavyweight title bout. He had Moore down once more in the fifth round before crumbling under the stinging blows of the old champion. Yvon was knocked down four times himself in their next meeting, Aug. 12. Moore knocked out Durelle in the third round.

UNPREDICTABLE

Yvon won when he was least expected and lost when he was favored to win. He had 140 professional fights, 105 of which are in the record books. He won 26, lost 34 and fought to one draw. He scored 43 knockouts and technical knockouts and was knocked out four times.

Durelle,who never liked to train, began fighting in the Memramcook Athletic Club after his second loss to Moore because it was too difficult to make the 175-pound light-heavyweight limit.

Boxing was good to Him financially in the last few years. He netted about $35,000 in 1958 and nearly $30,000 this year.



"But expenses - are high and much is left," Durelle said.

Patsy Kelly Back in Movies After 16 Years, Not Changed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "When you're hungry, it doesn't matter how big the part is. You just want to go back to work."

This was Patsy Kelly speaking. The same rumpled-looking Irish wise - cracker who played maids, secretaries and heroines' best friends in those well-remembered films of the '30s. She's back in the movies after a 16-year absence and looks unchanged. But her outlook is different.

That's only natural, for she has had some lean times since leaving Hollywood.

"It happens in show business," she said philosophically. "So much of the time you spend waiting, waiting, waiting. The important thing is know how long to wait before you have to take action.

WOLF AT DOOR

"I waited three years for a television deal to pan out for me. I waited too long. The wolf was not only at my door; I was living with him And he almost threw me out.

"Finally, I decided I had to go back to work — or else. So here I am."

Since her return, she has played a small role — again, as a maid — in Please Don't Eat the Daisies. She has a more substantial part in Warners' The Crowded Sky. And a TV series may finally come through next January.

Patsy is best remembered for a series of comedies she made with Thelma Todd. They had made 35 shorts when Miss Todd died in a mystery that has never been solved. She was found dead of asphyxiation in a car parked in her garage; it may have been accident, suicide or murder.

Lyda Roberti was brought in as Patsy's co-star, then she died of heart failure. The market for comedy shorts was dwindling because of double features, and Patsy devoted her career to features.

WONDERFUL TIMES

"I was under contract to Hal Roach Sr. for 11 years," she recalled. "He was a wonderful man and those were wonderful times. Laurel and Hardy were working on the lot then, and Charlie Chase, and Our Gang were being made. We all had a lot of fun.

"Sure, I was making a lot of money and I was spending it, too. Oh, I don't mean that I had a yacht. I don't like yachts. But I lived very well — too well, I guess. I didn't save a dime. Oh, well, I have no regrets."

After a quickie called Danger—Women at Work in 1943, Patsy headed back to her native New York City. She did a radio show, a Broadway play with Tallulah Bankhead, appeared with Tallulah on TV, played in summer stock and night clubs. Now she's hoping to make a good living from movies, as she did once before.

Western Hockey Assoc. Refuses To Intercede

OWEN SOUND (CP) — At a special meeting Monday night in Wingham the Western Ontario Athletic Association refused to intercede in a dispute between the Mildmay Hockey Association and the three Lobsinger brothers who are trying to obtain releases to play Junior B hockey with Owen Sound Greys.

WOAA president Norman Hill and his executive committee told the brothers to go home and think the matter over before discussing it further with the Mildmay club.

The brothers, Ike, 18, and twins Doug and Dave, 17, telephoned manager Tony Simon of the Greys immediately after the meeting and instructed him to issue a writ signed by Gordon Lobsinger, the boys' father. The writ states that the three boys and their father want the Mildmay club to release them so they may play hockey with the Greys.

Mildmay operated a Junior D club last season and officials there claim it cannot operate without the Lobsingers.

Women's Champ To Teach Skating In Switzerland

MONTREAL (CP)—Carol Jane Pachl, holder of the Canadian women's singles figure - skating championship and runner-up in the North American championships, has signed a professional contract. She will teach figure-skating.

She is off to Switzerland next month to accept a teaching appointment at the Davos Skating Club," Carol Jane said Monday.

She also will be booked for solo European exhibitions.

"I want to skate and since I receive from an arm operation too late to get ready for the Canadian championships and the Olympic trials, I decided to accept the professional offer. It came through the International Skating Association."

Shelley Berman Campaigns Against Tag Put on Work

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Shelley Berman is conducting a fighting, mad campaign against tagging his work "slick comedy."

"Slick comedy," defines Berman carefully, "is comedy material which violates what we regard as the limits of sensitivity—poking fun at a cripple, for instance, or kidding a typhoon that killed thousands."

Certainly Berman, a sensitive young man by all standards, does none of these things. "I'm a monologuist, and I'm interested in people and their foibles—their embarrassing moments, their fears and frustrations.

"My listeners are in the same pocket I'm in: "I'm making a confession of my embarrassments, fears and frustrations, and when the audience laughs, they're really saying, 'Yes, you, that's me.'"

That, of course, is what makes a night club or television audience react when he describes his thoughts during an airplane ride: The presence of all the life - support machines at the airport, the implications of strapping yourself in your seat, the cool, smiling reactions of stewardesses. Or the difficulties of talking to a child on the telephone, or trying to get through to the right person when calling a department store.

Berman is likely to pop up almost anywhere on the television dial, from variety shows to drama. He'll do one of his bits Sunday night on NBC when the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences awards its Grammies during a Sunday Showcase special.

A sharp-eyed viewer writes of certain soap commercials: "I have seen them put a single-breasted coat all covered with grease and dirt in an automatic washer, and what comes out of the washer is a double-breasted coat, nice and clean."

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be sure to put abode in the most charming order and taste. Then by giving service to others you make this the sort of blessed day for which our forefathers strived and sacrificed. Be particularly kind with every fellow worker.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — If properly attuned astrologically, you should arise singing like Caruso this morning. Then off to a most glorious day's festivities. Time to show off those fine talents you possess. Truly a day to remember. Smile.

Moon' Children (June 22 to July 21) — Spend this day with family ties and closest friends, and send wires to those at a distance or greet them with a fond telephone call. P. M. relax at the fireside or gather about the piano for songs and cheery patter. Have fun.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You must try to do much visiting today, not forgetting the poor and the ill, preferably with a basket in hand. Then sit down to supper with the very closest of kin or in degree of friendship to commemorate this important day.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — A day to give greater thought to good kin and understand how better to provide for or gain your mutual aims more wisely, emotionally. Discuss any momentary dealings over the coffee cups and cement better relations; reach decisions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Best astrological benefits can be derived today by spending your time with those who are the very closest. Also be certain you do your share of philanthropic work according to the highest tradition.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Getting together for a feast with partners and dearest pals to give thanks to God in unison for the blessings we all enjoy in our country, will insure greater security and tranquility. P. M. have a wonderful social time.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure you get out and do something patriotic now to foster the excellent idea which brought about this commemorative day. P. M. get together with employer or most important person in your life and plan the future wisely.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Take a little trip out-of-town this lovely day and renew old acquaintances or meet charming new people, explore some of God's loveliest acres, or find a new philosophy of living. Don't be lonesome in a glorious world.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A very accurate intuition is yours on how to be of service to those who love you or who whom you are closely connected. Follow through on it. P. M. be romantic, charming as only a Piscean can be, and don't take life so seriously.

If your child is born today ... has beautiful child born today will also inherit such innate charm that all will want to do for and cater to your little offspring. However, you must early teach to work for what is wanted, or the brilliant mind in this chart will be lost for the lack of use. There is the possibility of a very great success here, especially in the arts and anything connected with work on foreign shores.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Thursday, November 24

General tendencies: This can be one of your happiest of days and you can really have a good time while showing your appreciation for the many blessings which are yours. Be sure you get in touch with every single ally with whom you have any interesting alliance and cement understanding by showing you value being associated with them. Have fun tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Truly the day to dine in splendor with associates in divine understanding and harmoniously clear up any dissension between you. This applies to persons in your intimate or mercantile life. Have love in your heart.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be sure to put abode in the most charming order and taste. Then by giving service to others you make this the sort of blessed day for which our forefathers strived and sacrificed. Be parfleuilary kind with every fellow worker.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — If properly attuned astrologically, you should arise singing like Caruso this morning. Then off to a most glorious day's festivities. Time to show off those fine talents you possess. Truly a day to remember. Smile.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Spend this day with family ties and closest friends, and send wires to those at a distance or greet them with a fond telephone call. P. M. relax at the fireside or gather about the piano for songs and cheery patter. Have fun.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You must try to do much visiting today, not forgetting the poor and the ill, preferably with a basket in hand. Then sit down to supper with your favorite object of kin or in degree of friendship to commemorate this important day.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — A day to give greater thought to good kin and understand how better to provide for or gain your mutual aims more wisely harmoniously. Discuss any monetary dealings over the coffee cups and cement better relations, reach decisions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — A day for exercising greater humility. Take a good look at yourself and see what you have to do to be more charming. Dress charmingly, then have fun from early morning until late tonight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Best astrological benefits can be derived today by spending your time with those who are the very closest. Also be certain you do your share of philanthropic work according to the highest tradition.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Getting together for a feast with partners and dearest pals to give thanks to God in unison for the blessings we all enjoy in our country, will insure greater security and tranquility. P. M. have a wonderful social time.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure you get out and do something patriotic now to foster the excellent idea which brought about this commemorative day. P. M. get together with employer or most important person in your life and plan the future wisely.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Take a little trip out-of-town this lovely day and renew old acquaintances or meet charming new people, explore some of God's loveliest acres, or find a new philosophy of living. Don't be lonesome in a glorious world.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A very accurate intuition is yours on how to be of service to those who love you or with whom you are closely connected. Follow through on it. P. M. be romantic, charming as only a Piscean can be, and don't take life so seriously.

If your child is born today — The beautiful child born today will also inherit such innate charm that all will want to do for and cater to your little offspring. However, you must early teach to work for what is wanted, or the brilliant mind in this chart will be lost for the lack of use. There is the possibility of a very great success here, especially in the arts and anything connected with work on foreign shores.

Ruling Appealed

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Court of Appeal ruling Tuesday will make it easier for oil companies to oust service station operators from leased premises.

The court ruled that the relationship between the parties was that of a landlord and tenant. Three oil companies had appealed county court rulings that had established that of a licensor and licensee.

FRANKFORD
Sector Plan Helps Church Promotion

By ORAS. JUDD

FRANKFORD — A church was burning down and a member of the congregation found his neighbor at his elbow in the crowd. "Jim!" he snorted, "first time I ever saw you at church." "Yes," responded the neighbor, "first time I ever saw the church on fire!"

"Sector" is a new idea for church promotion and it sets churches "on fire." November 22 was "Sector" day in Frankford United Church and it was blazing with new vigor and vocational enthusiasm. After weeks of careful preparation, an inspiring morning service in a packed church and a sumptuous dinner in the church hall, an army of crusaders went out to visit 300 homes in this district, to invite people to a fuller participation in the fellowship and activity of the church.

The last great hymn of the morning dedication service, on Church Militant Zion, set the tempo, and at 2 o'clock a mighty army marched out of the church doors and the blitz was on. A movie camera caught something of the spirit of the occasion. Strangers wondered at the excitement it lasted till long after dark. At 10 o'clock the church hall was buzzing like Toronto Stock Exchange on a political campaign celebration, after a triumphant victory. We could hardly have been more excited.

GOOD RESULTS

Everybody was happy. The results were tabulated. The results were tabulated. The ladies were serving sandwiches and coffee. Participators were excitedly discussing a great adventure in Christian fellowship and vocational dedication. The local budget for the New Year will exceed the most optimistic estimates and the missionary activity will set a new record of achievement for this church.

"Sector" is so called because many churches of different denominations co-operate to form the circle of which the local church is a sector. It began about 2 years ago with the Baptists in the United States. It has already been of tremendous benefit to more than a thousand Canadian churches, boosting attendance, giving and participation in the missionary work. It has never failed to help.

There are three things basic to Sector success. First, the church, by careful preparation with all its departments, plans its program for a definite period and trained visitors go out and invite the people to participate. Secondly, the visitors avoiding cash donations or token gifts, ask the people to pledge whatever they think is reasonable, toward the week-by-week activities of the church, in order that the activities may be wisely and efficiently planned in advance. Thirdly, it involves so many people in its carefully-laid plan of procedure, that Christian workers are discovered all around us and the most unexpected places.

Next week's whole Child's Sector invites churches to share the experience of the man who said, "In the past 5 weeks our church moved ahead five years with the Sector plan."

Will Teach By Television

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto students from Grades 3 to 9 will be taught through television on an experimental basis starting Jan. 7.

The board of education management committee Tuesday approved production of 13 weekly programs of 15 minutes each dealing with science, art and vocational guidance for city schools.

CHILDREN SAVE

OTTAWA (CP) — Three children, for a time feared lost in a fire that heavily damaged their home Tuesday, later were found safe in the home of a neighbor. For a while it was feared the small children of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Drake were in the dwelling where a fire left 19 persons homeless.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved in actual tests, reporting sensations right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was retained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem." And in almost every case, sufferers were a very wide variety of heretofore-used conditions, some of even 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of painful injections or surgical operations of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) and the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Bio-Dyne is now available in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE HELPS BREAK DOWN FATS
IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that Carter's Little Liver Pills . . . actually breaks them down. It is established fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fats are broken down and form a smooth, easy-flowing oil.

In your digestive tract, liver bile helps break down fats the same way. Many of the fatty foods you eat reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty globules. Lack of sufficient liver bile may break down these fats . . . for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's Little Liver Pills' medicine helps your digestive system by making it flow more irregularly gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fats in your digestive tract.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Remember, Carter's not only relieves irregularity, but also helps improve the flow of liver bile. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today!

2 Eminent Politicans Urge Slowdown in Race to Summit

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two eminent politicians — both of them statesmen — urged a slowdown in the race to the summit.

Dean Acheson, secretary of state under president Truman, and Lester Pearson, minister of fairs minister in Canada's St. Laurent government, say that plans for next spring's meeting of heads of government with Premier Khrushchev are a surrender to Soviet pressure.

Pearson, meeting reporters in Halifax during a political speaking tour, said the West shouldn't abandon traditional methods of consultation by normal diplomatic channels.

"We are becoming victims—although I don't like that word—of the Soviet pattern of diplomacy by the mass at the top."

This viewpoint is bound to be unpopular now that the Western powers — as Prime pointed out — expect to believe that there is nothing to lose by sitting down with Khrushchev and talking about his demand, now a year old, that Western occupation forces be withdrawn from West Berlin.

It will be remembered that at the time he said they must go within six months. Later he said there was no deadline but it's obvious he would like to see them disappear.

Acheson, speaking to parliamentarians from North Atlantic Treaty countries in Washington, said of Khrushchev's demand:

"Over and over again he has said he has stated that the object of his policy is the withdrawal of foreign troops from overseas bases.

"And I think that we must respect Mr. Khrushchev, I think that we must see that when he strikes he strikes at the jugular. There is no feinting around with minor issues. He's striking right at the heart of the West."

The withdrawal of troops from overseas bases would mean, as far as Europe is concerned, that British troops would have to go back across the English Channel and American troops would have to cross the Atlantic.

The Soviet Union would still be in Europe and there would be nothing to stop them rolling west again just as they rolled Poland and East Germany. And — as was shown in fact in 1956 when Lebanon in 1958—it would be a ready job to ferry U.S. and British forces back over the water.

Both Pearson and Acheson believe that the West has no reason to apologize for building sound defences in Europe.

The danger in the forthcoming summit conference, as they see it, is that the West may be tricked into making concessions to Russia over issues that Khrushchev is solely responsible for bringing to a head.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Porter, of Toronto, at present with Miss Emma Porter, were present.

Mr. Porter, a native of Thomasburg district, has been retired after over 36 years service with the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Morton of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morton, attended the Massey - Ferguson Dealers Convention in Toronto on Nov. 14.

Miss Linda Vance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Vance, is to be congratulated on winning the second highest award at the Public Speaking Contest for the pupils of Tweed and district public school on the evening of November 12.

Some of the hunters have returned from their annual deer hunt and report varied success. Many more are in the northern parts of Hastings and Frontenac this week in hopes of bringing home some of the elusive creatures.

Mrs. H. Vance, Sharon and Linda, were Sunday guests of son.

Desert Resort Must Go Back To Cleaner Show

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nelson Eddy singing Shortnin' Bread, fastest of Gaudy Fanny stripping.

And a nearly nude chorus line perfected into cooleonesty.

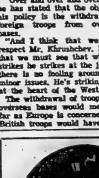
That's a result of a county grand jury campaign to keep the moral tone of gambling casinos this desert resort.

Both steps were taken Monday at one hotel. Another is fighting the grand jury recommendation that it fire its headliner—female impersonator T. C. Jones.

The commissioners included fiances with Miss Berr and here Sonnest in what they termed an suitable entertainment. Jones is appearing at the New Frontier.

Owner Bolden Katleman of the El Rancho Vegas originally had refused to fire Miss Berr after authorities pointed out that she is apparently under 18, prime sentence in Texas for possession of narcotics.

Her appeal bond was revoked while she was dancing at the hotel and she was jailed until it was reinstated. The 23-year-old blonde is an ex-girl friend of Mickey Cohen, the Los Angeles mobster, and there were rumors she had a part in her ex's ventures with the bondsmen.



County commissioners met Monday and told both hotels to explain why they shouldn't lose their gaming and liquor licenses because of what the commissioners termed unsuitable floor shows.

Shortly afterward Katleman announced he was putting costumes on the showgirls, bring and firing Miss Barr.

Miss Barr tersely told reporters she was getting out of town.

Mrs. Wilma Cox, of Flinton, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude R. Thompson, John and Christine, of Brighton, Ontario, also Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Thompson and Annie, of Belleville, were Sunday afternoon visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Thompson.

Montreal Hospital Shaken By Blast, Doctor Injured

Equipment Shattered But Fire Quickly Put Out

MONTREAL (CP)—An explosion shook St. Luke Hospital and violently fracturing the skull of one doctor and injuring another and an orderly.

One man died early on a boat after the explosion but hospital officials said his death could not be directly attributed to the blast.

The blast, apparently in the basement of the hospital's southwest wing, shattered equipment in first-floor emergency rooms and shook down plaster from ceilings as far away as the fourth floor of the wing.

Dr. Marcel Dusseault, 43, surgeon, was taken to Montreal Neurological Institute with a fractured skull. His condition was reported as serious.

Dr. Gaetan Lamarche, 37, surgeon-in-chief, and Emile Ouimet, 52, an orderly, suffered relatively minor injuries.

A small fire followed the explosion, but firemen put it out in 20 minutes.

BLAST PROBE

Firemen and inspectors of the Quebec Natural Gas Company were investigating the explosion to determine the cause. The hospital said there was a gas leak in the kitchen and the spokesman said that earlier in the day some workmen had been doing work on a valve which is connected with the main gas line.

Another hospital official said: "It was a miracle no one else was injured," said Abbe Rene Morrisette, hospital chaplain.

All 170 patients in the wing were evacuated to nursing homes, their own homes, and other parts of the hospital.

Dr. Lamarche, a six storey yellow brick building in the heart of Montreal, is the city's public emergency hospital.

SHOOTS UP VENTS

The explosion apparently shook up already shaky equipment. The shake upper floors. Basement vents damaged included carpenters' and electricians' shops and the rooms housing hospital records.

On the first floor an eye-to-ceiling window in an emergency ward were a shambles. General anesthetic floor offices were wrecked.

Mr. Ouimet, thrown across the second-storey hall as he opened a door, suffered shoulder injuries.

"I didn't hear any noise," he said, "but there could see what looked like fire coming at me. The fire hose coat was charred and half-torn from his back.

The two doctors were buried under a pile of rubble that crashed from the ceiling. Dr. Dusseault suffered head cuts and shock.

Dead is Arthur Pageau, 48, given the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church early Wednesday morning. The body is now expected to survive the day.

Moon Shot Fails As Biggest U.S. Rocket Fizzles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) The most powerful rocket ever developed by the United States failed on its maiden flight early today and ruined the American attempt to put the first satellite around the moon.

The giant Atlas-Able rocket thundered aloft at 2:36 a.m. Perched high on a 375-pound payload designed for the lunar orbit.

An hour after the launching the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that second-stage signals were lost 70 seconds after blast-off and that it presumed the second stage did not fire.

Observers saw a fiery chunk break loose from the rocket about 20 seconds after the launching and spiral into the Atlantic Ocean.

The failure was a bitter blow to U.S. hopes of getting a jump into the space race with Russia, which in recent months has scored spectacularly with its Lunik II and III rockets. One rocket crashed into the moon and another whirled into a wide orbit around the moon and sent back the world first pictures of the moon's dark side.

There is no backup vehicle for today's shot, so it probably will be three months before the U.S. can make another attempt.

The fiery launching was witnessed by hundreds of cheering persons who jammed nearby beaches. The watched rocket, hailed as the 36-foot, three-stage vehicle climbed into the sky, driven by flames created by the 360,000 pounds of thrust generated at blast-off.

No Charges Laid In Shooting Near Sarnia

SARNIA (CP) — Police said Wednesday night no charges have been laid in connection with Tuesday night's shooting of Mrs. Murrey Thomas, 37, mother of four, in her home near Oil City.

Mrs. Simpson is in critical condition in Sarnia hospital after suffering a bullet wound in the chest. The injury was believed caused by a 22-calibre rifle.

Her husband, 35, found the bullets grazed at a Sarnia hospital, reported recovering from an overdose of drugs.

Police said the rifle believed used in the shooting was found damaged and almost broken in two, in a field just north of the house.

The couple's four children, whose ages run from two to seven years, were apparently in the house when their mother was shot.

The six-year-old Jack, ran to his grandmother's home a short distance away and told her of the incident.

Today's Chuckle

A famous pediatrician was asked by a mother what was the best time to put her children to bed.

"While you still have the strength," was the answer.

The way some people treasure a dime, they'd think it worth the paper it's printed on.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Cold weather will continue over the eastern sections of Ontario Wednesday night. Snow flurries will occur over the mid-lake region and in Southern Georgian Bay where the lakes are Ontario. Considerable cloudiness and scattered light snow flurries persisted through the night in many areas. Light snow falls west and south of the Great Lakes are likely to affect southern portions of Ontario late today and Friday but no great change in temperature is expected. Snow flurries over the lakes are expected to let up somewhat Thursday gradually, during the day.

RAILWAY WAGE NEGOTIATIONS RESUME MONDAY

Atmosphere Cordial At Initial Parley

MONTREAL (CP)—New wage talks involving more than 165,000 men for Canada's major railways are to resume Monday after preliminary conference of union and railway negotiators.

The two sides—six railways, including the CNR and CPR, against 15 powerful railway unions—met in a cordial atmosphere for about 90 minutes Wednesday to explore the situation.

Observers expect the hard-hit Canada's biggest single labor dispute in many years—a long, complicated process of conference, conciliation and crisis and then end up as a problem for the federal government next year.

The railways want increases amounting to about 25 cents an hour in a two-year contract starting Jan. 1. The unions have rejected this proposal yet but have indicated that their wants are already as well said as their counterparts in industry.

COUNTRY-WIDE EFFECTS

The non-operating workers—so-called because they do not operate trains—are scattered right across Canada. They include electricians, machinists, track repair crews, clerks, freight handlers, shopmen, laborers, and the wing dispatchers.

The union's representing them, which bargain as a unit, asked for higher wages with a minimum hourly increase put at 12½ cents-an-hour boost. They also bid for extra pay for some 14,500 sessional track workers who get straight-time pay instead of working on statutory holidays.

The railways are expected to insist that the issue be negotiated separately by the single unions involved rather than by stood seeking changes in the union check-off, a system whereby the railways collect dues from the payroll for the unions.

The railways say the dispute could cost them about $37,000,000 a year in increased fringe benefits at a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase because it could affect other employees' wages.

No Action Will Be Taken On Wide Cars

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts said Wednesday the government has no plan to take action against owners of 1960 cars because they exceed the legal 80-inch maximum width.

He said nine 1960 models are slightly wider than the width specified by the Highway Traffic Act.

Tuesday the Attorney-General met officials of Ford Motor Company of Canada to discuss the legal widths. They told him Ford and Mercury cars are 80½ inches.

Sir Fords purchased by provincial police units will be repainted by the company's Oakville plant and equipped with shorter bumpers so they can be flown to legal width.

Members Move Over to Allow Churchill to Take Old Seat

LONDON (CP)—The familiar figure of Winston Churchill was in the House of Commons and stood, glaring belligerently at an occupied seat that has been his ever since the Conservative side.

The veteran statesman sat listlessly as the young Labor MP who was speaking delivered a dull, rambling speech of a policy considered the senior opposition spokesman. The silent figure in the back of the House remained riveted on the same spot.

Suddenly there was a stir on the government benches. Members nudged one another and hastily pushed along to make room for the newcomer, who, without a smile or gesture of acknowledgment, Sir Winston Churchill proceeded in triumph to occupy the seat that is tacitly held to be his personal property.

For a Commons career that started in 1900, he had emerged from the period of isolation in which he had been during the rearguard member wouldn't have budged an inch at the sight of him, to the wartime occupancy of the most important place of all, the seat in front of the dispatch box on the Speaker's right reserved for Her Majesty's first minister. His present status marks a happy compromise.

As he approaches his 85th birthday Nov. 30, Churchill no longer has the active part in House proceedings. He leans heavily on his cane, his hearing is impaired and he has obviously aged. But he continues to command audience regularly and attained the title of "father of the House" by his seniority as member—with six re - election last month.

And it is evident in his infrequent public utterances, usually on international affairs, that there has been little slackening in the vigor of his mind or in his ability to keep abreast of events.

Other echoes of the old Churchill persist. Making a campaign speech at Woodford Town Hall in 1951 during a general election, he fiddled in growing irritation with a pair of spectacles as he planned in a note, before putting them aside down his nose between cheek and forehead. Finally, in complete disgust, he took them off altogether.

As the speech went on, it slowly dawned on him that he was proceeding quite comfortably without visual aid.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, interrupting his speech. "I have just discovered that I do not need my spectacles. I have been using them for years."

He appeared as if it had been the greatest thing that had happened to him since VE-Day.

Vacancies already were occurring at a high rate. The nation was conducting a study and preparations were underway to 20 per cent of professional positions annually.

This was in contrast with a turnover ratio of about five per cent in 1953, the year when the then Liberal administration granted generous pay increases to civil servants.

Mr. Samson said the government hoped to cut the ratio to above those paid in industry if it hopes to gain new employees of a calibre equal to that of those now leaving.

Nomination List Longest Ever; Seven For Mayor

42 Proposed for Council, 18 Already Qualified

A contest for aldermen, for public utilities commissioner, and for public school trustee was assured this morning following the close of the nomination meetings in years held last night at city hall.

In all seven men were nominated to run for the mayoralty, 42 for aldermen, two for public utilities, 11 for public school trustee and ten for Separate schools.

Returning Deputy Clerk Adam Stalker reported that 18 had already qualified to run for the 14 aldermanic seats, while eight had qualified for public school trustee with seven to be elected, and both nominees for public utilities, incumbent John A. Weese and Fred A. Beeby, had qualified.

That far only one nominee for mayor, ex-Mayor A. McLean Risk, has declined to run for that office.

Eleven of this year's councillors were again nominated to run as aldermen. Eight other nominations included Lloyd T. Pringle, resigned city solicitor, have previous council experience.

Three of the nominees for mayor, Harold Armstrong, Jack Bell, Mrs. Enid Ponton, and Mrs. Vera Risto, being newcomers.

Four of the seven nominees for mayor are ex-mayors of the city. Besides Mr. Armstrong, Frank S. Follwell, Jack Bell, Mrs. Ponton, Arthur Keegan and W. Harry Rollins. The two other nominees for the office are Mrs. Risto and Harold J. Armstrong, are ex-councillors.

Reflecting the rejuvenated public interest in civic affairs undoubtedly resulting from the city's financial difficulties, the city hall council chamber and foyer were jammed to capacity for the nomination meeting which officially got underway at 7:30.

BULK QUICKLY EMPTIED

From the time nominations were opened by Deputy Clerk Adam Stalker until 8.30 closing time a steady stream of nominations was received. Just before closing time there was a rush and the nomination papers as latecomers came in to beat the deadline.

At the conclusion of the nominations, however, the city hall council chamber and foyer was stayed for a suggested program of speaking when the mayor had enabled nominees to state their respective platforms.

Texas-Sized Brush Fire Hazard, (That's Big Son), Threatens Towns

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — Flames speeded by fierce winds raced through grass and brush in northeast Texas Wednesday, destroying about 40 homes and threatening whole towns.

Fires burned today in widely scattered areas and firefighters remained alert.

Texas forest service officials, meeting here today, said they anticipated the widespread outbreak to explode into flames from the dry trash. Damage was estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One elderly woman died of a heart attack while fighting a grass fire.

"The fierce wind blew the flames across the ground—we had all kinds of fire fighting equipment but we just couldn't stop it," said Henry Pink of the Gilmer, Tex., fire department. He said about 30 Gilmer plus high school students who were let out of school fought the fire all day.

He said: "The fire settled down in the swamps (today) where we can't get at it. It's not a threat to the city but it is threatening some farm homes."

Pink said about 12 homes were destroyed and no one was injured.

The only thing we could do was go from house to house and tell them to get out," he said. "We would by-pass the homes. We did it to dozens of houses. The people could get out across the some left their homes. But there was no loss.

Most of the fires concentrated in the south and east of the second portion of Texas. Others dotted the countryside as far as two miles south and across the state.

Fire burning along a 20-mile front east of Marshall surged to the south edge of Waskom, a town of 1,200. The fire was within four miles of gas wells in the huge Waskom and Blocker fields.

A railroad bridge at Ballinger in west-central Texas was destroyed causing damage estimated at $50,000.

CIVIL SERVANTS OF HIGHEST RANK ADD TO PROBLEMS

Plan to Leave Within Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of a mass exodus of professional employees from federal government service has added to the government's staff problems. Tom Kent, editor of the Montreal Institute of the Public Services, S. W. Samson, said Wednesday professionals will start leaving their jobs by the hundreds within the next month if pay increases are not granted.

He said this is not a group move, but an accumulation of individual decisions arising from dissatisfaction with salaries following the government's announcement last month that it cannot afford general increases this year. He said: "Certainly by Christmas is the deadline."

This move by professional employees likely would affect particularly scientists and top technical staff now working in security work in the department of national defence.

Mr. Samets said there is a concerted effort by private enterprise under way at the moment for these men.

OTHERS INCLUDED

Other professional government workers also were preparing to respond to pay offers made by industry, universities and high grants.

The institute represents about half of the government's 9,000 professional workers.

The dispute is expected to bring about a change in the government opens in seven weeks. George McIlraith, MP for Ottawa West, has given notice of motion to have tabled in the Commons the Civil Service Arbitrament by the civil service commission on recommended pay rates. The government has declined to make the report public.

Adding pressure for government action have been large profit meetings by public servants banks, financing, investment and stockbrokers, and the action of the Ontario government in granting its employees a general pay boost.

Observers, asked whether the number of professional employees considering leaving would be in the hundreds, said "I was thinking in terms of higher figures than that."

Vacancies already were occurring at a high rate. The nation was conducting a study and preparations were underway to 20 per cent of professional positions annually.

This was in contrast with a turnover ratio of about five per cent in 1953, the year when the then Liberal administration granted generous pay increases to civil servants.

Mr. Samets said the government hoped to cut the ratio to above those paid in industry if it hopes to gain new employees of a calibre equal to that of those now leaving.

American Male Shot Down By Stewardess

LONDON (Reuters)—A Panamerican stewardess shot down the American male in flames Wednesday.

Susan Dixon, 25, who is leading the airline's recruiting drive for British girls as stewardesses, had these deadly words to say about American men:

"He is a conceited animal, obsessed with sex and alcohol, a nicotine and pep-pill addict, more interested in boasting about his love affairs than conducting a love-affair."

Miss Dixon's experiences with English men apparently have been happier.

"British men are courteous and appreciate a girl," she declared. "Underneath the bowler hat I admire. You find a flattering interest in a girl as a person not just a body."

Miss Dixon, a graduate from Paignton, Devonshire, said she had a number of attractive proposals from Americans in the last year alone, but declined to be the market for a British husband.

Khrushchev's Eye Is On History and Peace Role

By JOHN G. McCONNELL
Publisher of The Montreal Star

What contrast to move quickly from New Delhi to Moscow, from the ... trying heat of India—it was 91 in Delhi in late October—to the chill, slushy streets of the Russian capitals; from a country struggling to emerge from centuries-old backwardness into a state, to a land which is achieving that goal.

Russia. The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Fifty years competing its 40-year old revolutionary utopia, it has not yet absorbed and so fascinated by the thought and ideas of the 20th century, that it presents no threat to the rest of the world. Everything I saw and heard in Russia, I heard the same thing. Everywhere I looked and listened confirmed the accuracy of the statement.

Just as Nehru thinks constantly of his public image, and of his place in the history of his country, so too does Mr. Khrushchev. This is the key. Khrushchev has said himself: there was no Lenin for Russia's peaceful revolution; there was Stalin who saved his country in time of war; now there is Khrushchev who has said: "My place will be as the man of peace." Khrushchev, the director of Russian industrial machine, surpassed only by the United States, the man who brought prosperity and security to his people. This is the pattern of his behavior, and every public gesture maintains the theme.

SEE CONSUMER DEMAND

The Russian people are hungry for consumer goods, for food, for better luxuries. The most casual observer sees that. Khrushchev wants them to get what they want but first they must be, in the jargon of today, in a relaxation of international tensions." There is no reason to doubt he wants this. He got merely trying to soften us up.

Doctors Tell Of Finding Marks On Boy's Head

HULL, Que. (CP)—The trial of Mrs. Jean Ida Edna Ellis, 27, charged with murder in the beating death last September of her four-year-old son Kenneth, continued today in Hull's Court of Queen's Bench.

More than 35 Crown witnesses remain to be heard during the trial, which began Wednesday and is expected to last at least two more days.

Mrs. MacDonald, dressed in a black dress with polka dots, listened impassively while two doctors told the court Wednesday of finding marks of blows on the boy's head.

The child died Sept. 17 of brain trauma. Mrs. MacDonald was arrested a week later and charged with endangering the life of her son. She was released, then arrested again Oct. 16 on the murder indictment.

She has two other children, Lynn, 5, and Timothy 1, and is expecting another child in late January. Her husband, Angus MacDonald, is a member of the RCAF stationed in Ottawa.

To Disband Merchants' Body Form Chamber of Commerce

TRENTON — If the present plans of the Retail Merchants' Association work out, the association will be dissolved and a new Chamber of Commerce, a Board of Trade or a Better Business Bureau will be formed in Trenton shortly after the first of the new year.

At last night's meeting of the retail merchants, held in the recreation room of the Trenton Country Club, Douglas Whitley, treasurer of the association, proposed the change. Mr. Whitley stated that he felt the organization had proved itself, but that a Chamber of Commerce was a "must" in a town the size of Trenton. He said that he had been approached by tourists and newcomers to town innumerable times with inquiries as to the location of the Chamber of Commerce. He also said that, with the present set-up, the heads of industry in town had no say in the association, and that he felt the body would gain in strength if the membership was broadened itself, but that a Chamber of Commerce was a "must" in a town the size of Trenton. Toronto Firm Taking Over J. Lewars' Municipal Audits, Hiring Him to Do the Work

TORONTO (CP) — Most of about 30 Ontario municipalities who suddenly found themselves without an auditor have accepted an offer of help from a Toronto firm of chartered accountants.

Fred Page Higgins and Company offered to take over the municipal audits handled by John D. Lewars, Belleville chartered accountant who recently lost his municipal auditing license after a commission investigation into the city's financial affairs.

W. R. Kay of the Toronto company said Wednesday that most of the 30 municipalities have signified their intention of accepting the offer subject to council approval.

Mr. Lewars and his staff would be taken on by Fred Page Higgins either as full-time or part-time employees, allowing Mr. Lewars to continue his audits. Mr. Kay said the municipalities have indicated they wish to retain Mr. Lewars' services.

Municipal Affairs Minister Warder said the arrangement met with the approval of his department. Belleville rejected the offer last week and appointed another firm of chartered accountants to do its books.

Jim Driscoll of the Belleville "Y" Judo Club expressed his satisfaction today with the showing given by his club members in the Eastern Canada tournament held in Toronto last weekend.

Over 125 fighters from Quebec and Ontario participated in the tournament, sponsored by the Kido Kwan Judo Institute of Toronto.

Six members of the Belleville club took part and drew praise from Driscoll and Sensei Jim Hatachira, one of the great judo experts in the country, who oversees the work of the local club.

Driscoll pointed out that none of the Belleville fighters was actually beaten, even though they were competing against the top men in the country in their class.

It was also announced that Frank Hatashita had placed three of his fighters on the five man Ontario team to compete in the black belt Dominion Championships at Winnipeg on December 12. The winner of this tournament will go to Japan next May to take part in the Goodwill Judo Tournament.

Wintermeyer Tells Liberals Socialism Declines in West; Advocates Health Insurance

Ontario Liberal leader John Wintermeyer flavored an attack on the provincial administration with criticism of socialism here last night.

He told the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Liberal Association that Ontario in its present state of development had no need of socialism.

"It is my personal conviction," said Mr. Wintermeyer, "that throughout the Western World today, socialism is on the decline. The recent election in England is a case in point, and in the United States — and I think the tenor of thinking throughout all of Canada — demonstrate disenchantment with socialism and statism as such.

"That disenchantment is the golden opportunity for Liberalism in Canada and Ontario."

Liberalism, he said, is dedicated to serve the individual, a party of reform in the sense of good government.

HEALTH INSURANCE

And among the reforms which Liberals should now associate themselves with is "a program of Canada-wide health insurance.

"This is a desirable good and a necessary good for the people of Ontario — an assurance . . . that individuals and families' expenses will be taken care of and they will be able to get proper medical attention irrespective of the individual ability to pay for it.

"It doesn't mean state medicine" said the Opposition leader. "It doesn't mean absolute state control, it recognizes the individual has a right to the private relationship between doctor and patient. It recognizes the fact we must recognize the necessity of our medical profession."

Such reforms, he added, can be carried out without the intervention of an "all-powerful and autocratic state."

It was the party leader's first broad test to pay to the association on its political standing and the steps it should take to ensure its position.

He urged the members to more emphatically associate themselves with the principles and platform of the party.

"I feel that we — and I take my responsibility personally — may have been a little hesitant with identifying ourselves with principle early enough — with setting forth a program early in the campaign.

"We have learned our lesson well and even now we are preparing our program for the next election.

"I think that it's imperative that his identification of the party with program be enunciated just as soon as possible."

He warned the association: "It's hard to sell a program within a six-week campaign. It's hard to sell a party for its past achievements.

Following his address Mr. Wintermeyer answered questions from association members.

The following officers were elected: President — Dr. R. C. McVicker, Deseronto; vice-presidents, Eastern Region — Dr. Robert Clapp, Picton, western region — Thomas Jones, Cobourg; provincial representative, Robert Temple, Belleville, re-elected; management committee — Effie McCabe, Belleville, Hugh O'Neill, Trenton, J. C. German, Cobourg, Mac Alsop, Oshawa, Thomas Harris, Port Perry, G. R. Cameron Belleville. Mr. Cameron was named chairman; resolutions committee — Ronald Weaver, Trenton, Roger Conant, Oshawa; credentials committee — Mac McCaughey, Trenton, Colin Crews, Trenton; constitution committee — Hugh Gib- ing, Kingston, Kenneth Ross, Belleville; nominating committee — Herbert McCabe, Belleville, Dr. Charles Wood, Oshawa.

An executive and regular meeting will be held in Cobourg in February. The question of organizational directors was left to each individual riding.

Death From the Skies

A cargo plane crashed into a house at Chicago today, starting a fire which spread to nine other dwellings. Eleven died, eight of them residents in the houses.

This was not an unique accident. In recent years there have been several similar tragedies.

Facts may not bear us out, but it seems to us that accidents of this kind have been more frequent of late. If this is so, there are several possible explanations. The increased use of planes for the transportation of passengers and freight would naturally increase the hazard. Then, too, the slow sprawl of cities into the surrounding countryside must have multiplied the number of houses and apartment buildings located close to airfields. The constant growth in the size of planes would mean that the damage done by any big building would be heavier. It may even be that, at low altitudes when taking off or landing, the heavier planes are less easily handled when something goes wrong.

In any event it would appear that it has become more dangerous to live near an airport, that the danger is likely to increase rather than to diminish and that more and more people are going to live near airports unless some steps are taken to prevent this happening.

It may be argued, with validity, that the number of people who die when a plane crashes into their home is only a small fraction of the number of people who meet death on the highways. While this is true, there is something peculiarly disturbing about the thought of flaming death being suddenly visited on people who presumed they were in the safety of their own home.

One of the bottlenecks of plane travel is the time involved in transporting passengers from the centre of a big city to its airport. Still, we think that communities planners should give serious consideration to locating airports further from built-up areas. The additional time required to reach the city's heart would add but little to the inconvenience already experienced in this regard. Indeed, the very fact that the trip to the airport already takes so long might make this location easier to accept, rather than more difficult.

The Technique of Interviewing

One of the best CBC shows—correction: one of the best TV shows on this continent—is "Close Up." The other night, apparently, the program bypassed even its own customary high standard, when Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine, interviewed the former Governor-General, Vincent Massey. We missed the show itself, but both the Ottawa Journal and the Peterborough Examiner have seen fit to praise it editorially. The Journal said it showed that TV interviews "may be conducted in a civilized way, with grace and good manners." The Peterborough Examiner referred to it as a "masterful interview." Those who have had the pleasure of watching Mr. Fraser at work on other occasions will not be overly surprised at these words of praise.

What we did find surprising, however, was the fact that the Examiner used Mr. Fraser's interview with Mr. Massey as a contrast to some earlier interviews and inserted in these are with Bertrand Russell. Now it so happens that we saw this interview not once but twice, it or part of it, if memory serves us right, was included in a review of the programs highlights for the year. On neither occasion did it strike us that the interviewer, Janine Grand or Mr. Fraser, was making the least of the matter. But the Examiner quotes, evidently with approval, a complaint by "His Dominion," the journal of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, about the naivete of the interviewer. This reference is evidently to that portion of the interview concerned with Lord Russell's religious beliefs, or rather lack of them. "A churchman later commented that he would expect his confirmation candidates to present the Christian case with more know-how than did the interviewer," says the Examiner.

This brings us to the crux of the matter. Is it the duty of an interviewer to present the other side of the case when the person interviewed expresses an opinion? It seems to us that, if any such duty exists, it is merely incidental to the task of getting the person interviewed to amplify and explain clearly his opinions. If Elaine Grand failed to argue with her guest, might it perhaps not be because Lord Russell has a talent for making his own opinions crystal clear? An interview is not a debate.

TO THE STUMBLER

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Perhaps you have stumbled and fallered,
Perhaps you are down on your luck,
Conditions can quickly be altered
If only you cling to your pluck.
Remember that half the game's playing
You enter today in the town,
Had days that were black with disgrace,
And know what it is to be down.

Just get up again and keep trying,
The man that is wealthy today,
That now you are enviously eyeing,
Perhaps wasn't always that way.
He knows what it is to have sorrows,
So don't go about with a frown;
For you there are many tomorrows,
And you may not always be down.

Historic Hastings

A Milestone

Article 196
(Contributed by Members of the Hastings County Historical Society.)

This Article is a milestone in the life of the Hastings County Historical Society. It represents the completion of two years of its work by the Society.

Perhaps the writer could be excused, therefore, if he made a few remarks about its own a few ideas that have accumulated.

HISTORY

(1) History is essentially the record of man.

(2) The study of history is rewarding. It can show us how our world, country, county and city have developed to the present time. It can often suggest lines of policy to be followed today.

(3) Local history is important. It is the stuff of which provincial and national history are made.

(4) The study of history is fun.

THE HISTORIAN

(1) The historian is the mender of our civilization.

(2) "The historian is the parable teller of the universe."

CHARLOTTE WHITTON

The series of historical columns of this paper have recently called attention to a speech made here by Miss Charlotte Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa.

It was interesting to learn that Miss Whitton's ancestors lived in the Quinte district, that she holds an honor degree in English and History, and that she is extremely interested in history.

In her speech remarks, she noted how disappointed she was that the Hastings County Jail was being demolished. She described it as "the finest old court house in Eastern Ontario."

HISTORIC KINGSTON

This writer has been delighted by the series of CKWS-TV programs on the history of Kingston.

Prof. Richard Preston of R.M.C. is the commentator and recent programs have dealt with Governor Simcoe's and Mrs. Simcoe's visits to Kingston in 1700's, and the dockyard at Point Frederick.

The 25 minute program is seen Friday evening at 7.30.

LAYER OF CHEESECLOTH

Susanna Moodie's story of pioneer life in Ontario, especially Belleville, has received a particularly enthusiastic reception in Canada's newspapers, magazines and learned journals.

This book would make an excellent Christmas present.

Note: Articles 99-100 (with the exception of No. 99) were prepared for the late Gerald E. Boyce of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Strictly Personal

When Being Good Is Not Any Good

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

No comparable idiom is more expressive than the one applied between the large number of them I have bought and discarded in our near total decay is not than a solid gold pen that would last for a lifetime.

A "modern" home seems sterile to me unless it has antiques in it, and a new old-fashioned touch, such as a maple rocking-chair, sometimes seems unusually modern in the past; nothing becomes antiquated so fast as more "modern" things.

The Post Office Department has claimed for itself a swift lot of letters that were never written, and this that were never paid. I think the mail service is extraordinarily efficient, considering what the public correspondence habits of the public.

The people who firmly hold that all things must be done in moderation are usually immoderate in what they will not do, and they cannot see how pushing moderation to an extreme is a direct contradiction of their belief. The real task in life is to find out which things are worth being immoderate about.

Familiarity doesn't breed contempt as much as it breeds indifference, which is wonderful when you get used to it.

Logan Pearsall Smith was responsible for a maxim when he advised: "Don't tell your friends their troubles: they will cure the fault and never forgive you."

The Socratic verdict of "Nothing might be profitably introduced to American law, however, than a system where a jury is not satisfied that the defendant is innocent and does not have positive evidence to pronounce a sentence of "guilty"; the verdict of "not proven" enables the state to reopen a cr.seiff further evidence comes to light.

"Whoever loves much, does much", said Thomas a Kempis, and the thing is fact that real love is always active while its counterfeit is passive. The selfish flatter; calls up no genuine effort to do anything for the beloved.

What many parents mean when they speak of a "good" child is a child who doesn't ask too many questions, doesn't get in the way, doesn't insist on living its life for itself, and doesn't resent arbitrary decisions; in short, a piece of flesh, deficient in curiosity, imagination, energy, courage and independence.

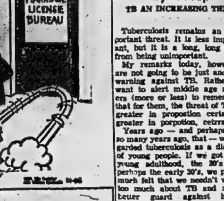
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING GRATEFUL

Gratitude will always stand out as one of the major virtues. Most of those who gain their fame and satisfaction from giving to others can testify to the happiness that pure gratitude means to those who receive it. It is a mistake to think that a large number of people work for money. They work for appreciation and love of service.

A single word has often changed the course of a human life. A word like "Thank you," or "I'm sorry." What a joy it is just to live when there are those about you, near and dear, who are constantly trying to prove the power of beauty that is exercised as we travel ahead in kindness and appreciative!



The value of interests lies in their power as they are spread for others to emulate. Every sincere prayer that we or someone else says for us adds a little more of gratitude. It's the encouragement and appreciation for service that helps along the most of those who both give and receive.

We should be grateful to Almighty God for every one of His endless blessings. What we do without Him is not recognized in distributing happiness, does not gratify us nor are the thoughtfulness of others. It binds us all into a kinship that does not perish.

Never disappoint a person by being ungrateful. It is the soul's nourishment!

Materials and money count for so much in the war that a republic, loyal and embedded as economic from line may be the determination to "fight" . Finance Minister Relston told the Canadian people last night in an address given at a banquet at work. Planning for war of three years' duration, it had been estimated by the Dominion Government that the war effort would cost about $315,000,000 for the first year, or about 50 per cent more than the Canadian costs up to March 1916. In the First Great War. The War Supply Board headed by Wallace R. Campbell, since September 1914, has contracted for or is negotiating for about $25,000,000 worth of supplies and munitions. It is the Canadian about $9,000,000 worth of special equipment from Great Britain, and about $10,000,000 mostly for airplanes and components from the United States. When war broke out, Canada consulted with the United Kingdom Government on what assistance Canada would provide, and as a result Canada will send a division of troops overseas to cooperate with the British Navy in keeping the sea lanes open and provide supplies of wheat for Canadians and other Empire air personnel.

Donated by the citizens and government of Nova Scotia, a shipment of 1,000 barrels of topgrade apples has gone forward to England for distribution among British soldiers. It was announced today. The shipment presented by Premier Angus L. Macdonald on behalf of the people of the province, is in care of the United Kingdom Commissioner in London, Hon. Vincent Massey.

Who Claims Goose Silly?

High Rive Times

There are those who question particularly at this time of year, the ability of a goose to speak with silliness or stupidity. A wild goose that is.

Some of the menfolk who have been making a concerted effort to bring down the wild birds and haunts of the wild geese have returned from their favorite lakes and fields are wondering how the expression "as silly as a goose" ever became a part of our patter.

Those who watch but have long ceased to try to rationalize the antics of the male during the hunting season also question the expression, as they watch the silly actions of the big, long-necked hunters into the chill and gloom of swamp and field at dawn and dusk.

Frustrated, males question aloud the wisdom of a female who can ask so unreasonably. "But wouldn't it be cheaper and easier to buy a goose?"

There are no recorded opinions of the goose on the subject of stupidity, other than an increasingly derisive note as it honks its way south for the winter.

Silly indeed!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two card carrying Communists called on me the other morning to explain to me how stupid I am. Each brought a friend developed in the modern art picked me up and took me to an exhibition of modern pictures. In the words of the gallery, we had to pass through seven rooms the walls of which were covered with modern paintings, and my friends undertook to explain to me that in order to look at those pictures I must have a special appreciation, I had to divest my mind of all previous microscopic ideas with regard to art. In the sculpture gallery, I was unable to recognize any of the objects on display. When I told my friends I supposed they were sort of driftwood done in stone, driftstone, they set me straight. They assured me I was not intended to have any meaning. I was supposed to get an emotion from looking at them, some weird kind of psychic communication between me and the artist who had drifted them up. I did not get the helpercast of them, but, as the Communists had said, I'm unable.

When we left the gallery, which is not in a very fragrant neighborhood, we met five lads with duck-tail haircuts, black coats, and pockets in which they crowded us off the sidewalk with their elbows, hands being in their pockets.

I began to feel it was an off day for me, and my friend drove me to his apartment where he has a hi-fi built around all four walls of a room. He played symphonies by Mr. Prokofiev and Mr. Bartok that sounded just plain nuts to me.

By the time I got home, I realized how stupid I really am, and how far behind the times.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TB AN INCREASING THREAT TO PERSONS OF MIDDLE AGE

Tuberculosis remains an important threat. It is less important, but it is a long, long way from being unimportant.

My remarks today, however, are not going to be just another warning against TB. Rather, I want to alert middle age readers (more or less) to the fact that for them, the threat of TB is greater in proportion certainly, greater in proportion, retrievably.

Years ago — and perhaps not so many years ago, that — we regarded tuberculosis as a disease of young people. If we got past young adulthood, the 30's and perhaps the early 40's, we pretty much felt that we needn't worry too much about TB and might lower our guard against the threats of other varieties.

Today we know this is not so. The average age of patients acquiring TB has risen to 43 — or perhaps I should say that it is the age at which it is discovered, and it is acquired somewhat earlier.

That is the average, so for every person who finds out at 30 that he has TB, there is another who discovers it at 60!

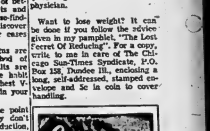
Why is this average age increasing? Partly because of better diet, better health habits and improved housing, but also, I think, because of the chest X-rays when a TB unit is in your neighborhood.

But to get back to the point we were discussing, why don't future adults show a reduction, instead of an increase, in TB?

This is something we cannot answer positively, but a very logical theory has been advanced. We know that some individuals, probably a great many, are exposed to the TB germ in the early years, the great majority of us encounter it and indeed acquire a mild case of it. Some, after contact, develop the disease. Some throw off all of once.

Others — and this is the crux of the matter — develop a mild case of TB, not severe enough to make them obviously ill, but enough to form a nodule in the tissue of the lungs and has done some damage, and then is finally brought under control by the defense mechanisms of the body.

We know this to be true by the fact that these nodules can be discovered while X-raying the lungs of people who "never had TB".



What's the answer? The TB germ, we have reason to believe, may be conquered by the body at times, yet some remnant of the germ remains lying in the bunch under or in some old scar. No test will disclose its presence. It is not, in that dormant stage, contagious. But if the body defenses break down, then the germ comes to life, and presently you have a full-blown active case of TB.

This may or may not be the correct theory, but evidence indicates it. And regardless of the theory, TB does break more and more frequently, among mature adults, as they proceed. Keep checking. If the germ has marked you for a victim, discover it soon, and defeat it. Knowing the facts, and having periodic X-rays, is the way to be safe.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I read your comments about peace of mind and God. I do not know what your church is, but I wish to commend you highly for being courageous enough to mention God and Christianity in your column. God bless you. — E. F."

Thank you, but I can't see that my "courageous". Still — I loved your remarks.

SIOUX LOOKOUT, ONT.

Sioux Lookout (originally known as Grahame) takes its origin to the coming of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. To the west of the townsite stands Sioux Mountain, named after the Sioux Indians, a tribe of Indian days this mountain was a lookout, communicating as it did, a superb view of the waterways for coming into the heart of the local Indian tribes, who lived in fear of the marauding bands of Indians from the Mississippi States. Many blood chilling battles were fought with Sioux invaders until a planned ambush ended forever the Sioux terror. Known to the Indians as a lookout for Sioux, the name Sioux Lookout was chosen when official name was chosen.

THANKSGIVING

O come, let us sing unto the Lord,
Let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.
Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving.

After the harvest had been gathered in, our Pilgrim fathers set aside a day for thanksgiving and prayer. They knew that with a noble tradition. The writers of the Psalms, after gathering the great Psalm writer David, had exhausted the language of praise and joy! It commanded in their attempt to thank God for His goodness, mercy, U.S. citizens celebrating Thanksgiving Day, gathering around the tables in their own homes with light, our hearts our lives with light, our hearts with courage, our minds with new and deeper insight.

Bless the Lord, O my soul!

And all that is with me bless His holy name.

Marital Troubles Disclosed In Hearing of Mrs. Hermon Charged in Husband's Death

The sibling sobs of 15-year-old John Hermon sounded through a hushed Marmora township hall Wednesday afternoon as she dishcharged last testified at the preliminary hearing of his mother charged with murder in the October 10th shooting of her husband.

The Marmora schoolboy was one of 11 witnesses called by Hastings County Crown Attorney John A. Pringle at the hearing of Mrs. Dorothy Joan Hermon, 33, mother of five children, who is charged with shooting her 40-year-old husband, John, to death with a .22 rifle in the kitchen of their Marmora home.

Late Wednesday afternoon the hearing was adjourned by Magistrate R. C. Jackson to Thursday December 3rd, when the Crown said it would call two additional witnesses.

Mrs. Hermon is being defended by Ronald Cass, Belleville lawyer.

Mrs. Hermon, appearing pale as she sat in court with a jail matron, was the English war bride who came to Canada with her husband 14 years ago. She has been in custody since the early morning of October 11th.

Along with Mrs. Hermon's 15-year-old son, other witnesses called yesterday included police photographer Sgt. Ivo Raichman and pathologist Dr. Alex Boks, together with expert witnesses from the Attorney General's Department in Toronto.

Sgt. Raichman identified photographs taken at the Hermon home and told the court that he could identify the fingerprints on the .22 calibre rifle which was believed to have killed the 40-year-old Marmora mine worker.

DUE TO SHOCK

Dr. Boks, regional pathologist for the Attorney General's Department and pathologist at the Belleville General Hospital, who conducted the autopsy on Mr. Hermon, said the man's death had been due to shock following a massive hemorrhage of the pulmonary artery.

He said the bullet passed through the fleshy part of the left arm, then entered the chest fracturing the 4th rib and passing through the pulmonary artery. The spent slug had been recovered in the victim's chest.

Dr. Boks said a person receiving such a wound might live a minute although this actual time would vary with the individual.

The accused woman's son John told how he and his younger sister Joyce had been in a winner party at the next door neighbour's on the night his father died.

They had come home about 10.30 and found their mother reading the paper. She later placed a cake in the oven and then went upstairs to bed.

The boy said that before his mother went to bed his parents had had a slight argument over musical radio.

The boy said he had watched TV with his father for a few minutes and also went upstairs to bed.

After going to bed John said he heard his mother get out of bed and walk around the floor. At the head of the stairs he heard a click like the bolt action of a rifle. His mother went on downstairs and then he heard a shot.

Fighting to keep back his tears, the boy said he ran downstairs to find his father and mother at the telephone in the kitchen. His father was holding the barrel of the 22 rifle in one hand while his mother had hold of the stock of the gun. In the other hand his father held the telephone receiver. His father then slumped to the floor.

The boy said he had tried to call the police and the doctor three times but was able only to get the telephone operator.

The witness said he had then taken the gun from his mother and was about to put it in the adjoining sewing room when his mother told him to leave it on the kitchen table.

"They might want to see it", he quoted his mother as saying.

Earlier the boy told the court that on the day before his father died he (the witness) had taken the 22 rifle down to shoot bluebirds. He had returned the rifle empty to its customary place on the wall at the head of the stairs.

The boy said that for several days prior to the shooting his mother had used an upstairs bedroom while his father had slept alone downstairs.

Two neighbor women of the Hermons told of possible marital discord in the Hermon home.

AWAY FROM HOME

Mrs. Theresa Bell told the court that during the week prior to the shooting Mrs. Hermon had been told by a Toronto man whom she did not identify, that Mrs. Hermon be "not leaving around" with his wife in that city.

She said Mr. Hermon had been away from home at Marmora during the summer and had later returned home although she was not there at last when.

Another neighbor woman, Mrs. Marguerite Kelch who lives across the street from the Hermons, testified that on the day before the fatal shooting Mr. Marmora an unidentified man had visited the Hermon home seeking for Mr. Hermon.

Mr. Hermon had not been at home but the man had asked Mrs. Hermon if she knew her husband was running around with his wife in Toronto. She quoted the man as saying Mr. Hermon had left his wife at a bar in Toronto

Mrs. Kelch said Mrs. Hermon later told her thatther husband had admitted seeing the Toronto woman and said "he could get all the loving he wanted".

Dr. H. G. Parkin of Marmora, who had been called to the Hermon home by the telephone operator also said that when he arrived at about 10.55 p.m. he found Mr. Hermon lying on the floor just outside the kitchen door. He said he had turned Mr. Hermon on his back and on opening his shirt saw the bullet wound in his chest. Examination showed the man was already dead.

Dr. Parkin had told Mrs. Hermon her husband was dead and quoted her as replying "what can I do?" or words to that effect.

SAID TERRIBLE WEEK

He said that Mrs. Hermon appeared to want to talk of happened and had told him, "You know Dr. Parkin this has been a terrible week here."

He said that clothing worn by told him that her husband was going to run away from her and the children.

W. W. Sutherland, ballistics expert with the Attorney General's crime laboratory said the spent bullet case found in the Hermon hall and rest consisted any 22 rifle found at the home, while the slug taken from Mr. Hermon's body appeared to have been fired by the same rifle.

He said that clothing worn by Mr. Hermon had shown no indication of crashing or burning as would have been the case had the rifle been fired at close range.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Olives are packaged in various sizes. The smallest is called "Jumbo." Does this make the largest, known as "super - colossal," really big? Hardly. Things, in our age are rarely what they seem. For ours are the "Days of the Big Lie." It is not only small olives which are called jumbo, but small ideas and small people which are admired far beyond their true worth.

And everything seems to have a price tag on it.

Witness the television quizzes which hit the headlines, not long ago. Education, they producers stoutly maintained, could not gain respect for its own worth, as a symbol of reasonable maintaining material success, if the public was to be made excited over it, entertained by it. It had to be tied to the spectacular and the fantastic. Phony thrills had to be made part of its appeal, in order to stand up to competition from other hair-brained TV adventures.

But the spectacle of fantastic monies being handed about as a reward for "mental achievement," really signifies, how little we think of vital education.

On one hand, thousands of dollars are paid out to a university teacher when he thrills the world with a dazzling display of mental feats mixed with fantasy. On the other hand, the same man, as a professor on a respectable campus, is paid less than the make-up man in the TV studio.

Money for research, for educational expansion, for helping to raise the artistic and cultural level of our society, is difficult to come by. Why? Because they don't have entertainment value — and America is intent upon having good time. If our civilization should die, it will surely die laughing.

In many ways, then, the public does not care at all whether or the entertainment it hears is dishonest — so long as it is entertainment. Many average men in the street were not really shocked by the TV scandals. For in many of them, the question of morality does not even figure in the problem. They are not concerned with the fact that Christie violated none of the Ten Commandments. They were surprised that he allowed himself to break the Eleventh Commandment: "Thou shalt not get caught."

When the Russians warn us that they will yet beat us at the game of survival and conquer us without dropping a bomb, their threats should be more carefully heeded. For, day by day, we grow softer and softer — mentally, ethically, culturally. We can't just have a good time and aim win the race of ideas. It sometimes looks as if we have no ideas. If we do have them, we are too busy being entertained to do very much about them, anyway.

Don't pity Van Doren. Pity ourselves. We get what we want and what we deserve. Only when we want more and let our voices be heard, only when we refuse to be destroyed by our own hard, will we get more.

Joan S. — I have been married 12 years to a travelling salesman and I feel I can't tolerate this life any longer.

We have two children, a boy of 10 and a girl of 3, I am grateful for their company — but it just isn't enough. I belong to the PTA and our church group, but that isn't enough either. Whenever I go, whatever I do, I'm always alone while other women are with their husbands.

I want Jim to quit this work and take a job in our community, even if it means less money. I could go to work part-time at least, if he wishes. Jim refuses to even consider the idea.

Jim S. — When we married I assured Joan about this very thing. I have been in this racket since I was 20 and it's just second nature to me. I couldn't stand being in one store or office day after day.

Joan knows that even when I'm home I avoid the people around here. I couldn't go to all these community meetings and socials. I was never one for them. I feel as though I'm in a strait jacket when I'm stuck in a room with all that stuffy people.

Joan talks as though it would be nothing for me to make a drop in income, but I'm 38 and that's no time of life to slip back.

The Council: There is no question but that Joan would be extremely difficult for Jim to make a change in his work and style of living after so many years. Yet it may be well worth the effort for his own sake as well as his wife's.

Jim sees his home town and its inhabitants as "stuffy," but he does not notice that he has perhaps become even more stuffy because of the rigidity of his routine. He protects himself against mental and emotional change by avoiding relationships with others. The contacts he enjoys in the course of his travels are brief and superficial and without consequences outside of the line of business.

Jim should realize that his relationship with his family has also been somewhat superficial. He is unlikely to have a deep understanding of his children if he doesn't keep up with them from day to day.

Jim's fears are forced to travel to make a living, but a large percentage would gladly put down their bags for good if they had the opportunity. The fact that Jim seems to feel threatened by this opportunity indicates he is using his work as an excuse to avoid close contact with anyone.

It is possible that Jim would find life at home far more enjoyable than he imagines. Social fears now have him in a tight grip, but once he realizes he may find home life has many pleasures and advantages. He may also discover that he can quickly make up for any initial loss of income involved in changing his work. If he can start a new job with some enthusiasm and bring to it the benefit of his many years of wider experience, he is likely to find far more success than he now sees in store.

Stuffings for Fowl

by Mary Moore

A reader has asked me for my recipe for a stuffing and orange sauce for roast duck.

We had two of Paul's Muscovy ducks for a guest meal last week and I think the stuffing was the kitchen with 1½ tablespoons cornstarch stirred into ½ cup cold water, and cook until thick and clear, stirring. Serve separately.

STUFFING FOR ONE 12-POUND TURKEY

¾ cup wild rice; ¾ cup long grain white rice; 1½ cups boiling water; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 teaspoons butter; 2 cups chopped parsley; ¾ cup chopped chives or green onion tops; ¾ teaspoon marjoram; 3 tablespoons butter; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ loaf crustless white bread cut in small cubes. Wash the rices in a sieve; drain well, then put in pan, with tight cover and add boiling water, salt and butter. Bring to boil, turn off heat if electric stove. Turn heat on low and cook until all water is absorbed. Meanwhile gently sauté in the 3 tablespoons butter the parsley, onion, marjoram until sauted — not brown at all; combine with cooked rice, cubed bread and salt. It is now ready for stuffing into turkey cavity. Note: ¼ or 1-3 of the above amount of stuffing would be sufficient for an average-sized roasting chicken or capon.

add 1 cup hot water and scrape pan well. Strain and add to 1 cup orange juice and ¼ cup very finely shredded rind which has been parboiled 5 minutes, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup light brown

STUFFING FOR 20-POUND TURKEY

One-half of a 2-day-old French stick, diced finely without crusts; ¼ tablespoonful butter; ¼ teaspoon minced onion flakes or 1 teaspoon raw grated onion, ¼ teaspoon dried rosemary, grated yellow rind of 1 medium lemon, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Gently sauté onion and rosemary and pepper in butter until they are soaked but not one bit brown. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Stuff loosely into duck cavities.

For our enquiring reader here is

ORANGE GLAZE AND SAUCE FOR ROAST DUCKLING

When roasting ducks begin to baste after 1½ or 2 hours minutes with ½ cup orange juice to which a little grated rind has been added. When done, drain off all but 1 tablespoon of fat in pan. To this and the drippings

Community Fetes Couple Recently Wed

STIRLING — The River Valley community sponsored a presentation party on Saturday evening in honor of newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Marcon Smith of Brockville.

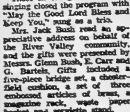
The group gathered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McIntosh, Mill Street, Stirling, where they extended best wishes for future happiness to Margaret and Marcon.

The dining room was decorated with pink and green streamers and the newlyweds were given seats of honor beside the fireplace with a lovely floral background.

Mr. Jack Sager was master of ceremonies and contributed several humorous stories during the program. Mrs. Phillip Conley, Mrs. George Hassman and Mr. Jack Bush were in charge of assembly singing. Reta McIntosh provided piano music and Master Bob McIntosh sang a couple of current favorites. Miss Elaine Vandervoort gave her speech on the theme "The Value of a Good Education."

Humorous selections were read by Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Roy Tucker, Mrs. Percy Hackleton, Mrs. Dell Clough, Mrs. Roy Bush and Mr. Jack Sager. The bride's aunt gave a personal story, "How They Were Introduced." Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Sheldon McIntosh, George Hassman, Jack Bush and George McIntosh.

Those in charge of assembly singing closed the program with "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," sung as a trio.



Mrs. Jack Bush read an appreciative address on behalf of the River Valley community, and the gifts were presented by Messrs. Glenn Bush, E. Carr and G. Bartels. Gifts included a five-piece bridge set, a chesterfield cushion, a set of three embossed articles of brass, a magazine rack, waste paper basket and serviette stand.

Margaret and Marcon expressed their thanks for the party and gifts and invited the group to pay them a visit at Brockville.

Several friends served refreshments and all enjoyed a social hour.

QUESTION BOX

Question: What does one do in the following dilemma? My husband and I attended a cocktail party recently. While there we met a couple we knew very slightly. They had obviously had several cocktails. An invitation was extended to us for dinner at their home the following week. The day arrived with no further word from the hostess. I was in a quandary as to whether or not to go without calling first for fear they had forgotten the invitation. What would you advise in such a situation?

Answer: By all means call the hostess, not the day on which you are invited, but two or three days ahead. Nothing could be more embarrassing on both sides than for you to arrive and find that you were not expected. Start off by saying that you were waiting to be sure you had the right date. This will give her time to recover if the invitation has been forgotten! It goes without saying, however, that the best course to pursue is not to accept such an invitation in the first place.

Question: When a fruit bowl is passed in the final course at dinner, how does one handle the fruit knife, particularly with regulation to digging seeds out of grapes? Should the seeds be spit from the mouth into the dish, or should they be removed with the fingers? Or should they quietly be swallowed?

Answer: Heaven forbid that any of the methods suggested should be followed! All of them are rude, and certainly unsightly. The grape should be cut in half with the fruit knife and the seeds removed with the knife while holding the grape with your fingers. The seeds are left on the plate and the grape then placed in your mouth (using your fingers, by the way, not the knife).

Question: Is it proper to send out announcements of a christening? If so, should they be mailed the day the ceremony takes place, as you do with a wedding announcement? Are the parents of the baby expected to present a gift to the godparents?

Answer: Announcements are never issued upon the occasion of a christening. Neither are formal invitations for the ceremony issued, I might add. Since only relatives and close friends should be invited for such an occasion, any personal note or a telephone call is the usual procedure to follow when inviting guests. It is perfectly all right that a story appear on the society pages of the newspapers, if one so desires. No gift is ever presented to the godparents, just the opposite. They are expected to arrive bearing gifts for the baby.

L.O.B.A., W.I. Sponsor Euchre Parties

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored their third euchre party in the school house on Friday evening with an attendance of 36. There were nine visitors from Frankford, Stockdale, Picton and Wellman.

The prizes and coffee were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hessman and Mrs. Ina Fryer.

Prizes were won as follows: ladies' high, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe; second, Mrs. Archie Thomson, Frankford; men's high, Gerald Striker, Frankford; second, John Kane.

Mrs. Hessman and Mrs. Kane with their assistants served refreshments and social half hour was enjoyed.

L.O.B.A. EUCHRE PARTY

Stirling L.O.B.A. No. 655, held a euchre party in the lodge hall on Friday evening with 30 in attendance.

The prize winners were as follows: ladies' high, Mrs. James Mills; low, Mrs. Clarence Fluchett; men's high, Maurice Clancy; low, Jim Mills; and most lone hands, Mrs. James Mills, in the draw Mrs. Jane Reid, Springbrook, won the reversible floor mat and Mrs. Ida Wickson, Crookston, a pair of pillow cases.

Worthy Mistress Mrs. Harry McAdam and her committee served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

$6 Million Dental School Opened by Premier Frost

TORONTO — The most advanced and best equipped dental school in North America was officially opened here Wednesday by Premier Leslie Frost who he handed over the keys of the University of Toronto's new Dental Building to Dr. Roy G. Ellis, dean of Toronto's faculty of dentistry.

Prior to the opening ceremonies a special convocation t. the first such ever held by the faculty — took place in Convocation Hall on the university campus when honorary degrees of LL.D honoris causa were conferred upon three distinguished dental educators and a noted dental researcher.

Recipients of the degrees were Dr. A. D. A. Mercer, dean of the U. of T. faculty of dentistry from 1936 to 1947, and now dean emeritus; Dr. J. Stanley Bothwell, dean emeritus of faculty of dentistry, Dalhousie University; Dr. W. C. Fleming, dean of faculty of dentistry, University of Southern California, and Dr. Martin Rushton, professor of dental medicine, University of London, England and dean of faculty of dental surgery, Royal College of Surgeons.

TWO LARGE UNITS

The new building, consisting of two units, three and five storeys high, covers a city block, and at $6 million is the second most-costly structure in the current University of Toronto development program. The National Fund for the University of Toronto is currently seeking a minimum of $12,500,000 from the general public to help pay for the $52 million program.

Equipment in the Dental Building is particularly costly. In one of the large labs, for instance, there are 250 microscopes worth about $500 apiece. In the main clinic, largest of its type in the world, there are 124 dental units, including dental chair, drills, sink, etc., worth about $2,500 per unit for a total of $310,000. There are more than 200 dental chairs throughout the building. Totally $1,750,000 has been spent on equipment and furnishings.

The move of the faculty from its old building at College and Huron Streets makes room for expansion for the Faculty of Pharmacy, for which the old buildings will be entirely renovated.

The principal purpose of the new building, according to Dean Ellis, is to make it possible to produce more and better dentists. A feature of the new building is the method for guiding clinic patients to whatever clinic they need, different colored squares leading from the patient's lobby to each of the seven clinics.

Other features, many of them unique in a dental building, include: facilities for training dental hygienists; special disposal equipment for the dental research section where material is sometimes radioactive; quadruple reading desks in the library reading room, designed by the staff, to provide privacy and comfort; closed TV circuit for special operations; two interviewing rooms in which the conversation between a dental student and a patient can be recorded for later criticism; two special sound-proof rooms off the children's clinic for reluctant patients; a stores-and-supply room where all small clinic equipment can be sterilized by either steam or gas; two 132-seat lecture rooms where auditoriums are equipped with remote - control panel buttons for room lights and projector.

RAWDON

Bethel-Rawdon United Church Observes 85th Anniversary

By MRS. PERCY MacNULLEN

RAWDON — A record number of worshippers filled Bethel-Rawdon United Church on Sunday for both services, with an overflow crowd in the adjoining hall. A p. m. service carried the services to this group, both morning and evening.

The church has been recently renovated and redecorated, and a new heating unit has been installed and this will heat both hall and church. The walls and ceiling have been painted in a combination of pastel shades with a gold band around the windows and gold trim on the ceiling.

Two pedestals at the altar were filled with yellow and bronze mums which were memorial flowers. A large basket of rose and white mums and a potted plant of yellow chrysanthemums completed the decorations.

The ushers and plate collectors were Messrs. Will Heath and Walter Warren.

FORMER RESIDENTS RETURN

At an early hour the edifice was filled to capacity with many former residents returning for the special occasion of the re-opening and eighty-fifth anniversary services.

The visitors were in attendance from Belleville, Prince Edward, Eldorado, Marmora, Harrowsmith, Stirling, Springbrook, Burnbrae, Wellman's, Mount Pleasant, Roards, Carnes, Salem and other points.

Rev. J. M. D. McLeod, B. A., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was in charge of both services.

In the morning he conducted a special dedication service for the re-opening of the church. He also officiated for the unveiling and dedication ceremony and a communion table was presented to the church in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, as a gift from their family.

Rev. McLeod's morning message was based on the theme, "Not Imperfect", and various Bible verses from Joel were read.

PRESIDES AT PIANO

Mrs. Harold Elliott, ATCM, presided at the piano and chose for her prelude, "Open the gates of the Temple" — Knapp. The offertory was "Carolina" — Stebbins, and the postlude "March of the Pilgrims" by Peery.

The full choir rendered "The Saviour's Voice Is Calling." Mrs. Russell Hendrason and Mrs. Gordon Heath sang a duet, "Drifting Home." Mrs. Richardson contributed, as a vocal solo, "Green Pastures."

The service opened with Whittier's hymn of church dedication, "All Things Are Thine" and closed with Newton's famous selection, "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken."

EVENING SERVICE HELD

A larger attendance of worshippers was in the sanctuary for offertory "At Vespers" by an overflow in the church hall of some 50 persons.

The 23-member King George High School choir of Stirling under the direction of Mr. R. C. Hay-Ellis and Mrs. B. A. Redcleaning, rendered two selections, "Lead Me Lord," Wesley, and "The Holy City." The pianist chose as the prelude, "Come Ye Thankful People," Lorenz, for offerty "At Vespers" by Harnell and closed with "Majestic Largo," Nolte.

DEDICATE MEMORIAL DOORS

Rev. McLeod dedicated the memorial doors at the front of the church in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Warren. This was a gift from their four sons.

A large clock with gold star points was placed on the south wall and was donated by Bethel Girls' Club and dedicated for the use of the church. This clock needs attention once yearly.

A register bowed for the Sunday School was donated by that organization and dedicated.

Two memorial offering plates were dedicated and used for the first time at this service. The one plate was a gift from the Ladies Guild of Mont Congregational Church in England and the other was donated by Mrs. John Mulhern in memory of her mother, Mrs. George Marsh, who died on Sunday, November 1st, 1959.

Rev. McLeod based his message on the theme, "Future Imperative," and read a message from the third chapter of John. He stressed that each individual should imitate good and not evil, and noted that the choices we make and the things we do in our daily lives all point up to what each individual believes. Those who attend the church of their choice show the world that they are glad to have a part in the Christian way of life.

The opening hymn was written in the 18th century with the central theme, "The Church — A House of Prayer" and the thought followed in the second hymn that "His presence shall bless the spirits of men and make a joyful light."

During the service a letter of greeting was read from a former pastor, Rev. Fred G. Johns, of Port Perry. A regretful to the large audience his sincere wish was that Bethel United Church congregation might be richly blessed as it strives to carry on the great traditions that have gone on before.

It was also regretted that Rev. W. G. Fletcher, B.A., pastor of Rawdon circuit, was unable to be in attendance at the evening service. Illness had previously been made to have Rev. John Glover do supply work on the Marmora circuit but ill health prevented his doing so.

The morning service closed with an old familiar hymn and the rafters resounded with singing of "Faith of Our Fathers."

Pres. Canadian Breweries Says Co. Lacks Authority To Reduce Prices on Product

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Canadian Breweries Limited Wednesday expressed the opinion that his company lacks authority to reduce its beer prices anywhere in Canada.

President Ian A. Dowie testified during the second day of the defence case in the trial of the company on charges of operating a combine.

Asked by prosecutor R. F. Wilson whether he was suggesting the Liquor Control Board of Ontario would refuse to accept beer if the firm offered it at a lower price, Mr. Dowie said: "I understand they would not permit us to reduce our prices."

He also said he was "not sure" his company would be permitted to cut prices in Quebec and he understood that in Western Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, "we are in the business of selling our product to the licensed board and the board tells us what it will pay."

RULE FROM JUDGE

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court accused Mr. Dowie of being "deliberately misleading" of certain questioning about prices set by Canadian Breweries for advertising and promotion.

Mr. Dowie told Mr. Wilson he frowned on the idea that the money was used for but said it was difficult to explain what they were.

Asked about the company's budget for sampling beer, Mr. Dowie said he was not sure what that meant "but I expect it means giving samples." He did know this is a contravention of the liquor control board of Ontario.

Chief Justice McRuer said: "We are not interested in that. We are interested in knowing what sampling means and you are allowed to say being misleading. It seems strange that the president of a large company cannot say."

"I assure you I am not trying to be misleading," Mr. Dowie replied.

STRONG COMPETITION

Mr. Dowie, first defence witness heard, said Canadian Breweries' brands were engaged in a vigorous national competition with the Molson and Labatt brands. This extended into packaging, quality, service and promotion.

Mr. Dowie said Canadian Breweries has been increasing its outlay for advertising in recent years but did not know the latest figure.

Asked about the number of salesmen employed by the firm, he said the company's sales representatives number a few between 60 and 70 for the Carling brand, about the same for Keefer's and 30 to 35 for Dow.

"I suggest that four years ago there were about 250 salesmen," Mr. Wilson said.

"That figure may have included committees," Mr. Dowie answered.

In previous testimony Col. Charles Woodrow, solicitor for the brewery board, said the law prohibits breweries from employing salesmen.

Mr. Fisher, who said he drinks coffee four times a day, was asked by Mr. Jacques if he drinks Dow beer at all.

"Not since," Mr. Dowie replied.

Mr. Wilson asked what time of day Mr. Dowie considered beer time.

"You can't sit in your office all day without a drink," Mr. Dowie replied amid laughter.

He described beer as essentially a thirst-quencher, "a refreshing drink and a very mild intoxicant."

UN Will Stage Annual Debate About Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The United Nations assembly will open its annual debate on the angry despite Soviet warnings that another airing of the issue will increase international tensions.

Overriding the Soviet bloc and Communist Yugoslavia, the assembly voted 51 to 10 Wednesday night in favor of a steering committee recommendation for the debate. Finland, Israel and 13 members of the Asian-African bloc abstained.

The debate probably will be held late next week.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, accused United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of fabricating reports of brutalities in Communist Hungary to help push through the U.S. item on the issue.

Lodge told the assembly he regretted to bring up the matter at a time when there is hope for a genuine thaw in the cold war. But he declared: "We cannot allow that these under the rug will not cause the ice to freeze again. Failure will not promote peace."

Lodge said that the "material necessary to prove what I say" about alleged acts of brutality

In another UN development Wednesday, Canada made a plea in the budgetary committee for continued support for the UN emergency force in the Middle East. Canadian delegate W. Arthur Irwin said the future of the force will be in jeopardy unless UN finances are solved and he noted Russia particularly has their financial assessments.

Slew Daughter, Truck Driver Is Found Insane

FARRY SOUND (CP)—Frank Jacklin, 49, Wednesday night was ordered committed to an Ontario hospital after being acquitted by reason of insanity of the bludgeon-slayings of his daughter.

The truck driver's 22-year-old daughter, Dorothy, was battered to death on a deserted road just north of here last December while Jacklin's wife watched helplessly.

Jurors deliberated 2½ hours after Mr. Justice Charles D. Gonnet in the Supreme Court instructed them they could return only one of two verdicts—guilty of murder or not guilty by reason of insanity.

Over the objections, witnesses during the 21-day trial were doctors, psychiatrists or police. A written recommendation for the trial Jacklin is in a state of mental instability.

Other witnesses described him as mentally deficient with the intelligence of a mentally-retarded person but able to distinguish between right and wrong.

Dr. Kenneth G. Gray of Toronto, lawyer-psychiatrist, said Jacklin was insane. "It was the voice of God that told him to do it."

Dr. Alexander Finlayson, assistant superintendent of the Ontario Hospital School, said he visited Jacklin a few days after he was jailed and concluded he was mentally ill.

Jacklin remained uncontrollably during the trial and kept a fixed stare at the floor.

Dorothy, eldest of his nine children, was killed with a car jack handle. Jacklin refused to answer a question about whether his interest in continues living in a boarding house.

Judge Anderson Against Gifts To Police Depts.

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Gifts to the Peterborough police department, especially around Christmas time, should be discouraged, Magistrate A. J. Anderson told Peterborough police commission Thursday.

Members were discussing the receipt of $50 from Cliff Towle Ltd. sent in appreciation of the department's work in recovering stolen bikes. Most of the gifts are mugs stolen from the store.

"We are not accepting this but make it a policy that it is not in the interests of the administration of police and justice and that it is impossible to make monetary recognition of services," said the judge.

"The whole idea of gifts to police departments and fire departments should be discouraged," he said. Police commission has a list of gifts grow too. We should discourage gifts at Christmas time and people should know in advance that the commission does not favor it.

The commission agreed.

Find Reds' Foe Shot to Death, Gun in Hand

NEW YORK (AP)—Povl Bang-Jensen, 39-year-old Danish-born Socialist diplomat missing since Monday, was found shot dead in New York City park today. Police said he had a gun in his hand.

Police reported Mrs. Bang-Jensen was discovered by police. Police Inspector Hugh Bangs said Jensen killed himself Monday morning.

Bang-Jensen's body was discovered in a clump of trees about 100 feet inside Alley Pond Park in Queens borough. The park is across the Zone's home in Lake Success, N.Y.

Bang-Jensen, a fervent anti-Communist, was active in the United Nations last year because he refused to repatriate a group of refugees from Hungary after the 1956 uprising there.

He disappeared from his home Monday morning to go to work at the Manhattan office of CARE, which provides various types of aid to needy persons abroad.

His wife telephoned police when he did not return home Monday night.

The site of the park is close to the original location of the UN at Lake Success.

Before his association with the UN, Bang-Jensen interrogated a number of refugees on behalf of his commission on Hungary. He refused to surrender the names of those he questioned, saying he feared they would fall into Communist hands. As a result of his obstinacy, he was fired by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold last year.

Seaway Authority Facing Strike Threat When Canal Reopens for Business in April

OTTAWA (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, already under pressure from western grain men to extend its scheduled Nov. 30 closing date for the inland waterway, now faces the threat of a strike when it reopens next April.

A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers said Wednesday night negotiations over a new wage contract have broken down.

"We have run into a refusal to bargain at all," said the spokesman whose union represents the Seaway's 900 operational and maintenance employees. "If the authority's attitude doesn't change there will be a strike."

The brotherhood's demands include hopes a settlement will be reached before the scheduled opening of Seaway navigation next April 1.

The dispute, involving employees from Lachine, Que., to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is being investigated by a labor department conciliation officer. The union expects a conciliation board will be appointed soon.

Meanwhile Wednesday, the Shippers and Exporters Association of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange began its grim task of telling farmer Diefenbaker protesting the plan to close navigation on the Seaway Nov. 30. The closing date was announced in Halifax Wednesday by Transport Minister Hees.

Seaway President B. J. Roberts said Wednesday that the authority had no intention of getting tangled up again in the ice-breaking row that cost thousands of dollars last year when a number of ocean-bound vessels barely squeezed through to the open sea.

He said the Nov. 30 date was set after consideration had been given to the general picture. As of now, the date was final, it might, however, be reconsidered if there appeared a chance that the weather would hold and the ice cord was great.

In the contract dispute, the spokesman said union negotiators were told by the Seaway authority that the federal government's freeze on wage increases extends to seaway employees.

"They wanted to adjust wages on the basis of adjustments to other civil servants. This is not collective bargaining, and is the reason negotiations broke down."

The spokesman said authority negotiators also refused to recognize seniority rights in the union's proposed contracts.

The union has demanded a 15-cents-an-hour wage increase for all employees. It also seeks an adjustment in classification for about 100 of the 250 maintenance employees who are receiving various rates of pay for the same type of work. The brotherhood wants all maintenance employees paid at the rate of employees on the Welland Canal, where rates are highest.

The union estimates total demands will cost the authority $200,000 a year, $50,000 of which is being accounted for by classification adjustments and the remainder by the 10-cent increase.

Maintenance employees, paid on an hourly basis, now receive between $1.41 at the lowest level and $2.35 for skilled craftsmen. On the annual side, levels of payment is annual salaries, which range between $2,800 and $4,500.

Social Research Institute To Study Behavior of Man

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commonwealth Institute of Social, Religious and Political Research to study man's basic behavior as an individual and in society, was announced Wednesday.

Backed by more than 100 emminent Commonwealth politicians, educationists and other personalities, the institute has two fundamental purposes.

One, as explained Wednesday by Senator Mark Drouin, Senate Speaker and honorary president of the board of sponsors, is to create and use the most advanced research in fields of study related now as lagging badly behind the physical sciences.

The other purpose, Senator Drouin said at press conference attended by Commonwealth high commissioners, is to provide a centre where Commonwealth scholars, students and administrators can discuss mutual problems.

The institute seeks a $10,000,000 endowment fund implying $500,000 a year to make the idea tick. The fund campaign may start by Christmas.

It is understood talks have already begun with Carleton University here about taking over buildings vacated when the university moved to a new campus earlier this year.

The institute has no governors.

Personal Loans Made by Bank Up 34.31 PC

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian chartered banks in the year ended Sept. 30 increased the amount of their personal loans to individuals for other than business purposes by $1,342,000,000, says a tabulation issued by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

This was the largest percentage increase in five years, into which the tabulation splits total loans. The other classifications are government, public and civic services; investment dealers and brokers; agriculture; industry and commerce.

The tabulation—regarded as a guide to business trends—showed resorts have suffered in comparison with larger customers during the tight money period — also gives figures for numbers of accounts in each classification.

In number of accounts in the three months ended Sept. 30, government and other public services had the highest percentage increase — 26.33 per cent. Personal loans and those to agriculture scat at 9.72 per cent, followed by personal at 8.82 per cent.

Loans to industry and commerce are highest in total amount of loans, making up nearly two-thirds of the total. And its percentage increase of 21.64 per cent accounted for much the largest total increase.

Canada Still Not Achieving Full Potential

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-day federal-provincial conference on tourism concluded here Wednesday with Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton declaring that Canada "hasn't even begun to achieve its tourist potential."

Mr. Hamilton, addressing the conference for the second time, said, however, that the gathering had demonstrated a "most encouraging interest" and a "meeting of our minds to the problem."

He reiterated remarks he made at the opening of the conference Monday that the Trans - Canada highway was "Canada's greatest asset" to tourism and "natural resource" to see the Canadian travel trade. The highway would provide innumerable access to the routes leading directly into the Canadian interior.

Quebec's delegation demanded that the movie A Day in June, dealing with the Jean Beaupré parade in Montreal, be withheld from showing in the U.S. Only the Canadian government travel bureau because the film held the parade up to ridicule.

Bureau Director Alan Field answered that the national tourism board production would be held back.

A spokesman for the film board said the bureau's decision respecting the film would not affect the National Film Board's own program for distributing it in Canada and abroad.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States and France Wednesday signed their first treaty of commerce since 1800. The 1800 treaty expired after a brief period.

If Queen Reads Newspapers She Can Even Learn Hour At Which Baby Will Be Born

LONDON (CP)—If the Queen reads London newspapers and presumably she does, she searchingly needs a report on her pregnancy. Reporters are doing fine.

The baby will arrive in the last week of January or the first week in February," announces one writer.

The birth . . . is more likely to take place at 3 a.m.," decides another.

The third baby is likely to be heavier than the mother who weighed only six pounds," is a third prediction.

Odds . . . are still slightly in favor of a boy," says another reporter.

At this point there appears to be some doubt.

The odds are higher that it might be twins," is a more cautious reporting.

But this last dispatch is firmly dealt with by a Daily Express writer. "I can reveal that there is no evidence that the Queen is going to have twins."

The British press has been having a field day with the Queen's pregnancy, and the tempo shows no signs of slackening. Doctors, nurses and mid-wives have been interviewed, children, fathers, Mothers and fathers have been asked to predict the sex of the baby. Psychiatrists and psychologists have been consulted on rearing a baby since the Queen was born.

Even the qualifications of the Queen's obstetrician, John Peel, are duly discussed, along with his outlook on most subjects.

In other newspapers one can learn what the baby is likely to receive in the line of gifts.

Mingled with these are such delightful observations as: "Isn't it typical that Queen, like so many British mothers, is having her baby at home?"

The Buckingham Palace operating theatre takes second place by far for hospitals.

Administration Is Planning Probe of Govt. Operations

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has given fresh impetus to reports that the government is planning a full royal commission to inquire into the whole field of government operations.

A 40-man delegation from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce proposed an independent inquiry Wednesday when they presented the chamber's annual brief to the cabinet. Later, Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters that the proposal is being "exhaustively examined."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the delegation from a strong supporter to its inauguration," during a 30-minute private meeting with the chamber executive and members of his cabinet.

In a number of similar meetings in the past, the chamber has urged the need for an inquiry into the way business in the United States some years ago has been carried on by the Hoover, to ensure economic and efficient administration.

The chamber said government operations should be subjected to "continuous overall review." It argued that taxes are too high and urged that the government expenditures as quickly as possible.

A Canadian Press report two months ago said such an inquiry was being planned.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Hoover commission "was successful and certainly brought about considerable savings and gave a lead to all governments in improving the practice of economy without any impairment of efficiency."

The chamber, which represents more than 900 boards of trade and chambers of commerce, took a strong stand on labor legislation.

It called for prohibition of picketing in connection with public health or safety in essential services and for the outlawing of picketing except in cases where a legal strike or lockout exists.

It also said trade unions should be made civilly responsible before the courts for their actions." Similar legislation, enacted by British Columbia this year, has been strongly criticized by organized labor.

Mr. Diefenbaker commended another section of the brief urging governments to hire skilled workers "to the fullest extent practicable."

Another proposal suggested a meeting of the heads of state—to be Monday following May 25—aimed at having warmer weather for the official observance of the Queen's birthday.

Hees Says Montreal Bridge Toll Collections Will Be Probed by House Committee

HALIFAX (CP)—The simmering issue of toll collections on the Jacques Cartier Bridge in Montreal will be turned over to a parliamentary committee early in the new session for a full investigation, Transport Minister Hees said Wednesday night.

The announcement followed reports of threats against two senior officials of the national harbors board and the province's automatic toll machines replaced men on the bridge.

Mr. Hees said he was glad the story was out in the open. "We have had this under investigation for two years," he said in an interview. "We never were able to get enough evidence for a conviction."

Mr. Hees denied he was threatened as a result of the decision to make both collecting machines. He had confirmed threats were made against J. G. Clement, superintendent of the bridge, and Guy Benedet, harbors board engineer, in an attempt to stop installation of the machines. One threat was made by a man named Brig. Maurice Archer, chairman of the national harbors board, said it had been hoped the identities of the threatened men could be protected "because of their wives." He added that no member of the board was threatened.

Mr. Hees said he had not yet received a letter from Douglas Fisher, CCF member of the Commons for Port Arthur who said in Ottawa Wednesday night he asked the matter be turned over to the railway committee. The Port Arthur member, which operates the span, is within the jurisdiction of the committee.

Mr. Fisher said he suggested that three aspects of toll collection on the bridge should be investigated after Parliament opens Jan. 14: 1. Threats and intimidation of Mr. Clement, the administer and harbors board officials; 2. The possible significance of income; 3. the possibility that political patronage may be a factor in a form of favoritism.

Mr. Hees said there were no dismissals of bridge employees but the operator resigned upon the change of government."

After one of the RCMP investigations into toll collections, eight employees were dismissed by the chairman. They were later rehired on the recommendation of the then Liberal harbors board members.

Mr. Hees, Halifax for yesterday local functions, said that since the automatic toll machines were installed on the bridge revenues jumped more than 40 per cent. In September, the first full month of operation for the machines, the total was $2,000 a day more than before the installation and in October $3,048 a day higher.

Mr. Clement was reported threatened by one of two men who stopped him outside a garage near his home. The man carried a gun and told him to stop installation of the toll machines "or else."

There were no details of the threat to Mr. Benedet.

Seven Dismissed Students Will Finish Training Term

TORONTO (CP)—Seven trainees of the Canadian School of Practical Nursing, dismissed by the Scarborough Hospital Board, will be allowed to finish their training, the hospital officials said Wednesday.

Sister St. Rosaline, director of nursing at the hospital, said she had been deeply concerned at reports that the students planned to sue the government and felt it would prejudice any connection with the school.

But on reconsidering the matter she felt the students were girls deserve justice."

Miss Rosaline said the school in good faith and should be allowed to finish their training period at the hospital."

Training terms end at different times for each student and range from one week to more than a month from now.

Health Minister Dymond of Ontario said last week that the provincial cabinet has been asked to decide whether or not the school's registration should be revoked. He said the health department felt the school had not met the satisfactory standard of instruction.

A commercial venture, the school has a staff of about 300 nursing assistants since it opened two years ago. It now has 80 trainees in other Toronto hospitals.

School Director Robert Burns said he has not been notified that any of these hospitals plan to discharge the trainees. About 250 girls now are taking classroom studies at the school.

Earlier Wednesday, one of the girls facing discharge at Scarborough was reported as saying hospital officials told them that "somebody" in the government has ordered them dismissed. But the decision was understood to be that final.

Dismissed Students Will Be Born years younger than the next child.

While most newspapers persistently address the subject, The Daily Express is the unchallenged champion of royal baby research. By reading its articles one learns that the third birth is easier than the first two, that the painful stage will last only six to eight hours and that post-natal exercises relieve backache and that the average mother gains a permanent eight pounds with a third child.

Even the qualifications of the Queen's obstetrician, John Peel, are duly discussed, along with his outlook on most subjects.

In other newspapers one can learn what the baby is likely to receive in the line of gifts.

Mingled with these are such delightful observations as: "Isn't it typical that Queen, like so many British mothers, is having her baby at home?"

QUEBEC ARTIST — Artist Gagnon, 39-year-old painter from the Gaspe Peninsula, shows one of his paintings that are creating a stir in Quebec art circles. A co-winner in last year's government-sponsored Quebec art contest, he recently had an exhibition of 50 pictures in Ottawa. Another will be held in Montreal next year. Gagnon's work has run the gamut of artistic expression from landscapes in a straight figurative style, through cubism and abstractionism to portraits in his present style, resembling the French Impressionists. Prefers Canadian Landscapes Above all Other Forms of Art

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — In Quebec's fiercely "avant garde" artistic world Artist Gagnon's highly personal landscapes and pictures of children and adults stand out in a sea of abstractions.

The 39-year-old painter from the Gaspe Peninsula recently exhibited some 50 of his pictures at an Ottawa gallery.

It was his first important exhibition since one of his landscapes took top honors in last year's art contest run by the Quebec government with $2,000 as the first prize. He shared first place with a Quebec City painter, Suzanne Rivard.

IMPORTANT DECISION

It was also Gagnon's first exhibition since he decided to incorporate people in his paintings.

"Canadian landscapes are overwhelming," he says. "That's probably why painters have been doing them for years."

"But now I feel the need for the presence of human beings in pictures."

Four of the artist's pictures now are in the Lefort Gallery in Montreal and an exhibition of his work will be held in the gallery next year.

Gagnon came from Matane to Quebec City in 1948 when his family moved here. He worked to earn a living while he studied at the Beaux-Art School. For a time he lived in the back room of a store and used the store window to exhibit his works.

His says he went through every phase from the straight figurative style, to cubism, to abstractions. Then he worked at landscapes and developed a style reminiscent of the French impressionists.

Three years ago sculptor Marius Plamondon surprised Gagnon to help him make stained glass windows for churches. Gagnon took up residence in a small studio in Quebec's ancient uptown area. His pictures began to sell. He did a bit of sculpture, baked enamel on copper, dabbled in just about everything. Art stores kept asking for more.

Gagnon says it took him two years of study and practice to handle the human form "as naturally as I write."

He parks for hours at favorite spots in the city and sketches people. Then he works out oil paintings in his studio.

His color units and line distortions give his pictures an appearance of having been painted greys, browns, and dark yellows only rarely red or blue.

He said more and more people buy paintings—"I've sold pictures to carpenters as well as doctors."

Speed Liquor Revenue on Drink Cure

- - Roberts

TORONTO (CP) — A 30-man study group called by Ontario Attorney-General Roberts agreed Tuesday that an education program and more clinics were needed to rehabilitate alcoholics.

The group, comprising of leading jurists, welfare workers and alcohol researchers, endorsed a campaign for "less primitive" treatment of alcoholics.

Mr. Roberts, in a statement following the conference, said: "It was pretty much the concensus of the specialists that we are not solving anything by sending persons to jail for being intoxicated.

"We feel we are heading in the right direction in adopting on a broad front a new attitude toward alcoholism."

Emphasizing he was not announcing government policy, Mr. Roberts added that "a lot of government money" will have to be spent on more clinics and probation services for convicted drunks.

Khrushchev's Eye Is On History and Peace Role

To do what he wants to do, Khrushchev has had to throw overboard one of the basic Marxist tenets on which he was brought up. Marxism teaches that capitalist systems all reach the point where their internal contradictions lead them into war in a last desperate effort to survive. Khrushchev has obviously decided that Marx was wrong. He can never say so publicly, but the publicly expressed statements on the subject have become a kind of standardized mumbo - jumbo which must be pronounced before getting down to real business. Marxism, you might say, has become the opiate of the Russian people!

What is important is that, possibly for the first time in history the Russians are genuinely interested in other peoples. They lived in isolation for many centuries, for the Iron Curtain was no post-war invention of Stalin's. Now they want to know, and their curiosity is boundless. There is no rudeness in Moscow. There is, on the other hand, none of the stereotyped, deep-seated courtesy of the Japanese.

There is a huge amount of friendly curiosity and they try to make it as unobtrusive as they can. Leaving our hotels in Moscow we were always tackled by youngsters from 12 to 18 years old. They wanted chewing gum and ball-point pens, but they were not beggars. All of them wanted to do a trade. The passing crowds watched their pursuits and gazed at our reaction in a curious, detached sort of way.

Perhaps these grownups were told to do the same thing but did not dare. After all, they'd lived through the Stalinist dictatorship, but the kids, if they knew about Stalin, didn't care. They made the advances. I heard of other cases, of visitors to a Russian hotel where the natives were a little stiff and ill at ease, but the youngsters found it the greatest fun in the world. It was a treat to have foreign visitors in the house.

EAGER FOR INFORMATION

We talk of Russians. There are of course more than a score of important races in the Soviet Union. The Georgians, for instance are unlike the Russians (and I suspect they dislike Stalin). We were diverted by Tiflis the Georgian capital, en route from New Delhi to Moscow. This strange, swarthy half-Mediterranean, half-Oriental race which bred Stalin are forgiving and polite. Some students stopped members of our party on the street. They wanted to talk about jazz. They wanted to know about Louis Armstrong. They stood there, excited and friendly, and openly exchanged addresses and tried to give them money to pay the postage. One of them forced a handkerchief on his new-found friend.

They wanted know about cars. My American friend asked them if they knew how many motor cars there were in the United States. The answer burst out of one of them, "Fifty-three million." How did he know? He had spent 400 roubles to go to Moscow to see the American exhibition, and he had pushed the right button on one of the answer-giving machines.

Our chief European correspondent, Gerald Clark, joined us in Moscow and we swapped impressions. This was his fourth trip to Soviet Union and obviously he has standards of comparison which I lack. He was deeply impressed by the obvious flaw since Stalin's death but he was cagey of making too much of little bits of evidence, like the Georgian students. On the other hand he thought such incidents had some significance than I attached to them. He doubts if the Soviet Union could return to the stern Stalin days. I think perhaps a big propaganda campaign might do the trick. Clark thinks so, too, but it would have to be a very heavy campaign. My feeling is that Khrushchev is not the prisoner of the luxuries he has permitted his people. Public opinion and rulers' attention to it is obviously not as sensitive in Russia as with us. But he may become a prisoner in due course — and a good thing if he does.

On Nov. 7th I stood in Red Square, watching the big annual tutionary anniversary parade — the 42nd. There were thousands of troops in the square, but the military march-past was relatively short — only seven minutes or so out of a 3-hour parade. I saw some of the Hitler parades and they scared me. There was a frightfulness about the Nazis. With the Russians you don't sense that it was massed strength but no truculence.

Most of the marchers were from plant and factory groups, youth societies, gymnasts, athletes and so on. An Englishman and an American I met later, said they had slipped out of the crowd and joined in a factory group, marching past Khrushchev and Mikoyan and the others and joining in the salute.

CAREFREE CELEBRATION

In Stalin's day they'd have been jailed for a hundred years. Not now. Everybody was having fun. I didn't have the right papers to get to my allotted space in the stands. The guards couldn't have been nicer. I was the genuine article and in four minutes flat I was on my way. Gerald Clark said it couldn't have happened a few years before.

After the parade a correspondent asked Khrushchev about the de-emphasis on the military aspects of the parade. He said he could have shown you a lot of stuff, but we didn't think it was appropriate." One got the impression that the weapons weren't very rather out of date.

The crowds impressed me. I felt like an outsider looking in, but I don't think crowds were in a genuine holiday mood. There was nothing sullen or conscripted about them. They were celebrating the achievements of their country, and that was it. Their sense of pride is something I've never seen surpassed.

There must also be a feeling of assurance. With the pride goes this great cheer in the relationships of everybody, notably with foreigners. One of our party was an American author who was in the U.S.S.R. to do a book about Soviet art. A dozen leading writers and painters entertained him in their homes, a gesture they wouldn't have dared make a few years ago. Abstract art is frowned on officially, but many young Soviet artists are following Klee and Picasso. They can't show their works in public, but they do have private exhibitions. Young writers are experimenting and being paraded more. Incidentally, I was told that most Soviet writers have read Dr. Zhivago. A Russian edition printed in Italy has had a brisk underthe-counter sale.

The feeling among Moscow intellectuals seems to be that the story is dated, and that life in the U.S.S.R. is not as he described it. But one must remember, that Boris Pasternak had held aloof from the Writers' Union and was not very popular. Incidentally, the description of living conditions in Doctor Zhivago's novel fits By Ilyas Alone is also considered a bit old — and good news. Things have changed.

DEDICATED COMMUNIST

But how deep has the change gone? I've given examples of the thaw. How I've got to tell you about Vera. Vera K, our guide in Moscow, was a rather school-marmish kind of housewife, obviously an indoctrinated 100 proof product of the Communist Party. I imagine they'd call her, in their jargon, a "crank", she was so be-lieving, or if she wasn't, she had been chosen because she would put on the act for visitors. My companions and myself indulged in the western sport of kidding. Vera, like many true believers, has no sense of humor, or she kept it to herself.

Vera said, for example, that she didn't want a car because it was much safer to go by Metro. She said also that if her husband had a car he wouldn't spend so much time with her, so she preferred not to have a car. "I love my husband", Vera said.

Possibly that was humor. So-viet style. But we found Vera like a tape recorder, — jog her and off she'd go. She talked farming and there, sure enough was a little bar, serving champagne to all comers at 11 o'clock in the morning. Poor Vera. But the champagne was all right. I couldn't help thinking of the old gag. The Commie on the platform saying, "Come the revolution, we will all drink champagne". And the voice from the rear, "But I don't like champagne". And the answer, "Come the revolution, you will all drink champagne and like it".

Vera still didn't like champagne.

92-Pound Spring Salmon, Return of Tuna to Wedgeport Highlights of Angling Season

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A British Columbia angler's 92-pound spring salmon and the return of tuna to the Wedgeport, N.S., region were the highlights of an exciting season for Canadian anglers.

Although some late season fishing still is going on in scattered parts of the country most anglers have packed up their gear and settled back to await the spring breakup.

Heinz Wichmann of Terrace, B.C., had one of the season's greatest thrills July 19 when he battled his 92-pounder from the Skeena River and staked a claim to the world rod-and-line record.

BIG SURPRISE

Mr. Wichmann, who hooked the 28½-inch fish while casting from the bank, at first didn't realize its importance. Processing of his claim to the world record is still going on. Previous best was an 82-pounder taken in 1910 from the Umpqua River in Oregon.

The B.C. angler was casting with a one-ounce Jensen Krocodile wobbler on a 25-lb.-test monofilament spinning line.

Salt-water fishermen on the east coast got a lift with the landing of more than 30 tuna off Cape St. Mary on the south shore of Nova Scotia. It is only 30 miles from Wedgeport where the annual international tuna tournament had been cancelled this year because fishing boats drew a blank in the 1958 competition.

A general upswing in sports fishing was reported in every province, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows, with record sales of licences either tabulated or in prospect.

ON ATLANTIC COAST

The salmon catch in Newfoundland reached 19,000, about 2,000 less the record 1958 season, with the largest believed to be a 30-pounder from Crabbes River on the west coast.

Trout fishing, both fresh water and sea run, was "excellent" in most Newfoundland areas. Angling took 1,731 trout from Conception Bay, the biggest a 7¾-pounder caught by Dave Lush of St. John's.

Non-resident fishermen got a break in Nova Scotia, thanks to an oversight by the provincial government. The federal government turned over its licensing privileges to the province this year but no enacting legislation was passed to set up a provincial licensing statute. Last year 1,711 non-resident permits were issued. Just under the 1953 record of 1,723.

The 36-lb.-trout River in Queens County was the best producer among Nova Scotia's 23 salmon rivers with 1,067 fish taken. There were good lake trout catches in the Indian River and Shenbroke lake and small mouth bass were plentiful in many rivers and lakes. Fishing for striped bass at river mouths held up well.

One of the season's most unusual incidents came when Murdock King, an Amherst town councillor, hooked a salmon in River Philip and played it for three hours on his light tackle. Close to being landed, it took a last-ditch plunge and snapped the line.

WIFE'S LUCKY GRAB

Mr. King's wife, standing by, leaped into the water, grabbed the salmon by the gills and wrestled it ashore. Weight: 20 pounds.

New Brunswick's outstanding catch was a 50-pound Atlantic salmon taken from the Restigouche River by Pat Irvine of Campbellton. It is the biggest ever reported from the Restigouche.

The total salmon catch was down slightly in the province's best waters such as the Miramichi, Cains and St. John rivers, according to the estimate by provincial officials. No detailed figures have been compiled.

Another top catch was the 33-pound striped bass caught at Saint John's reversing falls by Dr. Robert Mitchell of Lancaster, Pa.

Hot weather which kept the fish in deep water spoiled part of the speckled trout season in Quebec but sales of fishing permits were expected to pass last year's record of 310,000.

Although the speckled trout is considered the province's top game fish there were reports of a 40-pound lake trout taken from Lake Mistassini and a 34-pound muskie from Lake St. Louis, both public waters. Best fishing areas are in the north where hundreds are under lease to outfitters or private clubs.

Some of the province's best catches go unreported, officials say, because of no - publicity rulings by some clubs.

"NORMAL" SEASON

Ontario had a "normal" season, a report by district foresters says. Construction of development roads opened up several new regions in Northern Ontario where catches of speckled trout in the five-to-six-pound class were reported by game overseers.

In the south, rainbow trout runs in the spring and fall generated increasing interest in the streams feeding into Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. Late season fishing is still going on in this section. Spring catches included fish up to 12 pounds.

Manitoba produced its biggest brook trout, lake trout and smallmouth bass on record.

The laker, a 59½-pounder, was caught by Wess Jensen of Albert Lea, Minn. It came from God's Lake, a renowned haven for anglers in the northeastern part of the province. God's River produced the 9-pound, seven-ounce brook trout for D. B. Rosener of Fullerton, Calif.

Norman Lemmon, a Winnipeg youngster, took the smallmouth record with a fish of 6½ pounds from Caddy Lake in Whiteshell Forest Reserve east of Winnipeg. Mr. Lemmon is enjoying its first late-fall season. It now is open all year except for a brief period in the spring.

ANOTHER BIG LAKER

George Caldwell, Saskatchewan fisheries director, says licence sales will be about the same as last year's 104,889. The province continued to come up with fine lake trout, the biggest a 46-pounder caught by Al Campbell of Uranium City in Lake Athabasca.

Alberta may once again be in with the biggest brook trout. It has a 9½-pounder on its books from Prairie Creek, south of Rocky Mountain House in the foothills country, an area that produced the top two in Field and Stream magazine's North American angling contest two years ago.

British Columbia's fish, in addition to growing big, probably rank as the most enthusiastic.

Bert Beckwith of Vancouver landed his two big cod, four and eight pounds, on the same lure with two sets of hooks. Hal Rich, also of Vancouver, needed help to land two salmon that hit simultaneously while he was trolling with two rods. They weighed 28 and 31 pounds.

Letter To The Sports Editor

Dear Sir:

Since I also am of the opinion that the BMHA had as its prime aim the development of our boys as hockey players and good sports, I would like to add fuel to the fire started in your issue of the 24th instant.

Likewise I am not able to see how even the slightest development could take place towards a boy learning the rudiments of hockey by sitting on the bench during they do get 30 seconds on the ice per game, unless they are among the "star parts."

From what I have observed so far this season, the peewee division should also look to the bantam section. These bantam coaches appear to have balanced their lines fairly evenly; that they are able, and do, put each line out for its full three minutes in a steady rotation system.

The results — the teams seem more evenly matched; the competition is keener; this can only lead to more enthusiasm and greater learning (development); all the boys play.

Another Unhappy Early Riser.

Jack Kemp Not Eligible

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Kemp, signed by San Francisco 49ers as a substitute quarterback, was ruled ineligible Wednesday to play in the National Football League because he played this year in Canada.

Austin Gunsel, acting NFL commissioner, said the league's constitution forbids the signing of a man who has been connected in any capacity with Canadian professional football during the same calendar year.

An exception would be a player who signed an NFL contract and reports prior to the first regularly scheduled game of the club.

Kemp, signed by the 49ers Tuesday, Gunsel said Kemp was under contract to Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union until Sept. 15.

San Francisco, tied for the western division lead with Baltimore, and facing a tough Cleveland team Sunday, was reported to have only John Brodie in top form for quarterback.

By report, Dick Moergle, Brodie's only replacement, hasn't been practising signal calls for Sunday's game. Y. A. Tittle is hurt.

Rookie Boisvert's Time of Shutout Hockey Ended

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gil Boisvert's streak ended and Gump Worsley's started on the same night as goaltenders figured prominently in the American Hockey League Wednesday night.

Rookie Boisvert, 26, had turned in 178 minutes and 10 seconds of veteran Wally Hergesheimer scored on him. But 24 seconds before the end of regulation time, Cleveland's Michel Labadie scored and the game ended a 1-1 overtime tie.

Worsley, sent to Springfield Indians from New York Rangers of the National League in exchange for all - star netminder Marcel Paille, picked up a 7-4 victory over Hershey Bears. Bitterly protesting his demotion, he has said he won't go back to New York.

Worsley turned in a handy performance in his first game for the league-leading Indians, making 28 saves. Hershey goaltender Bobby Perreault stopped 30.

The Indians fell behind 2-1 early in the second period when Willie Marshall tallied for the Bears at the 10-second mark. But Springfield rallied for goals by Harry Pidhirny, Floyd Smith and Bill McCreary to go ahead 4-3 before the period ended. Then broke the game open in the final period.

Art Stratton, Bruce Cline, Bob McCord and Parker MacDonald scored other Springfield goals. Hec Lalande, Howie Vanosik and Dune Fisher got the others for Hershey.

College Loop To Open Season On Friday

TORONTO (CP) — The inter-collegiate hockey season opens at Varsity Arena here Friday night under the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules. Laval University will play the University of Toronto Blues.

The Canadian rules, and subsequently the Canadian style of play, were dropped last season in favor of international rules. The Canadian rules were reinstated at a meeting of the administrators of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association last spring.

Main difference in the two sets of regulations concerned body checking. Under international rules it was limited to defending players on their own side of the red line.

Instead of keeping the contests on a clean and gentlemanly level, college officials felt the rules produced clutch and grab tactics that caused an unnecessary rash of cheap, game-marring penalties.

CANADA'S OUTSTANDING FOOTBALL PLAYERS — The outstanding football players in Canada, chosen by football experts across the country are Roger Nelson (left), Johnny Bright (centre) and Russ Jackson. Bright, a hard-driving fullback with Edmonton Eskimos holds his trophy for the Most Outstanding Football Player in Canada, the Schenley trophy. Nelson, also with Eskimos, was named lineman of year and Jackson, Ottawa Rough Rider quarterback, was chosen the Canadian Player of the Year. (CP Wirephoto).

Army-Navy Saturday Will Draw 100,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Tradition will reign supreme in United States college football Saturday. Past performances and statistics will be thrown out.

None of the weekend games will delude conference titles. Four could have some bearing on closing out bowl pairings.

The biggest attraction, from tradition and interest, is the Army - Navy game in Philadelphia's 100,000 - seat Municipal Stadium. The game will be televised by NBC at 1:30 p.m. Both teams have mediocre records—Army 4-3-1, Navy 4-4-1.

Notre Dame (4-3) tries to wind up its season even in wins and losses when it entertains Southern California, ranked seventh in the country.

Mississippi, second - ranked behind Army, Syracuse, can't announce its bowl intentions until after it plays Mississippi State.

PERFECT RECORD

Georgia, Southeastern Conference champ at 6-0, winds up against Georgia Tech and also must wait until after the game to say in which bowl it will play.

Texas Christian (No. 8) already is signed for the Dec. 19 inaugural Bluebonnet at the Houston but could spoil Southern Methodist's chance at landing the second spot in Philadelphia's Liberty Bowl, played the same date.

Miami (Fla), on the wings of a three - game winning streak, meets intra-state rival Florida (4-4-1) and a victory could put the Hurricanes (6-3) as the host team in Orange Bowl's against Missouri, Big Eight representative.

Three games today have Texas meeting Texas A and M, Virginia Tech against Virginia Military and Penn vs Cornell to take the ivy title.

Johansson Will Give Patterson Return Fight

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — World heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson declared Wednesday he intends to live up to his contract calling for a return title bout with Floyd Patterson.

Johansson also said he is more convinced than ever the fight should be held in New York.

"Contract or no contract," said the man who knocked out Patterson in three rounds last June, "I shall give Patterson a return go. I know him for a fine sportsman."

Johansson made no mention of Patterson's manager, Cus D'Amato, who recently had his manager's license revoked by and suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission. He had been quoted as saying he would not fight Patterson as long as D'Amato was his manager.

Steve Owen Picks TiCats to Win

TORONTO (CP) — A man who probably knows as much about Hamilton Tiger-Cats as anybody picks them to beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Saturday's Grey Cup game.

Steve Owen, promoted to coach of Toronto Argonauts late in the season after Hamp Pool was fired, said Wednesday Cats will have great faith in quarterback Bernie Faloney to win the MUSY game. I've seen him so many times come up with the big play when it was needed."

Powerful Husky Offered School As Mascot

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A Mackenzie River husky which once attacked a polar bear and saved the life of a United States Air Force man was offered to the University of Washington today as an emergency reserve for the Rose Bowl football game.

The powerful dog, named Arctic Tramp and still bearing scars from his encounter with the enraged bear, currently is in the Fairbanks sled dog of an island floating in the Arctic Ocean 100 miles off Alaska's northern tip.

Washington's search for a new mascot started when the present one, Dena'l, didn't grow into the sharp - eared, furry-faced, well-trained husky the students thought he would. Denali, a mixture of malamute and Eskimo dog, grew into a droopy-eared, droopy-tailed, short-haired mutt. He doesn't rate the Rose Bowl.

Joel McCrea Says People Want 'Relaxation' From TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "In a decently written and well - researched western, anything that happens in a frontier saloon could just as well happen in a modern cocktail bar," says veteran actor Joel McCrea, who has spent his entire working life before film cameras.

McCrea, currently starring in the western series Wichita Town, (NBC, Wednesday, 10:30-11 p.m.) was in New York recently for a few days plugging his show. He's also going on pretty late of a weekday night to catch the family small fry.

"I don't feel you should pay too much attention to the people who are doing all the complaining and demanding different types of programs," he says.

"The people who don't write are certainly in the majority and they aren't complaining and demanding because they are getting what they want from television."

And what most people want from television, McCrea is convinced, is "relaxation."

SERIOUSNESS UNWANTED

"Most of us refuse to sit down after a long day in which we've been coping with problems. We want to relax and be entertained, and we find these values in westerns," Griffith.

Ernie Ford show, NBC, 9:30 p.m.—Introducing Cable Taylor, a guitar-playing singing school dropout.

Mike Todd sees a new era in the American acting field, especially with the rise of actors like the Actor's Studio. But I actors have a long distance to run in catching up with the British ones. As the blonde actress pointed out: "In England, competition is so great that the chief actor performers are as proficient as the stars."

Many British Movie Stars Starting a U.S. Invasion

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The British are coming. Coming, heck—they're here.

The United States has always been a happy hunting ground for British performers, but never has there been such a wholesale invasion as this year. Laurence Olivier and Alec Guinness has brightened what has been a fairly dismal television season.

Among the others imported for American movies, TV and stage are Dirk Bogarde, Laurence Harvey, Richard Burton, Margaret Leighton, John Gielgud, Robert Morley, Trevor Howard, John Mills, Hayley Mills, not to mention the more prominent visitors: David Niven, Deborah Kerr, Jean Simmons, James Mason, etc.

How come? I asked one of the latest and loveliest of the invaders. Ann Todd. She is here to do "Playhouse 90 tonight.

RECALLING TRAINING

"Perhaps it is because we know our craft," she explained. "Any young performer who shows some promise in England goes through a rigorous training in the classics. That background is invaluable.

"There are some personalities who are flashes in the pan and who have a brief success without dramatic training. But only those who have it remain stars. And they keep working at the business of acting."

The beloved stars have trouble understanding why performers like Gilroy, Harvey and Miss Todd will devote a half-year playing at the Old Vic at somewhere like Stratford.

ARTISTIC REWARD

"You work hard for ridiculous pay, but there's merit in it. The artistic rewards are enormous. You get to do things you wouldn't ordinarily do in the commercial theatre.

"How this doesn't sound right, but I'm really not inter-

REGULAR ADMISSION

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

What can you say about a hockey club that has lost 16 out of its first 16 games?

You can say that the record speaks for itself and that the team only deserves to win two out of sixteen games. Except we don't believe that to be true.

You can say that the players are quitting, are no longer trying, are just going through the motions to collect their pay cheques. But we know that is not so.

You can say that there is discussion on the club, eating, until you go behind the scenes and watch these fellows sweating and swearing, driving mile after mile after mile, making phone call after phone call, switching players and plans, racking their brains for answer that just don't seem to be there.

You can say that there is discussion on the club, except that we have seen a group of fellows, athletes or otherwise, get along any better, both on and off the ice.

You can say that a combination of things—an injury list long enough to reach from here to the Allan Cup and back, a poor training camp brought about by lack of ice in the home arena, the loss of too many key players, the fact that you never get a break when you are losing, the fact that there will be bound to be a certain amount of strain on the players from such matters as back income taxes and so on, resulting from last season's financial mixup, the fact that with one or two exceptions all the players are working men, some of them commuting many miles even for practices, and then travelling many more miles to play in the toughest league in the history of senior "A" hockey—is making it a very tough road to hoe, a very tough road indeed.

Now you might be getting close to the truth, at least in this scribe's humble opinion. We are not trying to make excuses for that two and 14 record nor are we trying to say that the McFarlands are a top notch club, the pick of the leagues.

What we are trying to get across is this: Coach Ike Hildebrand and manager Keith MacDonald are working hard to improve the player personnel and at the same time the players themselves are working as hard as they know how or whatever you choose to call it, are giving it everything they've got despite the injuries. They are not quitting on you, the fans, nor will they quit. With a little luck, a bit the right place and a break or two, and they have got a few due, they will flek this thing.

They might not be any ball of fire when they do but one thing is for certain, there won't be a club in this league that will not find it has been in a hockey game every time they meet the Macs!

The club that lost 2-0 to Whitby Dunlops here last night could have won that game without any stretch of the imagination. There were four guys out there giving it all they had while suffering from injuries that would have forced most players to "sit this one out." But because of the shame, these guys played anyway, because as Ron Cagnan put it, "these fans deserve the best we can give."

Gagnon told this department that he had never played for a better bunch of fans than we have here in Belleville. "They have stood by us a lot better than the fans would anywhere else and every time we lose another game we are letting them down. I only hope they will hang on for what this club begins to play like it can, we'll toss a scare into the rest of these teams."

He was a serious and determined man when he said it and there was not a man on the bus coming home from Western Ontario last weekend that did not feel the same way.

Many of the players have lost a great deal of confidence in themselves but when the goals start going in, watch how quickly they will regain it. The scoring room after a game is a silent spot. Some undress and shower in a hurry without saying a word while others sit with head in hands, trying to figure out what they are doing wrong or how they missed that open corner when a goal would have put a different slant on the entire game. As the saying goes, "defeat does not rest lightly on their shoulders" and any man who says it does, we will call a liar.

Luck and the breaks are a major part of winning, no matter how coed you may be. Take Eicher's goal last night for an example. He did not see the puss from Alderley coming towards his hook. A Belleville player tried to stop the play and the puck glanced off him right on to Eicher's stick, putting him in all alone on the net. It is the type of "break" we have watched the Macs getting all season long. Luck like that, which is costing the fans one or two goals every game, can only last so long.

No one is going to say that it has been all bad luck. The club needs strengthening in places. And we have watched them play terrible hockey too, when they did have a good chance to pull out a win. But have you ever seen a team that didn't

Efforts are being made to secure player strength. Jean-Paul Payette will be a tremendous help to the club down centre and Ike announced the completion of another deal last night.

Hildebrand said that Ken Gribbons, placed on waivers by the Chatham Maroons last weekend to help defray their growing deficit, will arrive here today and will likely be dressed for Friday night's game here against the Windsor Bulldogs.

Not too much is known about Gribbons at this time. He is a centre and is said to be an honest workman, who should be a decided help to the McFarlands. A couple of games will give some of the veterans a chance to get back to their regular positions where they can do the job they best know.

Gorille Ball has tried out his new mask, made for him in Montreal, and hopes to be ready for emergency work in a short while. He worked out in the nets for the first time since his injury the other night and one thing was apparent. He is still a great goalie and he is not pecking in the head. Meanwhile who could ask for anything more than the great job that Cesare Maniago is doing as a replacement.

Grey Cup Classic Not Likely To Be Grudge Fight

Trimble Has TiCats Fired Up But Bud Grant of Bombers Would Like Van Pelt Ready

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP)—There's much of a "grudge fight" element in store for Saturday's Grey Cup final in Toronto?

The game shapes up to the tie-breaker in a three-year series between Hamilton Tiger - Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But a grudge game?

Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney doesn't think so. He said:

"It's the climax of the season —the game for championship of all Canada. That's all it is, a championship game.

"After all (my import) players didn't even know where Winnipeg was before coming here. There isn't a new face on the club and not all players were around for the previous games."

FALONEY UNIQUE

Faloney, named for the first two meetings between Tiger-Cats and Blue Bombers in 1957 and 1958, is the only player ever to quarterback an East and West cup-winner. He's with Edmonton Eskimos in 1954 when they defeated Montreal Alouettes.

After the two years in the army, the 29-year-old former all-American from the University of Maryland led Tiats to their 1957, 27-7 win over Blue Bombers.

That year Hamilton coach Jim Trimble predicted Blue Bombers would need 33 points to win.

Last year in Winnipeg, Winnipeg upset the favored Tigers, 25-28.

Winnipeg coach Bud Grant fired up the team in 1958 by reminding his players Trimble had called them "cry babies" because they complained of injuries for their 1957 loss.

TIGERS UNDERDOGS

Now, for Saturday's nationally televised final starting at 1 p.m., Tigers are regarded as underdogs.

"Whether," Trimble said Wednesday, "we are good enough to reach the point of what is said to be the greatest football club to come out of the West will be known Saturday.

"We have respect for them as a good football club."

Trimble said the fact that Tigers are underdogs may work in their favor.

"Last year it worked in reverse. We were favorites to win and lost. Perhaps this year it will work in reverse again."

He forecasts a high-scoring game because both teams have a lot of scoring punch.

In regular season's play, Winnipeg scored 418 points in 16 games and Hamilton 298 points in 14 games. This works out to 26 to 21.

BETTING BUSHING

Taking a broad outlook, Trimble said Bombers have a better rushing offence than a passing threat. Tiats, on the other hand, were stronger in the air than on the ground.

And he suggested Tiger - Cats were stronger defensively, saying Winnipeg's defence "still is untested."

Statistically, Bombers allowed 272 points in 16 games for an average of 17 points a game. Tigats allowed 162 for an average of 10.

Eddie Bevan, who will play his fourth Cup game, said Wednesday night he will definitely retire after the game. The 35-year-old Hamilton native played 1953 and 1955, said:

"Let's face it, after 14 years with the same club I'm not getting any younger. My defensive halfback, also said the game probably will be his last.

TORONTO (CP) — Bud Grant says Hamilton Tiger-Cats are better team than they were a year ago. About his Blue Bombers, he is not sure.

The Winnipeg coach showed the cautious modesty which has marked all official prognostications on Saturday's Grey Cup game.

"You can't help but be impressed by the size of the Tiger-Cats," Grant said Wednesday. "They will outweigh us about 25 pounds a man along the line. We handled clubs with as big lines as Calgary was one—but a big team presents mental problems to an opponent."

All this stress on the psychological aspects may go into the records as the most distinguishing feature of the 1959 edition of the annual East-West football meeting. Jim Trimble, Grant's opposite number at Hamilton, has been widely credited with inspiring Winnipeg to victory last year by publicly belittling the Bombers, has been the soul of restraint this year.

WAR NERVES

As the latest move in the war of nerves, Grant prepared to lock his up in Varsity Stadium for the rest of their workouts after a changing of days to open sessions.

And as he discussed the game, the talk inevitably got back to the crippled Jim Van Pelt, the 1958 import who will finish out Saturday.

"Until Van Pelt was injured," Grant said, "I was pretty sure we had a better team than the 1958 champions. So break the last our quarterback has hurt us both offensively and defensively."

He hastened to add that this was no rap at Kenny Ploen, the 1957 Grey Cup hero who has fine job in this year's Western Interprovincial Football Union run against Edmonton Eskimos.

"But Kenny just hasn't played that well as a quarterback this year and last," Grant said.

PRACTICE SESSIONS

"Van 22 games Van Pelt played 99 per cent of the time at quarterback. Supporting he and Kenny were equal 32 games ago, Van Pelt had to get better.

"Before he was injured, Jim had the team moving real well. I feel we've added his passing more than we do Ploen's running."

The Bombers also had grown a bit accustomed to Ploen's brilliant rearguard defence.

"Ken will see action on defence Saturday when we run into trouble," said Grant, "but you can't expect your quarterback to go both ways."

Grant worked out the single-wing formation in public Wednesday and cheerfully acknowledged its purpose was to prevent his quarterback from getting hurt. tion will have to invest some practice time in preparing a defence against it.

Russ Jackson Best Canadian Player of Year

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Bright, 200-pound fullback with Edmonton Eskimos was named Wednesday night as the outstanding football player in Canada. The former Drake University star was selected by sports writers and broadcasters in the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union cities.

Bright, the fourth Edmonton player to win the award since it was started in 1935, beat out quarterback Bernie Faloney of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who came to Canada in 1954 from the University of Maryland. The voting was conducted by a big coc company.

Eastern players have won the award three times.

Quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders was the choice of last year's outstanding Canadian player. Runner - up to him was Edmonton quarterback Don Getty.

Roger Nelson, 27 - year - old tackle with the Eskimos and formerly with Oklahoma Sooners was named as the outstanding lineman. He won out over Hamilton John Barrow, Edmonton tackle from the University of Florida.

Bright received a $1,000 Canada savings bond, the Schenley Trophy, a diamond tie tack and a plaque. Jackson and Nelson received $500 bonds.

Grey Cup Briefs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Grey Cup football game Saturday will be broadcast to Canadian armed forces in Europe, on Canadian naval ships and to the far north, the CBC's International Service announced Wednesday.

TORONTO (CP) — Punch Imlach, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, says he is definitely interested in obtaining Gerry James for the last few years of the National Hockey League schedule. The Winnipeg Blue Bombers halfback has said he's interested in playing hockey with the Winnipeg-Hamilton Tiger-Cats next season. He hasn't played hockey since spending the 1957 season with the Leafs.

CALGARY (CP) — Since 1948, Doc Mackay in his capacity as mayor, has led the Calgary contingent on horseback in the Grey Cup parade. This year, defeated at the polls, he is in Toronto for the game and is writing about the week's activity in a column in The Albertan.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 52-year-old Winnipeg lawyer who was an outstanding hockey player among the hundreds of fans heading for Toronto for the Grey Cup issue Pitblado, a Blue P as who often takes a al classic, said Wednesd a ticket for the game ns to fly to Toronto today.

Chimp Teddy, Bomber Mascot, Will See Game

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two important members of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers cheering section — one pretty and the other not so—will be among fans enjoying Grey Cup festivities.

They are Judy Cox, Miss Blue Bomber for 1959 and Teddy the chimpanzee—the official team mascot.

Teddy and his owners, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Page and family, leave today for Toronto.

Teddy, Mrs. Page says, is a real football fan. He will perform at the game Saturday. She said Teddy "watches on television all the time—loves to see all those people running."

Whitby Regains Top Spot With 2-0 Win Over Macs

Second-Period Goals Fatal; Henderson Robs Macs to Edge Maniago in Goalies' Duel

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The hockey world is buzzing these days with talk of Jacques Plante, Montreal Canadiens' "Masked Bandit" of the goal-tending brigade, but Whitby's NHL goalie Johnny Henderson proved last night that you don't have to wear a mask to be a robber.

Henderson stole back first place for his Whitby Dunlops before a good midweek crowd here last night when he robbed the battling and baffled Belleville McFarlands left and right all his way to a 2-0 shutout. The win hoisted the Dunnies back into the OHA senior "A" loop's top slot, one point ahead of Kitchener, while his team number 14 for the Macs left them deep in the league basement.

"Long John" turned in one of his strongest games of the season while his equally heavy opponent at the other end of the rink, Cesare Maniago, was only slightly less terrific in a real battle of the goalies.

All the scoring was accomplished in the second period, a penalty paving the way to Whitby's first marker and a typical McFarland deflection leading to the second. It was strictly Henderson in the final period, making 14 of his 34 saves, as the Macs bounced all over the Dunlop zone.

Penalties numbered five in all with the Macs drawing the odd one but being unable to take advantage of the extra man as assessed in the final twenty minutes of play.

Left-winger Fred Etcher participated in both Whitby scoring plays, assisting on the winner scored by Eric "Snowboot" Pogue, and scoring the clincher himself. Bobby Attersley and Harry Sinden picked up single assists for their night's work.

PAYETTE BACK

The McFarlands dressed Jean-Paul Payette for the first time this season and coach Ike Hildebrand inserted him between Bus Gagnon and Denis Boucher to form a line that showed promise of things to come. Gagnon was operating with a leg injury and neither of his linemates have reached their peak of condition but the line was impressive nevertheless.

Belleville's defence appeared greatly-improved, especially in the first period when the Dunlop linesmen covered well in front of Maniago and bumped the Belleville net-minder around a bit, led by ex-Dunnie John Chaszewski. But Payette was given too much room to ice space and time when he scored the winning goal while Henderson was a step behind the defence when he broke in for the other.

Maniago and Henderson traded sharp saves in an early exchange of play but neither club seemed able to get untracked for a while. The Macs were doing most of the hustling but like goals, particular were conspicuous by their absence in this first period.

Both goalies drew applause for a great exchange of saves around the 14-minute mark. Maniago kicked out several labelled shots with Bahadeo and Donnell on his doorstep, Bradley hit a goal post with Henderson at his mercy on the next play, then Maniago made a magnificent sprawling save when Bahadeo broke from the clear on the return rush, all in a matter of one minute.

BAD GOOD CHANCES

Bradley, who had more good chances than any other McFarland but always found Henderson or a post in his sights was robbed by "Long John" early in the second and drew the game's first penalty for holding seconds later. Maniago bested Etcher on an original shot and the rebound, but Pogue coasted inside the Mac zone and drilled a high shot into the rigging at 7:44, prior to Bradley's return.

Maniago and Brodie alone in front and Henderson stole one from Chesbrough when Hyndman's pass put him in close as the goal-tender continued to shine. Bob Attersley earned his assist on Etcher's goal at 13:14 with a smart play but the puck had moved on when it reached Etcher. Attersley's pass was behind Etcher but the disc hit a Belleville player's stick and deflected right onto the winger's stick, putting him in alone to sink a low bullet.

The Macs played well enough in the third to win nine out of ten games, outshooting the Dunnies 14-6 but they did everything except score a goal. At least three times the puck went off a post with Henderson apparently beaten.

Henderson beat Gagnon and grabbed Payette's rebound at the two-minute mark and pulled a repeat play on Brown and Bradley on the next shift. Treen fanned off for interference at 4:44 and the Payette line, with Becott and Smirle on the points, made Henderson hop but hop he did and always it was the right spots.

Sinden took another interference call at 11:34. Hildebrand roared in with Bradley and his shot hit a post, as Henderson slid out, and lay in front of the wide open net. But Bradley, bending backwards on the move, was too far by the cage to tap in the loose rubber.

Maniago, with little to do in this beat, made a couple of hair plays, stopping Pogue in by Whitby and Treen, Sinden, Gagnon, Smirle, Becott and Payette for Belleville.

Coach of Royals Forced to Change Forward Lines

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Floyd Curry of the Montreal Royals has changed his forward lines in an attempt to break his injury - stricken team's losing streak in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Curry said he will bring together three rookies on one line —left wing Ernie Dupuis, centre Roger Sawicki and right wing Yves Sarrazin—against the high-flying Trois-Rivieres Lions here tonight. Lions have lost only twice in their last 12 starts.

Royals, without a win in their last six games, have Reggie Grigg playing alongside Skippy Burchell and Bill Sutherland in another line change.

Royals veteran centre, Kenny Mosdell, is out of action for two weeks following concussion and left winger Fern Perreault will be missing for six weeks with a shoulder separation.

PROSPECTS FADE

LONDON (AP) — Prospects of an open tournament at Wimbledon in 1961 faded Wednesday with the publication of the official agenda for the Dec. 10 annual meeting of the British Lawn Tennis Association. The agenda made no reference to the possibility of open tournaments and a spokesman said any big changes in the amateur game were envisaged in the near future.

Windsor Bulldogs Defeat Chatham By 5-2 Score

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cesare Maniago, last year's junior all-star netminder on loan to Belleville McFarlands, turned in a sparkling game as Belleville Wednesday night but failed to stop Whitby Dunlops in one of the season's hardest fought Ontario Hockey Association Senior A games.

The world champion McFarlands were blanked 3-0 for their 14th loss in 18 starts. Belleville has been descending rapidly since regular goaltender Gordie Bell was injured early this season.

In other Senior A action Windsor Bulldogs defeated Chatham Maroons 5-3 before 1,750 fans.

GAIN FIRST PLACE

Whitby took first place, one point ahead of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. Windsor is within five points of third-place Barroons.

Following a scoreless first period, Eric Pogue tallied for Whitby at the seven-minute mark of the second. Fred Etcher slid the puck in the Belleville zone shortly after the half-way mark and scored the clincher.

Netminder Jean Henderson came up with a great display, especially in the third period.

SLOW LEAD

Chatham blew a 2-1 lead with ICCs than two minutes remaining in the second when Windsor scored two goals within 36 seconds.

Bill Forhan gave Chatham a 1-0 lead at 8:45 of the first before Erwin Grosse rammed home Tommy Walker's rebound to level the game at 16:16. Jim Connelly tipped Grosse's drive for a powerpassout to give Maroons a 2-1 lead at 18:15.

Rene Pepin scored his second goal of the season at 18:08 of the second period after stealing the puck in front of the Maroon net. Murray Oatelin gave Windsor the lead for the first time when his 15-footer hit the upper corner behind John Abbass.

A fluke goal by Walt Pawly at 1:03 increased the Windsor margin in the third before Walker capped the scoring at 17:55.

Bruins and Rangers Battle To 3-All Tie With Bathgate And Uke Line Scoring Twice

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Where would New York Rangers be without Andy Bathgate and Boston Bruins without their Uke Line?

Things may not be so good for either club right now but it seems certain that, without these two sources of power, they would be a lot worse.

History could be repeating itself for Bathgate, who was the NHL Rookie of the Year's most valuable player last season with a team that finished out of the playoffs—He scored twice Wednesday night as Rangers fought to a thrilling 3-3 tie in the only NHL action.

The Uke Line, still operating without injured Jerry Johnny Bucyk, also scored twice. Bronco Horvath, Hockey League

BABY BEEF

Once again we have been fortunate in being able to purchase the choicest cuts of Mr. Leonard Prest of Halloway.

These steers have never been out of the stable, and we can highly recommend any steaks or roasts cut from their carcasses.

If you wish to serve our spiced beef during the holiday season, it should be ordered this week.

DESERONTO

H.S. Graduates Advised to Plan Ahead

DESERONTO — A pride well earned can be felt by the students and staff of the High School on the commencement presented on Thursday evening in the Bayview Theatre. The co-operation of classes and staff alike was apparent and each department and behavior of the students well justifies the efforts put forth on their behalf.

Once again the High School is climbing up the stateas in the community where ratepayers will be proud that the school is an individual and not part of an area. With the present staff the pupils have returned to the endeavor that in the past made the D.H.S. one of the outstanding small schools.

From the opening remarks of the mistress of ceremonies, Dorothy Crabbe, to the final curtain after the short concert which concluded the evening, the attention and wishes of the crowded theatre were with the youngsters. The presentation of awards was most interesting which showed it was an award earned because of the achievement.

The musical portion showed preparation and was well presented. The valedictory by Allford was truly a valedictory.

MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP

Dr. McVicker who presented the Memorial Scholarship stated that the amount of the award had been increased to $100 and it was hoped that it would be still larger next year.

Tim Johnson, Mrs. Mr. L. M. Johnson, District Inspector of High Schools, addressed the pupils in a manner in keeping with the occasion. He advised the graduating class something the schools are designed to give a taste of education but education is a life long process. He spoke of the future of Canada and the part young people would play in years to come. He compared the civilization of Canada and said "Canada is now on the crest but we have become great as a nation and as individuals. Few students today know the meaning of 'work' and it is for students to plan ahead and they would find the situation will not the end but the beginning.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union has outstripped British, West Germany and France in every power generation to become Europe's biggest — and the world's second largest—producer of electricity, it was claimed in today's edition of the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

DISNEY PLANNING WINTER OLYMPICS PAGEANTRY — Pageantry chairman Walt Disney of the Winter Olympics points to a model of one of 20 snow sculptures which will decorate the main area during the games at Squaw Valley, California in February. Each of the statues will depict a competitor in the various events. This one is an ice hockey goalie. California cities and towns will sponsor the individual snow creations. (AP Wirephoto).

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Friday, November 29

General tendencies: Until evening you are under unusually good aspects to use today in whatever direction appeals to you that has to do with social touch and finish, and in all cooperative ventures. Then tonight you have a desire to produce results and you can do so in a very astute and ingenious way. But be sure your goals are long-range in their nature for best results.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be certain in A. M. to come to real meeting of minds with those with whom you have made contracts of any sort in whatever sphere of your life. P. M. start wheels rolling in the right direction. Also be affectionate with loved one.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By getting to work with vim in A. M., you can put a mountain of odds and ends behind you quickly. P. M. go out with good comrades who have a sense of humor, and have a truly enjoyable evening. You should relax more and have fun.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You are under very inspiring aspects right now, so do not waste a moment of this valuable day. Be active, creative and labor constructively until sundown, then in P. M. get your wardrobe in order for busy days ahead. Schedule week nicely.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You can bring about more harmonious order or relations in some sphere during A.M. and with relative ease. And if you must be in the world of activity pick up items you need. Think about home and family. P. M. go out and enjoy self.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Fine day for shopping, studying, bringing greater order into files or records. Excellent for sales work. Activity: P. M. is best spent at home, entertaining and being the life of the party. Be in your own element. Have fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Dig in and handle those monetary matters efficiently now so that you can forget worry and enjoy a weekend in peace. P.M. should get started on a short trip or be with congenials for a happy evening to start the ball rolling.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — A. M. is ideal for personal happiness and seeing those persons you truly like, and for enjoying yourself for a change. P. M. map your present position in affairs and plan future more wisely.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There is a very fine opportunity for you to do some important investigating and research in A. M. Make arrangements that will be under ground. P. M. act positively and go after what you desire. Succeed.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — If you gamble in pure conceals and well-wishers, you can make real progress toward your cherished goals. This can be your best day in some time. P.M. should be very creative thus far and plan coming days wisely.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 23) — Be careful of indulging in all that angling today, be direct and go to the right persons for the favors or support you need. P. M. be very sociable. Go about or entertain, but see that it is with the right type of people.

Aquarius (Jan. 24 to Feb. 19) — No fall of inspiration are you that not a moment of this fine day should be wasted. Look into your paper for ideas and plans, then work constructively towards larger aims. Most progressive persons. Confer with Virgos.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Adjust all monetary and personal affairs properly in A. M. when it will be relatively easy for you. Have better system. P. M. get out of dull doldrum routine and go about socially with more powerful individuals.

If your child is born today ... The dear child born today is the distinctly "different" type of individual, and most everyone will be fascinated by your charming offspring. Many will always be around to lend a helping hand. However, early give courses that stress detail and precision. During early middle life the nature becomes very serious, less sociable, and real accomplishment is in the chart. Don't interfere.

Ivanhoe

IVANHOE — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz and Lewis spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Larry Mitz, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt, Welland.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne Shaw attended the Eaton's staff turkey dinner in Belleville on Wednesday evening.

Mr. P. M. Wood spent Saturday in Napanee.

Mrs. Leroy Rollins attended the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto on Friday.

A number of hunting parties returned home on Saturday. All report fine weather and good hunting. The MacMillan party was fortunate in bringing home a deer; also John Fleming and Jack Wood, proving that the deer also roam close to home. Ted Fleming shot one east of Crookston one morning before breakfast and Jack Wickens, Jr., shot one not far from his home.

Smashes Into Truck

CALEDONIA (CP) — Donald Wardrope, 22, of Hamilton, was killed Tuesday night when the car in which he was riding smashed into the rear of a transport truck just north of here on Highway 6.

Canada's Plowing Champion Farmer With No Complaints

By LARRY COLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOUNT ALBERT, Ont. (CP)—Robert Timbers, Canada's champion plowman, is one farmer who has no complaints about his occupation.

"I like the freedom and I like the financial returns of the last few years. It's going to improve, too."

Timbers, 32, who has a 200-acre farm between two miles from this town 30 miles north of Toronto, will represent Canada at the world plowing match near Rome next fall.

He won the Canadian plowing championship last month when he competed against 13 other contestants at Dundas, Ont., in the province's rich farm land 40 miles southwest of here. His team mate at Rome will be Allan Hammond of Latchute, Que.

Born on his father's farm near Stouffville, 10 miles south of here, Robert Timbers came by his plowing skill naturally. His father, Wm. Timbers, was a champion plowman. Robert started plowing in championship matches in 1941 and continued when the matches resumed after the Second World War in 1946.

This will be his fourth time Timbers has represented Canada in a world match. In 1953, he went to the world match in Cobourg, Ont. The next year he competed in Northern Ireland and in 1956 he placed fourth when the match was held in England.

Robert Timbers turned to farming after school days in Stouffville with little thought of any other occupation. He did not take any agricultural courses.

"Wish I had, he now says.

A slender, brown-haired man, Timbers has a complexion deeply sunburned by long hours in the field. He is a slow and careful man in his speech as when he is cutting a furrow in a championship match.

In 1946, he married Beatrice Nicholson. They have a girl and two boys.

Although he would like to give the boys a chance to follow in his footsteps, Robert Timbers doesn't intend to force any family traditions down their throats.

"I don't particularly want them to be farmers. That will be up to them when the time comes."

With the world championship almost a year away, Timbers has put away his plow for the time being. Now that the harvest season is over, he keeps busy with his herd of beef cattle and the dozens of other jobs farmers save up for the winter.

"I can't say I like any job best," he says. "There's such a variety of jobs on a farm—all I can say is I like farming."

Robert Timbers, 32-year-old farmer from Mount Albert, Ont., will represent Canada at the world plowing match near Rome next fall. It will be the fourth world match for Timbers, who won the Canadian plowing championship at Dundas, Ont., in October. Timbers was taught to plow by his father and started competing in matches in 1941. He placed fourth in the world match in England in 1956. (CP Photo) 1959 (Toronto Globe and Mail).

Nehru Triumphs As House Backs Patient Policy

Sweeping Endorsation Given in Border Crisis

NEW DELHI (AP)—The lower house of Parliament today overwhelmingly endorsed Prime Minister Nehru's handling of the border crisis with Red China after the Indian leader told the legislators to either support him or get a new prime minister.

Only one or two "nos" were heard in the thunderous voice vote that approved Nehru's policy of negotiation with the Chinese over disputed areas.

The actual motion was an approval of recent diplomatic correspondence between India and China.

Two motions critical of the correspondence earlier had been voted down, also by voice vote. Only a dozen-odd members of the 500-member House raised their voices in support of the critical amendments.

PERSONAL TRIUMPH

The overwhelming endorsement of Nehru's way of mediation and patience can be represented as the greatest personal triumphs in the prime minister's long career.

It has been preceded by weeks of the stiffest criticism he has ever had to face in the Indian press and from the political opposition.

In a stirring and often emotional speech winding up a three-day debate on the border dispute, Nehru warned that a broader conflict between the two nations could "shake the world."

He said if Parliament feels he could not face the situation adequately, it is free to choose another leader.

"But if, in balance, this house feels this government and this prime minister has got to face the challenge, then help him and stand by him," Nehru declared.

"There is no other policy open to us but non-alignment," Nehru said.

VIGOR DEMANDED

The general tone of the critics had not been to attack non-alignment but to demand more vigorous measures against Chinese incursions.

Some members want the Chinese forcibly driven from some 12,000 miles of Indian territory they now hold.

Others, who wants to settle the dispute by negotiation, said he was surprised by the "casual" manner in which some opposition members discussed the ousting of the Chinese.

"This is not a little border dispute," Nehru said. "Surrounding it are issues of the greatest import affecting no only India but South-east Asia and the world."

SEEKS NO-MAN'S-LAND

Nehru defended his recent proposals that both India and China withdraw to create a great no-man's-land of the disputed territories.

Earlier in the debate Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon rejected opposition demands that he resign over the Chinese attack to support his cabinet officer.

United States Plans Another Stab Into Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) The United States plans another stab into space in about two weeks, this time a probe toward Venus but nowhere close to that distant planet. The shot would be to test radio signals from great distances in outer space.

The launching vehicle would be a Thor-Able rocket and the orbit would be around the sun.

Scientists still are trying to figure out what went wrong with the latest moon rocket yesterday for the U.S.—a mammoth Atlas-Able vehicle that fizzled shortly after it was fired Thursday morning in an attempt to put a satellite into orbit around the moon.

The Atlas-Able, 10 storeys high and the most powerful rocket ever assembled for the U.S., crashed in the Atlantic after its second stage failed to ignite.

Scientists are studying telemetry data and launch movies.

FENCE FELL OFF

Focal point of their investigation is a mysterious piece of material that fell from the rocket about 30 seconds after launching. The chunk, which appeared to be on fire, fell a few miles off shore.

Officials believe it was part of a protective fiberglass material that covered the third stage and the affixed payload. The material was to split in two and blow away when the rocket was outside the earth's atmosphere.

It is believed the material may have broken prematurely, exposing the upper stage and payload to intense friction.

RUSSIA FAR AHEAD

Representatives of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration conceded that the failure leaves Russia with a wide lead in the space race. The Soviet Lunik II and III rockets recently slammed a payload into the moon and placed another carrying a camera into a massive orbit around the moon and earth.

Dr. John Clark, chief of the space agency's solar physics program, said that unless the space agency can get a success scored somewhere, it probably will not try another shot for the next three months. He said a duplicate payload is available but no Atlas-Able.

Java Terrorists Slaughter 121

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—A terrorist attack by 500 armed men, women and children left at least 121 lives in the West Java village of Tjibugel Tuesday, reports reaching Jakarta disclosed Thursday.

The terrorists, believed to be members of the fanatic Darul Islam sect of Moslems, swooped down on the village after overrunning a small army post on the outskirts.

They burned more than 400 houses and the village school.

TWO CHILDREN FOUND STABBED TO DEATH

Mother in Hospital Under Police Guard

AZILDA, Ont. (CP) — A young mother was under police guard in hospital at nearby Sudbury today after her two children were found stabbed to death Thursday in their second-floor apartment here.

Dead are Elizabeth, 1, and David, 3, children of Mrs. and Mrs. Edmond St. Louis. Mrs. Millie St. Louis, 21, was in critical condition with knife wounds in the neck.

A neighbor on the ground floor, Mrs. Rene Doucette, said Mrs. St. Louis pushed open her apartment door after coming down the stairs and collapsed near the kitchen floor. Police were summoned.

Mrs. St. Louis was still semi-conscious on the floor when Toyside Township police Chief Leonard Lalonde arrived. He found the children on the floor in separate bedrooms.

A six-inch steak knife was found beside the girl and a similar butcher knife was beside the boy.

Mr. St. Louis, 23, was working at the International Nickel Co. mine, Mill and Smelter Workers hall in nearby Lively when the incident occurred. He was working there while the union negotiated a new agreement in the International Nickel Company of Canada.

Mr. St. Louis was laid off by the company several weeks ago after being off work some time with pneumonia. He was suspended when company doctors suspected he had tuberculosis.

Fire Destroys Hangar, House Four Aircraft

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Fire levelled a hangar and an attached house today at the Sadlon private airport, 23 miles south of here, destroying four light aircraft, several boats, a car and a truck.

Damage is expected to exceed $75,000.

William Sandham, the owner, his wife and four children were forced to flee flames fed by hundreds of gallons of high-octane fuel that leaked out through the frame hangar and house. They escaped with only a few articles of clothing.

Bewdley volunteer fire men were unable to save the buildings or contents. Fire Chief Len Holdsworth said they had been delegated to go no closer than 50 feet to the blazing hangar, so intense was the heat.

Mr. Sandham was awakened by his wife and smelled smoke. He turned in the alarm, then helped his family to escape the children, ranging in age from one year to seven, to safety.

Harvey Hickey Of Globe Dies

OTTAWA, (CP) — Harvey Hickey, veteran parliamentary correspondent for the Toronto Globe and Mail, died early today at the age of 67 after he was taken to hospital.

He had taken ill at home during his sleep and rushed to a hospital by a doctor, summoned by his wife.

Struck by Train

LANCASTER (CP) — Rosemary Campeau, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Campeau, was killed Thursday when she was struck by an eastbound freight train at the CNR mainline level crossing in this village 15 miles east of Cornwall.

Believe Flu May Be Responsible For Birth of Many Deformed Babies

LONDON Reuters)—Influenza contracted by expectant mothers may be responsible for the birth of many deformed children, a leading British medical journal reported today.

The Lancet said two investigations in the Republic of Ireland turned up "similar effects" of influenza among women who later bore children with congenital deformities.

The first was in Dublin in 1953, when two investigators questioned women who had borne deformed children.

They found almost one woman in every five claimed to have had influenza during the period of pregnancy, The Lancet said.

During a heavy epidemic of flu in the fall of 1957, investigators questioned about 600 women in Dublin who had suffered from influenza during pregnancy and another 600 who had not.

The Lancet said the results showed physically malformed babies were born to more than twice as many women who had had influenza during pregnancy as to those who had not.

Tourists'-Eye View

Moscow Shows Evidence That Red Thaw Is On

Russia is a very large country and Moscow is a very large city. The first thing that hits you when you get to Moscow is the tremendous size of the streets—and the vivid splotches of color.—The color around Red Square was quite extraordinary to me—and unexpected. One must forget the price tags, built by technicolor film and old National Geographic illustrations. When you get there it just does not happen to look the way you have always imagined it.

Take St. Basil's Cathedral. We have all seen pictures of St. Basil's, but the real-thing looks quite different. I cannot say why or how, but there is little resemblance between the image and the reality.

The built-in images one has, whether they come from school books or magazines, are always in some sense untrue. Indeed, they have to be able to go a long look for ourselves. Only by that means can we get the proper images, which, by comparison, the framework into which we fit our ideas.

Let me give some examples.

I had expected the Moscow crowds to look drab with monotonously repeated tones of grey and black. They don't. As I was told, that would have been a costume image. It is not quite correct today.

PEOPLE BETTER DRESSED

We went one day to the puppet theatre. The crowds were dolled beforehand, only half in fun, to see the prize winners. Others at home to blend more freely with the crowd. I was glad I did, as well we didn't. Aside from some young boys everyone wore ties, collars and shirts. Apparently it wasn't a single person in that audience who was not properly well dressed. This includes the women, most of them wore hats and they looked as if they had spent some time doing their hair. We were the only foreigners in the theatre.

Being a thoroughly indoctrinated capitalist, I had expected to be more conscious of state ownership than I was. Instead, it is country where in theory everything is owned by the state — although buying, for instance, market and other symptoms of "every man for himself" survival decadence" are creeping in.

PC Meeting May Forge Close Contact With Constituencies

OTTAWA (CP) — Closer and more regular contact between party headquarters here and the party high command and its grass-roots constituency organizations is the emerging aim of the party's national association meeting here next week.

The two-day meeting Tuesday and Wednesday will be the first national get-together for the association in nearly four years and, if successful, will be the basis of a party came to power after 22 years in the opposition wilderness.

The last association meeting was in January, 1956, followed 11 months later by the national convention which chose John Diefenbaker as party leader. Before that, the association held it in intervals of two or three years.

ASK ANNUAL MEETINGS

A committee has drawn up proposals for revising the association's constitution. It calls for annual meetings, except in election years. But more important is the proposal that each constituency organization should become representation of the association meetings.

Up to now the emphasis has been on representation by provincial associations. In addition, the party member has become the right to attend. Since meetings usually are held in cities, this has meant a preponderance of Ontario and Quebec members attending.

Expectations among party officials are that new rules will be adopted.

Highlights of next week's meeting at the Chateau Laurier Hotel say 1,500 to 2,000 persons will attend during the period.

That includes the party's annual meeting of executives and the Young Progressive Conservative Association, who will hold their annual meeting on Monday before the meetings of the main association.

THORVALDSON FAVORED

A new national president will be elected Wednesday to succeed Solicitor - General Leon Balcer. Senator Gunnar S. Thorvaldson, 58 - year - old Winnipeg lawyer and close friend of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, is reported as the probable choice. No one else is known to be looking for the post.

The prime minister will make his major speech at a banquet on the final night. He also will address the women's and Young Conservative groups on Monday.

Each of the federal cabinet ministers is scheduled to speak briefly at a dinner Tuesday night honoring them and the five provincial premiers who lead Conservative governments.

Vote Result Reversed by Official Count

HAMILTON (CP) — An official recount of ballots cast in Ancaster Township Wednesday in a plebiscite on establishment of a rural-fire service has reversed an earlier announced result. An application for a fire department is expected.

After the polls closed Wednesday, unofficial results had the move rejected by 11 votes, with 1,211 votes cast in favor. It was a half per cent less than the required majority.

An official count Thursday by Harold Thompson, returning officer and Mrs. S. E. Parker, election clerk, showed 1,220 in favor, 1,219 against—a majority of 60.8 per cent voting yes.

"With a majority of only six votes, the negative forces would be crazy if they didn't ask for a recount," said Mr. Thompson. The group had 14 days in which to ask for a recount by a county judge.

Mr. Thompson said there would be no grounds for argument since 36 ballots were rejected for one reason or another.

"When the dexterity returning officers were handling them in last night I got the impression that the majority of rejected ballots were affirmative votes," he said.

Trade Deficit May Be Reduced Says Minister

WINNIPEG (CP)—Trade Minister Churchill Thursday forecast a reduction in Canada's trade deficit.

He also indicated that, although the deficit will be higher this year, the figure is not alarmed about the situation.

Mr. Churchill, speaking to the Winnipeg Canadian Club, said that with business recovery in the United States and Canada, and resumed expansion in Europe, "there now are good prospects for a substantial increase in Canada's exports and for further diversification of our foreign trade."

But Churchill did not mention the amount of Canada's trade deficit this year. "$521,600,000 in the first nine months of the year.

He said the deficit — the excess of imports over exports will be higher than last year but "we do not expect it to exceed the record of $842,000,000 of 1956."

"It is important to see this development in its proper perspective."

Dry Day Likely For Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP)—Dry weather for Nov. 28 could make Grey Cup ball game Saturday, the weather office said today in a special forecast.

"Prospects for the big game are promising," forecaster Gordon Knox reported. "It looks like there'll be clear, bright winds and on the cool side with the game-time temperature hovering around 32 degrees."

The snow predicted Thursday has arrived in Toronto early today and about two inches had fallen when flurries ended just after dawn.

Says Dickens, Victorian Moralist, Lived in Sin With Pretty Actress

LONDON AP) — A distinguished actor-emerged today that Charles Dickens, the great moralist of Victorian fiction, lived in sin with a pretty young actress and flouted the law to hide the birth of their illegitimate child.

The accusation came from Peter Ackroyd, a star actor in the London theatre for more than 40 years. He published his findings in a book called Dickens Incognito.

It has for some years been accepted that Dickens spent the end of his life was in love with Ellen Ternan, an actress of great beauty, and would have married her if divorce from his wife had been possible.

Ackroyd claims to have established beyond doubt that Dickens in fact lived with her as man and wife.

He takes his evidence from a cryptic diary for 1867 which Dickens kept in New York. It now is in the Berg collection of the New York Public Library.

The secret of the diary, says Ackroyd, was immediately clear to anyone who knew Dickens'

SHIPPERS, GOVT. AT ODDS OVER SEAWAY CLOSING

Some Ships Cannot Make It by Monday

MONTREAL (CP)—While the last ocean-going ships of the 1959 season headed for the St Lawrence Seaway, Prime Minister Diefenbaker today had two complaints to face concerning next Monday's closing date.

One came from western grain growers, who want the seaway kept open as long as weather conditions permit, and the other from shipping interests who say that it is impossible for some ships to make it out before closing.

When reporting claiming the situation needed to be clarified.

Transport Minister Hees announced the closing date in House on Wednesday.

In Montreal, shippers were worried whether the ships already in the seaway could make it out before closing.

Only 21 ocean-going ships still in the system, and 20 had cleared. Two more were expected today.

PEOPLE BETTER DRESSED

Mr. Thompson said there would be no grounds for argument since 36 ballots were rejected for one reason or another.

"When the dexterity returning officers were handling them in last night I got the impression that the majority of rejected ballots were affirmative votes," he said.

Aldermanic Race Sees Group of Oldtimers Try To Seek 14 Seats

Eight Sitting Members, Four Ex-Aldermen Run

A former mayor of the city, A. McLean Haig, will again head up Belleville's administrative body for 1960. Mr. Haig last night received an acclamation for the chief magistrate's position for next year when six other nominees for the mayoralty did not qualify.

A group of 14 aldermanic nominees named at Wednesday night's nomination meeting 29 have qualified and will contest the 14 council seats at the December 7th elections. There will also be a contest for the office of public utilities commission.

There will be a contest in two of the seven wards for public school trustee, and in but one ward for separate school trustee.

The slate of 29 candidates for aldermanic office is the largest in Belleville in many years, but this year all 14 seats in council are open. Normally only seven members of the 14-man council would be elected each year.

MAYOR TWO YEARS

Although Mr. Haig's acclamation as mayor seemed a possibility as early as yesterday noon the fact was not definite until after the qualification time closed at nine o'clock last night. Mr. Haig was one of seven nominees for the position having qualified. Mr. Haig was mayor of Belleville during the years 1958 and 1953 and had previously served the city as alderman during two different periods.

The list of candidates for aldermanic honors shows that eight of the present council are seeking re-election. The list includes four ex-aldermen and three women, one of whom is seeking re-election.

Qualifying for the aldermanic race were the following: Harold J Armstrong, Ross C. Ballard, John S. Barlow, John Bennett, Jamin Corke, Arthur C. Cole, Robert H. Dawson, John Deacon, Leslie W. Women Like New Outlets In Regina

REGINA (CP) — Women took their first legal drink on ill-censed premises in Saskatchewan Thursday and liked it.

In about three hours they drank seven gallons of wine in the two Regina outlets open to them.

At noon they all but outnumbered the men.

The two Regina outlets, first in the province open for mixed drinking, result from a recent plebiscite. Unlike some provinces, women have to have male escorts. Food is available as well as beer and wine.

Most men don't like the idea of women invading what before was a sole male right. They say it cramps their style. They agree, however, that it spares licensed premises are going to be much cleaner, brighter and congenial.

Officials at both outlets, which only serve wine and beer, say they have noticed a marked change in male behavior. The men are quieter. But they think the first day's near-record turnout of women will dwindle when the curious have investigated.

United Appeal Total $58,002 Far Short of $85,000 Quota

With the formal campaign completed, although last-minute donations still coming in are expected to push the total above the a little, Belleville's United Appeal has fallen far short of its $85,000 objective.

Campaign chairman E. G. Cornett today released figures which showed total contributions to the 1959 appeal to date amounted to $73,076 raised last year, when the objective was the same.

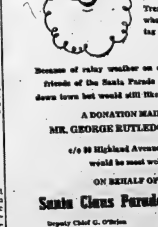
Following is a list of returns by totals in brackets:

Manufacturers' canvassers $8,252 ($11,485); special names, $4,625 ($5,361); residential canvass $9,976 ($8,250); payroll-giving division $32,856 ($30,007); public service division $3,138 ($1,-264); professional division, $5,-231 ($5,200); general business division $9,203 ($12,443).

"Contributions are still being received and it is hoped that any who have been missed in the campaign will either mail a contribution to Box G3, Belleville United Appeal or hand it to any of the boys who were Wednesday, treasurer, manager Bank of Montreal, Belleville, corner of Bridge and Front Streets," Mr. Cornett declared.

The overall objective of the campaign was $85,000 both last year and this year, and while this year's results are disappointing to the participating agencies, they will either mail a grant-in-aid in the campaign, cutting financial assistance, leaving in the city have not been conducive to securing contributions from companies in the area.

"The lesser total received this year is no way a reduction on the approximate 1,000 citizens who worked in the campaign last year," Mr. Cornett said on my own behalf, I wish to thank most sincerely those who contributed and all those who worked during the year and for their generous help."



The chairman also expressed the hope that the citizens will rally to the support of these agencies and again make it possible for them to carry out the programs which they find it necessary to undertake.

New Furnishing Business Opens On Front Street

The work marks the opening of Belleville's newest men's furnishings establishment, Hollandia Furnishings, at 276½ Front Street North Front Street. The new firm has been started by a father and son team, Chas. and Steven Hyliwa. Mr. Hyliwa senior has been operating the Holland Tailoring firm in this city by almost seven years now and will continue to carry on the tailoring and custom furniture work, it was which he has been working for the past 30 years. Steven Hyliwa, who has had some experience working several of the T. Eaton Company stores, including the Belleville branch, in household furnishings will be in charge of the floor covering, drapes and the ready-to-wear furnishings part of the new business.

The store is a very pleasant place to visit and the goods, both domestic and imported are quality and attractively displayed. Floor coverings available at present include carpets and rugs of every description and style, including broadloom, linoleum and the popular vinyl corc-counting of a material which is both durable and stable. Drapery materials are just as varied and priced for every pocketbook and suitable for any decore.

A very interesting item is the line of imported tapestries which depict various European scenes. Scenes of Switzerland and Paris have not been no common a feature in the local furnishings establishments but, the many varied sizes and scenes certainly will make new interest and to experiment with them to great advantage over a wide variety of uses.

Lamps, decorative table and mantel pieces, cushions and other items are also on display, for those wishing to obtain pleasant accessories.

Custom upholstering and the construction of new chesterfields or the special services which the new Hollandia firm will render to their customers. One of the unique advantages of this is to have a chesterfield and chairs upholstered to match with the room's draperies. Likewise the same service for looking for he is sure to find it, not something rare and difficult at Hollandia Home Furnishings.

The "Hanging of the Greens" will take place on December 14th under the direction of Kay Summers. At this time the entire YMCA building is decorated for the holiday season by the members of the various groups, each group doing the decorating section a group corral stag is held with refreshments served.

The annual meeting of the local YMCA is slated for the week in February and Bruce MacKenzie will be chairman of the committees in charge of this occasion. A top flight speaker will be obtained for this event.

Also coming up in the near future are the parents' nights being held both this Saturday, with the girls' parents and next Saturday, for the boys'. Both will be starting at about 7:30 p.m.

Need Warrant To Enter Home

TORONTO (CP) — Police must have a warrant before they can enter a home to search for illicit liquor under provisions of Ontario's Liquor Control Act, the Ontario Court of Appeal has ruled.

The decision was handed down in the case of a Hamilton man who tossed policemen out of his home when they arrived to carry out a search. The policemen had no warrants or other written authorization.

The man was charged with obstructing police and was convicted. Toronto lawyer Benson Wilson appealed and the conviction was quashed.

SAYS DICKENS

inghamshire district of England—which is Aylmer's home.

Time and again in the diary has the entry "to St."

Aylmer guessed it meant Slough, 25 miles west of London. Aylmer went to Slough and by studying real books and local land records found that Dickens lived there with Ellen Ternan under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tringham.

He investigated a diary entry for April 13, 1867. It said: "At St. 4 Ms evening." He took this to mean the arrival of a child at 2:30 that afternoon.

BIRTH REGISTERED

Soon after, says Aylmer, the birth of a child to Francis and Charles Tringham was registered. The certificate showed him to be the son of a London policeman named Francis Tringham and his wife, a former housemaid.

There was in fact a housepainter named Francis Charles Tringham.

But he and his wife registered the child as born at a hospital just across the Thames from Parliament. The hospital records still show that no child named Tringham was born there that year.

Aylmer surmises that Dickens arranged before the birth that the child should be fostered by the real Tringhams, and took the name Tringham for himself and Mrs. Ternan to keep to avoid a charge of impersonation — because English law demands that as illegitimate child is registered in its mother's name.

Four-Acre City Block Bought By Government

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government has spent $5,- 500,000 for a four-acre city block just east of the Legislative Buildings at Queen's Park, Premier Frost announced Thursday.

The government-owned site purchased a 13-storey office building one block from the east of the legislature for $2,700,000, he said.

The city block is occupied by the chapel and convent residences of the Sisters of St. Joseph, who will be paid $1,000,000 a year for five years for the property.

The sisters will continue to occupy the property for two years from Jan. 15, 1960, said the premier.

Mr. Frost said a committee of the cabinet is studying the government's building needs. The new office building is ready for occupancy and the committee is to determine its use.

Find Natural Gas Cause of Blast At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A city areas investigator said Thursday that natural gas caused violent explosions that ripped through took-block walls in a six-storey downtown Montreal hospital Wednesday night.

Two doctors and an orderly were injured when the twin explosions went off, apparently in the basement of St. Luke's Hospital. No one was killed and 178 patients were moved from the blast - damaged southwest wing after plaster ceilings cracked and crashed to the floors.

"It was caused by natural gas," said Capt. Cecil Rowe of the city's arson squad. "But it is not the fault of the gas company or its employees."

Capt. Rowe said it was "unmissed" an open valve in the basement of the hospital released the gas. He said full details of his investigation would be given when a fire commissioner's court opens a hearing Dec. 1. He declined that the Quebec Natural Gas employees had been working in the building.

Dr. Gerard Dessureault, 43, is in Montreal Neurological Institute with head injuries. His condition was reported as "quite serious but not critical".

Nine-Year-Old Wizard-Golfer Cannot Join

LONDON AP) — A fashionable country club was stuck with a thorny issue today over application for membership by a nine-year-old boy.

He is Edmund Lowe, a wizard golfer.

"He's a wonderful golfer all right," said club secretary Ronald Shiach, "but I'm afraid we're going to have to turn him down. He's far too young."

The club is the Sutton-on-the-Hill Golf Club at nearby St. Albans.

"It's not because he's too young," the boy's father, Leonard Lowe, told reporters. "It's snobbery plus the fact the members don't want a child might beat them."

Father Lowe is the club's barman.

The committee let a boy of 13 join the club recently," the father added. "But his daddy is a club member—and the barman like me."

The club's professional, P. P. Wynne, agreed that young Lowe is an amazingly good golfer for his age.

"He is terrific," said Wynne. "He's already beaten some of the club's best players. He is playing best club championship who has a handicap of three."

Edmund began his campaign to join the club last summer.

Hearing that the club was seeking a golf school, he signed up for the classes.

Wynne was impressed with hon-ors he thought that automatically qualified him for membership.

But the club secretary wrote him:

"Were forming a junior section next year. Perhaps you would like to join then."

Father Lowe said his son is too good for the junior division.

"I'm taking up this matter with Prince Philip," he said. "He understands young sportsmen."

Train Wrecks 3-Ton Truck, Driver Escapes

TRENTON — Late yesterday afternoon a three-ton truck, owned by Reid Haulage of Carrville, was completely demolished when struck by an eastbound CPR freight train at the Sidney Street crossing. The truck was entering town from the 401 highway. The cab was torn completely from the chassis, and the hood was thrown over 100 feet into a field adjoining the railway track. Mayor Ross Burtt Will Likely Be Opposed by J. MacDonald

TRENTON — At a well-attended nomination meeting in Trenton Town Hall last night, James MacDonald was nominated to run against Mayor Burtt, Trenton's present mayor, in what promises to be one of the most thought-provoking elections in the majority in years. Vagn Lange was nominated for the municipality, but as he did not qualify within the specified time limit he was automatically eliminated as a candidate for this position and will instead seek a seat on the town council.

Fifteen men were nominated to run for the six seats on Trenton council, seven for the four vacancies on the Board of Education and four to fill one position open on the Public Utilities Commission.

The nominations for council, Board of Education and Public Utilities Commission were opened by Trenton Clerk-Treasurer O. W. Larry, sharp at 8 p.m., and closed at 9:05 p.m. From 7.05 until 8.05 nominations for mayor were received.

During the first hour the nominations for the three civic bodies were handed in at a fairly steady rate. Five of Trenton's present councillors were again nominated to fill their positions. Councillor Lloyd Worrall, also is entering a prolonged vacation in the southern states, had previously announced that he would not seek re-election. Prior of the present members of the Board of Education were nominated, and Clifford Parker, who has served as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, was again nominated for a seventh year by that body.

This year, for the first time in Trenton's history, the mayor elected and the three councillors polling the highest number of votes will automatically hold office for a two year term.

The final result of nominee standing will not be known until 8:00 p.m. Friday evening, when nominees will withdraw which to qualify for office.

On the Playing Fields

A picture caption in the New York Times caught our eye the other day and we thought that it pointed up somewhat poignantly the difference between two ways of life within what we know to be the same democracies. In connection with a sports story on Peter Dawkins, an Army All-American football player who is presently studying at Oxford, England, as a Rhodes Scholar and has been engaging in the fine old English game of rugby, there was a picture of him taken after the game quaffing a pint of bitters at the local pub with the members of an opposing team.

The caption of this picture of a rather fine tradition stated that Mr. Dawkins was undoubtedly enjoying his pint especially since Oxford had won their game by a score of 35 to 0. This struck us as being a rather poor tribute to Mr. Dawkins and to English sporting traditions as well. We would have thought that the gentleman concerned was enjoying the company of some fellow sportsmen after the finish of well played game, not a lopsided victory.

Other reports of Mr. Dawkins' adventures and experiences in "the old country" certainly indicate that he is enjoying these traditions so uncommon to the American college sports scene, especially the social gatherings with opposing team members after a game. But we understand that he enjoys them from the aspect of camaraderie and good fellowship and not from the point of view of celebrating a victory, hardly a sporting thing to do in the atmosphere of the losing side.

The caption, however, points up the fact that there are two interpretations of sporting events—that of playing the game for the game's sake, such as "on the playing fields of Eton," and that of playing a game for the sake of winning, such as results in the hiring and firing of many college coaches in the United States.

If we were to delve into the deeper psychological reasons for this difference in attitudes we might say that in America, which has a highly competitive society, there is a basic fear of failure, of not doing as well as or better than the next man. This fear, of course, might be colored by Freudian overtones of the fear of not doing well before members of the opposite sex.

In Britain, where life seems more stabilized and the need for personal or group recognition in the form of victories is not so pressing, there is no dishonor accorded to defeat, as long as one has played the game well, and defeats are taken in more of a philosophical vein.

These two different attitudes, of course, are reflected in a nation's life and failure to realize this can make for misunderstanding between the two groups of people. We dare say that Mr. Dawkins has become aware of this difference and appreciates what the playing fields of Great Britain have to offer.

Croll Plans Crusade

Senator David Croll will have the best wishes of many Canadians in his attempt to reform Canada's archaic law on divorce.

His chances of succeeding, though, are not bright.

In the very nature of things, one could doubt whether the members of the Senate, many of whom are aging, would be as likely to be willing to bring in legislation of this kind as members of the Commons. Yet politics, the fact that the members of the Commons are elected and number amongst their constituents many who are opposed to divorce in any form, make it almost impossible to get such a bill through the lower house.

At present, with the sole exception of Nova Scotia, the only ground for divorce in Canada is adultery. Nova Scotia also allows cruelty as a ground for divorce. Senator Croll would widen the grounds to include desertion, cruelty and incurable insanity, in addition to adultery.

It is difficult to understand the pre-eminence given to adultery as a cause for divorce. It is certainly a breach of the marriage vows, but so, too, are cruelty and desertion. The injury inflicted by cruelty or desertion would appear to be at least as grave as that by adultery, except where this is continually repeated, in which case it amounts to desertion in another form.

Once grant that divorce is permissible for any cause and it is extremely difficult to present a rational argument as to why adultery should be the only cause.

DUMB ANIMALS AND MEN

By EDGAR A. GUEST

He will not kick a dog, nor step
Upon the kitten in his path,
He even thinks it wrong to kill
Dumb animals to give us pain.

With pity for all beasts and birds
His heart is very often stirred;
Less thoughtful though is he of men;
He often harms them with a word.

He will not whip a horse, nor use
A check rein taut to be in style;
He says that men who kill for sport should "demean" themselves awhile.

But of his fellow men he is Less thoughtful. It has oft occurred
That he has sorely wounded them.
With but a heedless, angry word.

Withhold the whip that goads the horse,
Put up the gun that slays the deer,
And let's be kinder than we are
To all the dumb brutes living here;
But let us also strive to think
A little more of human hearts,
And as we go upon our way,
Let us withhold the word that smarts.

Why Cannot A Big Man Be Little?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Most European visitors to these shores have commented, on our national obsession with size. Size or bigness, in particular, is regarded what is bigger as being better, and in combining the physical and the spiritual things with their intrinsic value.

It has been interesting to me that this national habit survives even in people as well. We actually expect that "important" men will be large in size, or knowledge, and we are naively disappointed when, as so often is the case, they turn out to be small or of medium height.

I thought of this again last week, while talking with Deems Taylor, the composer and musical commentator. He commented that wherever he went on lecture tours, people would come up to him and say, somewhat as a tall man, Mr. Taylor. Draw-backs, I suppose, but full 5 feet 5, he would ask "Why?" and never received a satisfactory reply.

A few weeks earlier, I visited a famous correctional school for boys. The director, a big man in his area, was also short; but I noticed that nearly all the strangers were always disappointed at meeting him, because of his diminutive size.

This attitude is totally unknown in Europe, and must be chalked up as a peculiarly American phenomenon. Somerset Maugham mentioned it many years ago, in one of his essays.

He is a short man; and he said that the only visitors to his home on the Riviera who ever remarked upon this were Americans. They all expected him to resemble Gary Cooper.

I am not here making the trifling familiar observation that we—most—great or successful men are short. I don't think that size has much to do with it, except that a small man often makes up for it because he may be aggressively defensive about his size.

What interests me is our unconscious identification of size with importance. We tend to suppose that I am immune from it myself, even though I know it to be absurd. For instance, from his regally bearded pictures, I should always imagine Sigmund Freud to be a tall and imposing man—and I was astonished to learn I learned he was below medium height.

There is no doubt something about the scope and dimensions of genius—the genius whose very capacity for expansion seems to that has given us such a distorted picture of reality. In our fiction, the first requisite for a convincing hero is that he tall; whereas, in real life, he was usually a small and rickety man, like Freud without a beard.

November Day

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

On a quiet day in November, it is good for a man to get away from the tension of the modern world and spend a quiet week-end. Each person who delights in outdoors has his favorite country-side.

Woodland silence broods over the forest country, and the harsh cacophony of man's busy, confused world seems far away. The cry of a blue jay and the chattering of chickadees accentuate the silence. Then, in the distance, the measured tolling of the village bell sends its solemn note, and the long-drawn, poignant-sounding whistle of the train as it climbs around the hill floats thinly overhead.

Thousands of years ago this lake was dug by a glacier. Here, around a small body of water, the tamed but ordained course through the cycling seasons. Deer come at dawn to drink of its water; birds bathe in the shallows." Soon the Northland two at its shores.

TODAY'S TALK

GO THE ROUTE

Too many people start out in life with a brilliant future, apparently, before them, only to get discouraged and quit, or to lose interest and just float, but those who go the route when once started are the leaders in after life. Success it takes courage and the right kind of persistance, and there are failures all along the way, but if you go the route you will have learned the secret of the right sort of success that pays big dividends throughout life.

E. W. Howe, the noted Kansas editor, was an unusual character. He owned and conducted a newspaper in a small city in Kansas, and at one time wrote a small paper which he called "Howe's Monthly"—a collection of comments that was quoted widely. He charged but 25 cents a year for it and it was a success from the start. Why? It was always stimulating, brilliant in its sayings and unusual comments on life in general. His followers were not slow in taking as a guide. One of his famous sayings was "Keep at it and you will succeed." I believe he wrote a small book on this subject.

In Howe's early life he wrote a book that is very rare now called "The Story of a Country Town." It was praised by prominent critics and writers who gave it wide publicity. He wrote many other interesting and formative books. He went out the route in country newspaper man, and was a success. He got the right start, the right direction, and he went the route to the finish. He charged but 25 cents a year for it and it was a success from the start. Why? Mr. Albert had a great success in every respect and will be remembered for clearing up many points not thoroughly understood by the citizens generally in the line of urging the progressive citizens solidly behind the Community campaign for a Better Belleville.

Atomic Waste Big Problem

Windsor Star

It's no secret that disposal of atomic waste is a big problem. That this problem is likely to get a great deal bigger as time goes on is already in evidence.

Some atomic waste is dumped at sea. There are, however, two clear expert reports that 65,000,000 gallons of the stuff are stored at various points in the United States. And although it was first, the United States has barely entered the Atomic Age.

Buried materials, it is said, have been found to become forgotten goods, which surprise discoverers. Some buried materials are stored radioactive waste, which presents a less forgotten but surprising indeed problem to the unhappy finders.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 27th, 1916

In the early stages of the war there were reports Germany was being poised swiftly on the comings and goings of warships and convoy craft in and out of Halifax harbor. Prevalent was the rumor that the German raids because of the department of a convoy right after the ships had left harbor. But as can be learned, authorities never were able to find the spies who actually had heard the supposed broadcast but the reported blind boast that it could get information out of Canada quickly and easily, served as a further incentive to investigate any leaks that might exist. A "pipeline" through which information on war activity apparently trickled out of Halifax seemed to have been plugged by Canadian authorities. Rigid censorship of communication cut off this important naval and military base is believed to have effectively shut off whatever information was seeping through to the enemy of the movements of ships and other activities that would be of value to the enemy.

The new battle-dress of the British Army made its Belleville debut on Saturday when 1,000 commissioned officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment paid a visit to the city garbed in the new garments.

The new, loose-fitting blouses with invisible buttons are said to be more comfortable than the old tunic. Canvas leggings accompanied the right hose-top height will be worn when full equipment is issued. Only a few of the new uniforms have yet become available, but enlistment for the entire First Canadian Division is expected to arrive at the barracks until in the near future.

Bureau. The attendance numbered about 150 and included a branch of business effort in Belleville. The spirit of good fellowship was also an inspiring feature of the occasion. All met on a common level and all were anxious to get pointers upon how to best serve the 27th Ward of Belleville. Mr. E. J. Graham presided. The speech of the evening was that of Wm. Allen D. Albert of Chicago, Ill., a former newspaper magnate and now engaged in the film line of industrial expansion and social service in connection with industry, and past president of International Rotary Clubs of the world. Mr. Albert had a great success in every respect and will be remembered for clearing up many points not thoroughly understood by the citizens generally in the line of urging the progressive citizens solidly behind the Community campaign for a Better Belleville.

The Grand Trunk Railway will build an engine house in Belleville which will cost about $100,000.

The city seems to be getting its share of damage suits for injuries sustained on alleged defective walks.

The apple crop in Ontario this year is valued at seven million dollars. The good old Canadian apple beats them all.

Dr. Lennox Potts of Stirling was in town today.

A hockey league is to be formed in connection with the Y.M.C.A. and will comprise teams from Picton, Trenton, Hope, Cobourg, Deseronto and Belleville.

November Day

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

On a quiet day in November, it is good for a man to get away from the tension of the modern world and spend a quiet week-end. Each person who delights in outdoors has his favorite country-side.

Woodland silence broods over the forest country, and the harsh cacophony of man's busy, confused world seems far away. The cry of a blue jay and the chattering of chickadees accentuate the silence. Then, in the distance, the measured tolling of the village bell sends its solemn note, and the long-drawn, poignant-sounding whistle of the train as it climbs around the hill floats thinly overhead.

Thousands of years ago this lake was dug by a glacier. Here, around a small body of water, the tamed but ordained course through the cycling seasons. Deer come at dawn to drink of its water; birds bathe in the shallows." Soon the Northland two at its shores.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARE

On reading Lord Alanbrooke's recent confidences, I was delighted with his reference to General Montgomery's playing golf at Rheims during the height of the final battles of the war. And why shouldn't he? Montgomery believes that all our generals, Alanbrooke himself included, all spent the first few years crouched at their desks, telephones in hand, directing troops from the bowels of the earth. Small wonder they had to play golf to get a little fresh air and exercise. Montgomery believes that, and it is silly to expect a general to spend days and days of duty-keepers to try to find out if he is right. I believe in him like that, and it is silly of duty-keepers to try to find out if he is right. We, all of us who were in it know, consists largely of doing nothing, and trying to find something to do to break the withering tedium.

Therefore, it was a let-down to read the prompt denial from General Eisenhower that he had been playing golf. Montgomery, complete judges of literature.

Letter To The Editor

Objects to Raising Funds for Election

Editor, Intelligencer:

I read in your paper where the Ratepayers' Associations of Belleville are going to run a certain man for nomination to run for Mayor and council and also passed a motion to back them in the election campaign.

I do not object to the association endorsing whoever they like, but I think the ratepayers of Belleville will vote for whoever they think the best suited for the job whether endorsed or not.

My objection is to raising funds to back their candidates. I do not think it is necessary so much that they think they have to buy their way into council; surely the people of Belleville would object if some one got elected by buying votes, instead of by their ability.

Insulin is produced by little bits of tissue called islets in the pancreas. If they don't produce enough, you don't have enough insulin to balance the sugar you eat, and the answer is to reduce sugar in your diet.

But too low blood sugar, there are various causes, but all of them are probably related to the amount of sugar coming too much insulin.

One cause, but a rare one, is a tumor of the pancreas. Sometimes, and also not too common, there is a faulty liver and perhaps of the gallbladder is involved. Or the pituitary or thyroids glands may not be as active as they should be. Sometimes one just produces the insulin's action sufficiently.

But the most common cause of low blood sugar is a nervous condition which causes a temporary overproduction of insulin or too-rapid use of sugar.

Do you know which cause is at work? A series of blood sugar readings will show whether your blood sugar is consistently on the low side, or whether there is a quick compensation for the public debt. The plan is very revealing to your doctor but left to himself with the details of that. It's pretty technical.

What is important is answering your question: Why does eating sugar relieve my control low blood sugar?

The answer is that: Sugar stimulates the pancreas to greater activity. (With diabetes the pancreas simply can't respond, so a diabetic must limit the sugar he eats.)

The patient with low blood sugar, however, as an over-active pancreas. It eats sugar, more insulin is produced — and the sugar is burned up too quickly.

So the answer is to eat little sugar, and little starch, and to fortify turns starch into sugar.

Rather, the patient eats protein (lean meat, fish, cheese, dairy products, etc.), the protein provides the necessary body-building elements, but is converted only slowly into sugar. Small, fairly frequent eating of protein gives the body healthy strength without producing excess free sugar which will incite the pancreas to produce too much insulin.

Certainly the low-blood-sugar patient is of the nervous type, often of lowered energy, usually a good worrier. So sedatives to calm the nervous tension are important.

There are a few drugs (adrenalin, ephedrine, and ergotamine) which will raise the blood sugar level, but in the majority of cases it is impractical "for one reason or another. Generally the best treatment is based on eating plenty of protein and little sugar, and relying to a reasonable degree on sedatives.

Dads to Duel With Mr. K.

Oakland Tribune

The California Council of Dads Clubs, with headquarters in Oakland, has issued a challenge to the Belleville Dads Club to a "duel" to the death, so to speak, to see which can do the most for the welfare of the boys and girls of the two communities.

The challenge was issued by Mrs. Ida Mae Cullen, president of the council, in a letter addressed to Mr. Khrushchev.

In the current issue of The Dads Clubber, the council's bi-monthly bulletin, tells the Belleville dads of the challenge. "We will defeat you, Mr. K." How?

"We propose to do this by genuine democratic means," is the way the Dads put it. And they mean it, too. Here's how they state it:

"We will do it through better education. We know that brains power is the most precious thing on earth, and that it is the genius of American education . . . That is why we have built the most totalitarian state educational system.

"We will do it through spiritual power. With us has been self-defeating; history has proved it.

"It may occur to many that there is a great deal of optimism in this challenge. I think not. But at the same time, there can be no quarrel that Belleville has set out to excel in winning battles of intellectual scope as in any other field.

We wish the Dads all the success in the world.

NERVOUS CONDITION IS MOST COMMON CAUSE OF LOW BLOOD SUGAR

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that if you have low blood sugar, you should not eat any sugar because the body is producing too much insulin? Is there any medication to raise the blood sugar? — Mrs. M. M."

Low blood sugar (the opposite of diabetes) sounds as though it ought to have the opposite treatment — eating more sugar. But it doesn't work out that way, and I'll tell you why.

Insulin is produced by little bits of tissue called islets in the pancreas. If they don't produce enough, you don't have enough insulin to balance the sugar you eat, and the answer is to reduce sugar in your diet.

King Saud's Private TV

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Multiple marriage and a harem are considered important parts of the life of Saud of Saudi Arabia, and so he has a vast income from pilgrims to the Holy City of Mecca and he seems to fancy a good many TV sets. The moment he has a television set we hold your breath $5 sparcs.

Naturally Saud has difficulty in manufacturing up his mind which of his concubines he shall entertain and he supplies a little extra-martial entertainment. An enterprising secret official has taken his aid with a modern ideas. He has devised a closed TV circuit, so that the harem, not from the king he has the whole $5 parade on the screen. Saud then picks his fancy of the moment.

These TV operators should derive quite a bit of entertainment, too.

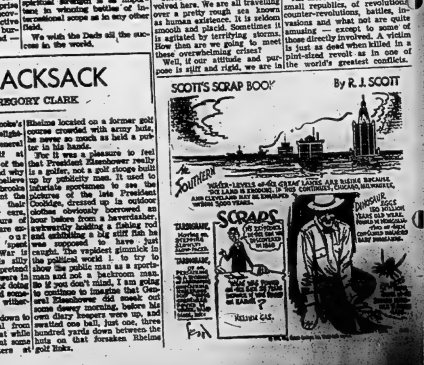
GIVE AND TAKE

Anyone who has ever travelled for the sea is conscious of the fact that all of nature's vessels creak a great deal as they roll and toss upon the waves.



Every home, is by design, if the ship were put together so rigidly that it never creaked, it would undoubtedly break up in the first storm. There must be give and take in the ship as it rides the waves. The ship is put together in such a way that it can take the battering of the waves and come back again. The sides of the ship are built on a framework must give a little as the waves strike it, if it is to survive.

There is a principle of life involved here. For a life to survive a pretty rough sea known as human existence it is seldom a smooth sail. Sometimes it is agitated by terrifying storms. Sometimes it is going to meet these overwhelming crises?

Well, if our souls are not purpose in a stiff and rigid, we are

Greater Support For Marketing Boards Urged

PICTON — If the small family farm is to continue, there must be greater support of marketing boards, William Tilden, first vice-president, Ontario Federation of Agriculture, told Prince Edward Federation members and friends at the annual banquet Wednesday night. Individual bargaining power is a thing of the past and only by concentration by a group of duly elected and skilled salesmen are higher returns possible, he stated.

Clarence Milligan, M.P., while supporting marketing legislation, warned against any method which might tend to create a monopoly. He suggested that a production cost survey be undertaken by farm organizations to show government that agriculture deserves more support than the gold - mining industry.

Washed Dishes for Living In Lodge He Now Manages

By PHIL ADLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Ted Van Dyke's first view of picturesque Jasper Park Lodge was from a kitchen where he washed pots for a living.

"I was a lonely, homesick kid," he recalled of his first job and first trip away from home in Edmonton. That was 19 years ago.

This year he returned, this time as manager of the $6,000,000 vacation layout in the Rockies.

The kitchen work was taken as a temporary summer job for money to study accounting. He has been with Canadian National Hotels Limited since then.

IN NATIONAL PARK

The lodge, six miles by road from the town of Jasper in Jasper National Park, is a self-contained village which depends on the outside for manpower, food and guests who pay up to $145 a day.

As head of a 600-member staff which caters to 500 guests at a time, the 33-year-old Van Dyke also acts as mayor, police chief, fire chief and notary public.

"My work is rewarded by the people I meet," he said in an interview. "Being able to please people and make them relaxed and happy is my greatest personal satisfaction.

"Generally, people are not hard to get along with. Ninety-nine out of one hundred will say thank you for what they have received.

"Some say the man with money is hard to satisfy. Not so. I have found it's the wealthy is the guest and the higher up in society he is the easier it is to get along with him."

Players' Wives Find Results Affect Home

CALGARY (CP)—The wives of three Calgary hockey players naturally are fans of Canada's winter sport. But they have other reasons besides their love for the game itself.

Mrs. Fred Hucul, wife of the Calgary Stampeders' star defenceman, explains it this way: "When the team loses a game, Fred is usually pretty mad, not just depressed. We all are. When they win, we're all happy. It affects the whole household."

Mrs. Hucul; Mrs. Gar Kyle, wife of the Calgary coach, and Mrs. Bill Ramsey, wife of the club's left wing star, are enthusiastic spectators at home games of the Western Hockey League club.

Mrs. Kyle also finds the night's results has a bearing on home life.

"It all depends on what kind of a game it is. If it's been a bad game, then he's apt to be rather sad. But if it's a good game, even one that was lost, he isn't too bad."

The Kyles have been married 12 years. They spent two years in New York and another in Boston while Gus was with National Hockey League clubs. Two more years were spent in Regina before they moved to Calgary in 1952.

Mrs. Kyle, a stenographer before her marriage, had little fancy interest in hockey before marrying Gus. Now, she's busy keeping up with her husband's career. With no children in the family, she spends most days each week looking after the books at her husband's sporting goods store in Calgary.

Six New Members Join W.C.T.U.

The November meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Lester with an attendance of 17. It was the occasion of "Reception of New Members" when six new members were received. The little white bow, with its prophetic "The liquor traffic shall not ultimately triumph," was pinned on each as each signed the pledge of total abstinence.

The president, Mrs. R. Farnsworth, welcomed all and referred to Remembrance Day, when many nations bow in silent prayer for freedom and liberty, bought by the lives of war heroes.

What do you think is a threat to world peace? Ex-President Herbert Hoover says, "The suppression of hunger makes people a threat." Great efforts are being put forth to alleviate this by the crusade against hunger.

The contrast of wealth and poverty between the white western nations and the most of the rest of the world, is the most important and fateful fact in the world today. It is the great social conflict of the 19th century to reduce the gap between the wealthy and the masses," said Senator Adlai Stevenson.

Canada is taking 100 displaced persons in camps of Europe suffering from T.B. They will receive hospital care and bed care. One-third will be in Ontario," said Premier Frost.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. C. Coulter on the subject of "Prayer."

The clip sheet was "A Study of Alcohol," and took the form of a panel discussion by Mrs. Harper Mason, Mrs. Coulter with Mrs. Bertrand as leader.

Bridge St. WA's Hears Talk on India's Christian

The Afternoon W.A. of Bridge Street United Church was the guest of the Centennial W.A. at the joint meeting Tuesday evening in the Sunday School auditorium.

The president, Mrs. Gordon Locklie, welcomed the ladies of the afternoon group and other guests and conducted a short business meeting.

Mrs. W. Dallas, president of the afternoon W.A., presided for the business meeting.

The devotions were under the direction of Mrs. D. D. Hickson's group, Mrs. S. Ackerman gave a reading and Mrs. S. S. Kostachuk 2nd the group in charge.

Mrs. F. F. Taylor favored with a solo, "Lord, Let Me Walk Today," accompanied by Mrs. D. M. Scott at the piano.

GUEST SPEAKER

Guest speaker for the evening was Reverend E. Laird, associate minister of Timothy Eaton Memorial United Church, Mrs. Laird, who has recently returned from missionary work in India, introduced the group on "The Changing Task of the Christian in India" and stressed the many changes that are rapidly taking place in India, pointing out that those in Canada are not nearly so drastic. Reverend E. Laird spoke of the problems of Christian Indians, who are a small minority group in India. Mrs. Laird explained how most of Indian culture is based on the traditional Indian religions. When an Indian becomes a Christian he loses the route and art of his country. It is the hope of the missionaries that Christian Indians will be able to combine Indian culture with Christianity thereby lessening the western influence on the church.

Mrs. Laird also mentioned some of the problems that confront the missionaries. They are quite often distrusted because their way of life is different from the Indian "holy men" and the government gives them some opposition.

American missionaries on furlough from India are chosen at times impossible to gain re-entry into the country.

INDIAN CHURCH

Mr. Laird told of the efforts that are being made to help the Indian church become self-reliant mentioning the training of Indians as ministers and laymen. She stated that the Indian church is not financially self-supporting as yet and spoke of the measures that are being taken to bring this time closer when they will be.

Mrs. D. M. Scott thanked Mrs. Laird on behalf of the group, for an interesting and informative talk.

During the social hour Mrs. Hickson and her group served refreshments.

Few Men in Canada Can Design, Make Tutu

MONTREAL (CP) — James Ronaldson is one of the few men in Canada who can make a tutu, the classical frilly ballet skirt.

"It takes 32 yards of tulle, and making one is the most tedious job I know," the 30 - year - old wardrobe master for the National Ballet company said in an interview here.

Mr. Ronaldson designs and makes not only the tutu, but also tights and leotards and just about everything else the dancers wear except their shoes.

He also supervises some 700 costumes, seeing that they travel where the company travels, and that they are cleaned, repaired, pressed and ready for every performance.

DANCE DEVOTEES

Mr. Ronaldson started out to be a fashion designer but switched to dancing, and wound up splitting his time between the two.

As wardrobe master, he takes sketches from the company's designers, picks the bolt and goes with the designer to select the material. He cuts the cloth into costumes and turns them over to the seamstresses. He and two assistants take care of the fittings.

"Ballets like Swan Lake and the Nutcracker Suite require Bolshoi Ballet, the Russian Festival, the Old Vic, and Metropolitan Opera when they played in Toronto.

And cleaning is a constant problem, especially on tour.

"We're on tour for at least 16 weeks of the year and many of our engagements are one - night stands in the smaller-cities. Trying to find laundries or people to do hand-wash dozens of pairs of white tights and to press costumes is almost impossible," he said.

LATE START

A native of nearby St. Eustache, Que., Mr. Ronaldson was studying fashion design when, at 19, he decided to take up ballet.

"It's rather late to start ballet at 19," he said. But he studied for three years in Montreal and London, England, and eventually danced roles with the National Ballet. Between roles he worked in the wardrobe department and gradually found himself spending more time at that than dancing.

He has also worked with the

"I'm very happy the way things have turned out," he said. "Designing costumes is much more exciting than designing ordinary clothes and I have the added advantage of having danced and therefore knowing what is comfortable and practical."

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shea

ON PRESIDENT CONDUCT

For the teenager, that wonderful Christmas vacation is fast approaching. All kinds of parties, proms, dinners and last plain little get-togethers at home will be crowding the calendar. But from what I can gather, there seems to be a fly in the ointment! Said "fly" is the chaperone. Let's take a look into why this long-suffering person is so often criticized and condemned.

In years gone by, the chaperone was a very important institution. She hasn't vanished entirely from the scene even now, we hope! In the "Cyclopaedia of Social Usage," published as late as 1912, we read that only after the engagement was announced was the young lady privileged to go with her fiance to church, concerts or theatre matinees, without a chaperone. Even engaged couples were not allowed to dine alone in public restaurants, or attend the theatre in the evening, without a chaperone.

Such close supervision is neither welcome nor necessary in our time, but I do think that a certain amount of "old-fashioned" chaperonage should be adhered to today. I don't mean a return to Victorianism, of to say that what happened to her youth can be a pattern for her daughter today. But I do think that parents are too lax, and daughters too thoughtless, concerning how a thing may look. Granted that a young lady's actions may be above reproach! Unfortunately, however, there is usually a "Mrs. Grundy" (trouble maker) who thinks otherwise. It is wise, therefore, to think first of the reaction of other people, and make every effort to avoid giving cause for criticism.

A high school sophomore recently expressed to me the fact that she and her classmates thought a chaperone spoiled their parties. As she expressed it, "We feel that it is showing a lack of faith in our ability to behave ourselves and it makes us feel uncomfortable and definitely puts a damper on the party." My answer to this was that if the young people don't want to do certain things in the presence of a chaperone, they are things that should not be done at all.

I do not wish to appear "stuffy," but I firmly believe that any young girl who entertains her beau in her home, when the family is away for the evening, is showing a definite lack of the sense of the fitness of things. I do not mean to infer that a lack of trust comes into it at all; it's simply "how does it look to others?"

The following excerpt from an old etiquette book of 1883 is amusing, but it's something to think about "The young woman who by her own acts, wins her way to the homage of her friends and glory for her sex by filling a high place in the social sphere. Or she falls a wreck to the many dangers which beset her path, and disappears forever from the society of her friends"

This sounds a bit grim, and I hope my young lady readers will submit to a bit of chaperonage and meet a better fate.

Question: My "boy friend" has asked me to play canasta with friends of his (who are married at their apartment. I have never met his friends and I am in a quandary to know whether or not I should accept his invitation.

— Miss C.D.J.

Answer: I would not accept the invitation of the friends of your "boy friend" unless the wife calls you on the telephone and extends the invitation to you personally.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Dora R. — They want to take over my baby.

George R. — She's the helpless type.

Dora R. — My husband and I have been married two years and we are expecting a baby in a few months.

My problem has to do with both my mother and my mother-in-law. It is the first grandchild for both and they are all excited about the event. They want to take over my baby and I am afraid they'll be fighting each other as well as making trouble for me.

I want to have my baby to myself but I want to have a nurse help me during the first weeks. My husband says we can't afford this and besides both our mothers will be insulted because they want to do everything for us.

George R. — I honestly don't see how we're going to be able to pay for a nurse and all the other things we need for the baby. We are in debt already and this thing is getting us way out of our depth.

I can't see why Dora is so silly about using the help of our mothers who are both willing and able. Dora admits she is absolutely helpless in handling an infant.

Both mothers have been very good to us in helping set up our home and I think Dora ought to be grateful. She wouldn't have known what to do. She's the helpless type.

The Council: As long as Dora perpetuates the idea she is "the helpless type" she will be both dependent and bitterly resentful of her mother and mother-in-law.

It is interesting that two months before the actual birth of the baby, Dora is convinced the two older women "want to take over my baby." We strongly suspect that Dora is letting her panic get the better of her and feels so incompetent to handle the baby that she would like to foist the whole problem on the two mothers.

Dora should be aware that most young women who have had no training feel a little jittery about baby care, but they learn quickly once they have been shown some of the pointers. A doctor or nurse is the best one to give those pointers and Dora should ask her doctor whether a course in infant care is being given at some nearby hospital or clinic. Dora should also do some reading about infant care so she will have some idea of what to expect.

Once Dora recognizes she is as fully capable of learning to handle a baby as her mother, mother-in-law and billions of other women, she will not resent learning from them or anyone else. She will accept the fact that a beginner is never as adept as an experienced person, but that a start must be made somewhere. Dora will eventually become just as skilled as every other woman if she doesn't let her panic take over.

Many women find they are quite capable of handling their babies by themselves with help only from a husband or neighbor during the first weeks. However, if Dora can't build up enough self-confidence to manage alone for the baby's birth, she'll need a maid from somebody. If the presence of her mother or mother-in-law would make her nervous and unhappy, she should not be forced to tolerate them. A financial sacrifice should be made in some other direction that doesn't directly affect the health and well-being of mother and baby.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I wonder if you would have recipes for Scotch Eggs and Bacon pie? Any recipes you might have on venison and moose would be appreciated . . . Mrs. O. C.

ANSWER:

I am frustrated. I have made Scotch eggs and Bacon Pie years ago but cannot find the method in my files. Is the recipe made with bottom pastry, then bacon lined (cooked), then whole raw eggs dropped in and covered with bacon and baked? Or is there a bottom crust covered with beaten eggs and bacon arranged on top?

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY

Salmon Loaf with Tomato Sauce; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Sliced Carrots with Parsley Butter; Mince Tart with Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

Will you accept a substitute from Switzerland? Then I will doubtless get letters from our Scottish readers telling exactly how Scotch Eggs and Bacon Pie is made. If so I will print them.

EGG AND BACON PIE:

(Swiss style).

1 chilled unbaked 9" pie shell, 1 tablespoon soft butter or margarine, 12 slices bacon, 4 or 6 eggs, 2 cups cream, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon sugar, shake of nutmeg and cayenne, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 lb. Swiss cheese (1 cup) grated.

Carefully rub butter over raw pie shell. Fry bacon until just crisp and crumble or cut into small pieces. Beat eggs slightly and add cream, salt and other seasonings. Beat just enough to mix. Sprinkle bacon and 3-4 cup cheese evenly over shell; turn in egg mixture. Sprinkle 1-4 cup cheese on top. Bake 15 minutes at 425 deg. F. then reduce heat to 300 deg. and bake 40 minutes longer or until set and golden. Serve at once cut into wedges as a main course.

Lovely with hot chili sauce. Highly recommended.

VENISON LOIN ROAST:

Wipe deer loin roast weighing about 3 1-2 lbs. with damp cloth. Trim off any strong-smelling fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and place in shallow pan, skin side up. Cut 1-4 lb. suet or salt pork into strips and lay over top. Roast uncovered at 325 deg. for 2 hours. At end of 1 hour add 1-4 cup hot water and 3 medium onions peeled and quartered. When done discard fat. Remove onions, pour off excess fat and add another 1-4 cup water. Scrape all brown residue from bottom of pan and make gravy by stirring in flour and water paste until thick. Arrange onions around roast on platter and serve gravy over or with meat.

BRAISED VENISON, ELK OR MOOSE CHOPS:

Wipe 4 good-sized chops weighing about 1 1-2 lbs. in all. Trim off any strong-smelling fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Brown chops slowly uncovered on both sides in butter. Add 1-4 cup water, cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Add another 1-4 cup water and again cover and simmer 15 minutes. Dilute 1 can mushroom soup with 1-3 cup water, pour over and simmer 1-2 hour longer or until tender. Two or three drops Tabasco and 1 or 2 teaspoons sherry may be added just before serving.

Queen Elizabeth H-S Assoc. Hears Talk on Safety

The regular meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening in the school auditorium.

The president, Mrs. S. Reston, welcomed the members and conducted the business session. It was decided to purchase a new movie screen for the use of the school from Home and School funds.

Mr. Anderson's Grade 8 class won the attendance plaque for the month of December.

Mrs. Reston called on Mr. C. Lusk to introduce Sgt. D. Robson, Safety Officer for the Belleville City Police. Sgt Robson gave an excellent lecture and showed a film regarding safety in motor vehicles, on bicycles and on foot. He stressed the fact that if pedestrians would only stop to think many accidents could be prevented. He left the Home and School members with a good deal of "food for thought" regarding the safety of their children.

Mr. Doug Fort thanked Sgt. Robson and the meeting was adjourned.

Refreshments were served during a discussion period by Mrs. Miller and her assistants.

The Experts Say

Designer Says 75 PC Floral Arrangements Are Oriental

By EDNA BRAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Cut flowers don't have to be put in a vase. A branch, cascading, almost any odd dish, makes a good start for a floral arrangement.

"With imagination the sky is the limit", says Harvey Hall eastern manager of a large floral telegraph service.

He travels 45,000 air miles yearly in Canada and the United States giving demonstrations of flower arrangements.

During his travels he sings the praises of Oriental styling.

"They always use odd numbers. When they come to three, they do the flowers in groups of three," he explained. If there are nine flowers in the arrangement, they will be in three groups of three flowers.

"The flowers are carefully selected — one tight bud, one medium and the other large," he explained. "The bud represents tomorrow, the medium flower today and the large bud yesterday."

The small bud is placed pointing towards heaven, the largest bud is at the base close to the earth and the medium bud is set between.

The bud pointing towards heaven is the heaviness, the bud at the base is the earthline and the one between is the mainline.

"With such an arrangement earth is looking up to man and man is looking up to heaven, and what good would man be if he didn't."

Mr. Hall said 75 per cent of all floral arrangements are Oriental.

Although the use of flowers is growing in Canada and the United States, these countries have not reached the point that Europeans have, he said. "In some places in Europe the people wouldn't sit down if there weren't flowers on the table."

If the head of a rose begins drooping it can be easily revived.

It droops, he says, because air bubbles are caught in the stem and the water is not passing through to the head of the flower. Lay the flower horizontally in a warm bath of water until the head straightens.

"Be sure the water is neither hot nor cold, but just warm."

"If people would just take a few minutes to phone a florist to find out how to care for the flowers they receive the flowers would last much longer," said Mr. Hall.

Here the prior image is at work. You expect for some ridiculous reason that you run by the state are going to be on look different.

I asked myself this question in Tiflis — does this shop look different? It didn't. Even the small shops looked like shops anywhere else. I had to keep reminding myself that these shops were not run for the private profit of the people who operated them. Then I remembered that incentive was the motive behind Soviet production. The big managers, the little managers all get a share of the profits, and profits are defined as anything they make over and above the standard of performance set by the state.

True, the service isn't always what westerners are used to. There is a whiff of bureaucracy here, as there is about most things in Russia, at work or not at work. In the giant GUM department store there was an off-hand indifferent attitude.

You found people pushing around wanting to buy something, and people behind the counter who couldn't care less. (I've seen that in the west, also.)

For all that, GUM is worth seeing. It is practically a city in itself. Originally it was an arcade of shops and it was taken over as a department store by the Soviet government. You can buy a glass of champagne there at 11 o'clock in the morning. You can buy scent — more bourgeois decadence! Another thing that surprised me — again the fact outstripping the image — was the attempt to make the tourist feel that he was a respected and wanted person. At every point we were treated as guests and given priority over ordinary Moscovites. Moreover nobody in the queues seemed to resent our being taken through ahead of them.

In Ottawa the Soviet ambassador told me, "Don't expect the tourist facilities in Russia to be like those in Canada." There are small, healthy signs, such as the trend away from Moscow gingerbread in their new buildings, such as invitin' a Danish architect to design new apartment houses. The modernistic Hotel Ukraina is a symbol. Mikoyan first saw an underpass at the Brussels Fair. He decided that this would be a good thing for Gorki Street, in the city's plan. It was built in only three months, an incredible rate of speed.

The report I had that the Soviet Union's people are liberating three bottling plants in Russia may not impress the cynic as an outstanding act of generosity. It is, however, one of the signs of easing up, of allowing more consumer goods. He is the new director of furniture, now on display in the shops, simple and functional, replacing the Victorian stuff which was still typical of Moscow until this year.

On the other hand you will still meet reminders that Russia is a vast, sprawling mainly Asian country, with the extremes of flair for waste. At each airport we touched — Tashkent, Tiflis and Moscow — we were struck by the extremely massive and variety of airport facilities set about. They were in all cases new and stark. When we went into Tashkent there were eleven TU 104's on the side of the airstrip, four of them covered in tarpaulins, obviously not used for months.

Two more points. The airport at Tashkent was like the railway station in Marseilles. All sorts of odd little aircraft were touching down and taking off, depositing hordes of Uzbek farmers. We were told that farmers in the region rarely come to Tashkent by train or truck. Then a Russian mining engineer on our plane began talking about the way they had lowered the rates of air travel. It is now cheaper to go by air than by train. But if the U.S.S.R. is using uneconomic aircraft, the loss has to be paid for somewhere, because the whole system has to train a people; that's the only way you can build and expand under state capitalism.

COURTEOUS ENGINEER

The mining engineer was typical of that Russian quality which you could call dignity or self-respect. When we were grounded in Tiflis he insisted on taking us to the bar of the hotel to try a local cognac. Cognacs were 11 roubles, there were three of us, and the engineer had only 20 roubles to his name. But he insisted on putting it down and apologizing because he wouldn't get his money until he reached Moscow. "When you are in my country, you are my guest" he said.

The whole atmosphere in Russia is friendly today, although to be fair, there were moments only a few years ago. At Tashkent we were greeted by a pleasant customs official who spoke English. He didn't open a bag.

I thought I knew something about Russian patriotism, but the pride they have in their country, in its past and present, is really astonishing. One might think that in the dead years of the revolution they would spit on the tombs of the Czars. But no, Czars, priests, nobles, patriarchs, they are all a part of their history and Russians cherish their history. It is interesting to see the way they preserve their national monuments. We were made to take our shoes off, or at least to put overshoes on when we visited the Kremlin armory. The carpet, the stairs, the whole place is a model of meticulous preservation.

This patriotism is instinctive in the Russian. I got a hint of it reading Vladimir Nabokov's Pnin, a novel about a Russian professor in a small American college town. There is a glorious page and a half in it where Nabokov describes the Russian exile going to a party. His host gets extraordinarily drunk, as some Russians do, and unburdens himself. He is an anti-Communist and exile. He is fiercely proud of the old tradition in Russia. Yet he is basically just as proud of what the Communists have done to make his country great. Scratch a Russian, I suspect and you still find a Russian.

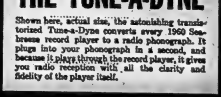
Dog's Home Life Goes to Bow-Wows As to Idiot Box His Master Kow-Tows

LONDON Reuters)—A television problem raised its shaggy head here.

Breakfasting Britons, already concerned about video's effects on their kids, picked up their mornings newspapers and started fretting about what the "idiot box" may be doing to poor old Fido as well.

The press of this dog-loving nation broke out big headlines in reporting a House of Lords debate on the all-important subject of canines Wednesday. One paper spoke out editorially as well.

Lord Alvery, 71, a leader of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, argued in the upper House for a boost in the annual dog licence fee. He said it would increase the owners' sense of responsibility, and painted stark pictures of Fido's fate in a "half-happy" home:



"He (the irresponsible dog owner) and his family (he is) all glued to the television screen hours after bed time and the dog, longing for human companionship, is forgotten and remains tied up, uncared for, unexercised, or is turned out in the streets, becoming a menace to traffic, causing endless road accidents or, in the country, chasing and worrying livestock."

He said his fee boost idea was aimed at discouraging "the man or woman who just thinks it would be fun to have a dog but has no real conception of how to look after it and really care for it."

U.S. Public Health Service Issues Strong New Warning

Smoking Causes Lung Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. public health service has issued a strong new warning on tobacco: The weight of evidence implicates smoking as the main cause of the rising rate of lung cancer.

The statement was made Thursday by Surgeon - General Leroy E. Burney in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It was the government's strongest statement to date linking smoking and cancer, and Burney said it was based partly on unpublished evidence.

Burney's warning immediately was attacked by tobacco interests as a warmed over rehash of old statistics.

PRELIMINARY REPLIES

Dr. C. C. Little, scientific director of the tobacco industry research committee, said the policy in Burney's article were "first published some years ago in statistical studies which, we think are not supported by experiments or evidence."

Representative Watkins Abbitt (D-Va.) said Burney's statements are "a warmed over rehash of old statistics."

Canadian Breweries has decided not guilty to a charge laid under the Combines Investigation Act of having formed or operated a merger that operated or was likely to operate to the detriment or against the public interest.

Chief Justice McRuer Wednesday summed up his view of the case. The substance, he said, was whether the merger had eliminated competition to an unduly extent.

Shortly after the defence case started, he refused to accept evidence the defence planned to introduce on how benefits resulting from mergers had led the companies of a number of smaller breweries.

SEVERAL RULINGS

It was not relevant, he said, whether it was better to produce beer in large or small breweries or whether the merger had kept beer prices low. Nor was it relevant whether it had unduly limited competition.

He made two rulings Thursday in favor of the defence. He ruled that evidence filed by the Crown on the intent of the accused was relevant, and rejected a number of documents on collateral agreements between the accused and certain other breweries.

As of Thursday, 32 crown witnesses and seven heard and 100 exhibits filed, mainly by the crown.

E. P. Taylor, chairman of the board whose name cropped up in many of the documents, attended all but eight of the 30 days.

Beer Combines Trial Adjourned Until January

TORONTO (CP)— The combines trial of Canadian Breweries Limited, a complex case that has seen documents piled shoulder high on courtroom tables, was adjourned Thursday in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Theodore Harvey for the defence and prosecution, who have argued through 29 days of sittings since the trial opened Oct. 13, will get a breather until Jan. 4.

Defence counsel C. F. H. Carson and J. J. Robinette asked for the adjournment the day after beginning their presentation, stating they wanted to consider their position in the light of rulings made by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

ADMISSABILITY ARGUED

The defence up to that time had called only one witness, company president Ian Dowie. Much of the last two days was taken discussing what evidence could be accepted for and against the brewing empire.

Plane Operators Asked to Keep Away From Field

TORONTO (CP) — A department of transport official has asked pilots and flying club operators to keep their machines away from the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium Saturday so they won't disturb fans watching Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger - Cats battle for the Grey Cup.

A circular signed by Regional Air Controller H. M. Wilson has been sent to flying clubs and schools and the RCMP. It said anyone found operating in contravention of air regulations would be subject to court action.

British Labor Party Plans Frank Inquest Into Defeat

LONDON (CP) — Britain's Labor party, thus far weathered, possibly the fullest and frankest public inquest ever conducted by a major political party.

Two thousand party representatives in special meet at Blackpool for a two-day session to determine why Labor suffered a shattering defeat in the Oct. 8 general election—the party's third straight loss in eight years.

One big question seems likely to dominate discussions. Is it time for the party to scrap or water down some of the long-held socialist dogmas to make the party more attractive to the voters?

Since the party last held power in 1951, it has been hobbled by fundamental divisions on the issues of nationalization, disarmament and relations with trade unions.

Debate has been raging on these issues since the election, a debate in which party leader Hugh Gaitskell has taken no part. The conference is shaping up as a crucial test in his career as party chieftain. On Saturday he is to break his silence on the subject.

He is to launch the inquest by arguing why he thinks Labor lost and what he feels must be done to win next time. On his performance could will hinge the future unity of the party he leads.

The great majority of those expressing their views overwhelmingly oppose scrapping the nationalization plank of Labor's platform.

Gaitskell personally is believed to think that nationalization be kept to be part that a better approach in a modern, industrial economy is greater accountability to the public.

Observers, however, do not believe he will ask delegates to jettison nationalization at this time. Such a move, they say would provoke a quarrel that would make the Bevanite revolt of 1955 a quite difference affair.

First Airlift TB Refugees To Arrive Dec. 16

OTTAWA (CP) — The first group of European tuberculous refugees to be admitted to Canada under the refugee section of World Refugee Year will arrive by air at Toronto's Malton airport Wednesday, Dec. 16.

Immigration Minister Fairclough said Thursday in an interview that a second group will arrive at Malton Christmas Eve and that other arrangements are in processing of refugees overseas.

The federal government is sponsoring the settling in Canada of the refugees, who suffer from tuberculosis as the Canadian contribution to a special world refugee resettlement scheme. The movement, including sick refugees and their families, will involve between 400 and 500 persons.

OTTAWA PAYS COSTS

Travelling expenses of the refugees will be borne by the federal government and arrangements are being made with provincial authorities for treatment and for any maintenance of dependants.

Refugees on the first flight suffering from TB will be sent to Mountain Sanitorium in Hamilton and to Toronto Hospital at Weston. Families of the refugees will be provided with accommodation in the two communities through the co-operation of the immigration department and voluntary organizations.

Of the 100 sick refugees, 50 will be selected from camps in Latina, 45 miles south of Rome, and 50 from camps in Austria probably at Salzburg.

RECOVER LOOT, HOLD TWO

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa and Quebec provincial police Thursday night recovered a cottage at McGregor Lake, near St. Pierre de Wakefield, Que., and uncovered more than $4,000 worth of food, jewelry, cameras, clothing and household appliances stolen from Ottawa homes last weekend. Police said two youths had been arrested and would be charged with housebreaking, shopbreaking and theft.

Liberals Win Manitoba Seat, Lose to Socreds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Liberal-Progressives took a seat from the Manitoba Progressive Conservative government in one of four provincial byelections Thursday. The government retained two seats and a healthy majority while Social Credit made a comeback to gain one from the Liberal-Progressives.

The result left the government with 35 seats in the 57 - seat house. The Liberal-Progressives, Manitoba's version of the Liberal party, had 14 and the title of official opposition. The CCF which did not contest any of the byelections, had 6.

Jacob M. Forest, by gaining the Rhineland seat for Social Credit, became the party's first successful candidate in Manitoba since 1945.

Rhineland was vacant by the death of former Liberal-Progressive cabinet minister W. C. (Wally Miller). Turtle Mountain was vacated by Conservative Public Works Minister Errick F. Willis, who resigned to become lieutenant-governor of the province. Provincial Cryerys was by reason of the death of Conservative Provincial Secretary Marcel Berube. And Arthur was left vacant by the death of Conservative J. G. Cobb.

Mrs. Thelma Forbes became the only woman member of the legislature when joining forces for the Conservatives.

Dauphin Was retained Arthur for the Conservatives by defeating Liberal-Progressive E. H. Palmere.

Mayor E. I. Dow of Boissevain for Liberal - Progressive, defeated Conservative R. C. Bob) Alkens to win the Turtle Mountain seat which Mr. Willis had held since 1953.

Premier Duff Roblin had no immediate comment on the results.

Former premier D. L. Campbell, Manitoba Liberal-Progressive leader, said he was well satisfied with the result.

"We put our own as far as seats were concerned and we certainly increased our support vote very greatly," he said. "Mr. Roblin lost one seat and saw his popular vote decreased."

Three Colleges May Be Given University Status

TORONTO (CP) — Elevation of three existing Ontario colleges to university status is "right in the offing," Premier Frost said Thursday.

The three are Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Sacred Heart College at Sudbury and Lakehead College of Arts, Science and Technology at Port Arthur.

OAC, whose art degrees now are awarded through the University of Toronto, will be expanded by the addition of an arts college, Premier Frost said.

Sacred Heart College already has a university charter but has not exercised it.

These three new universities will be in addition to the newly-established York University in Toronto.

ASSISTING MINE

Opening the University of Toronto's new $5,000,000 dental building, Mr. Frost said the government now is assisting nine universities in the province. The present university population is now 22,000, will be about 90,000 by 1970, he said.

Annual government expenditure on education is now $200,000,000, compared with $13,000,000 in 1945.

Mr. Frost also announced Thursday the appointment of Robert Winters, president of Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada and former federal cabinet minister, as chairman of the board of governors of York University.

Mr. Winters, 48, was minister of public works in the last Liberal government. He was defeated in the election of June 10, 1957, when the Progressive Conservatives came into power.

The new university here as yet has no campus. Premier Frost said some of the funds being raised currently for expansion at the University of Toronto will be diverted to the new university.

Beatings Went on for Hours Neighbors Testify as Mother Tried for Murder of Son, 4

HULL, Que. (CP) — The trial of Mrs. Jean MacDonald, charged with murdering her four-year-old son entered its third—and probably last—day today.

Her next-door neighbor Thursday described prolonged beatings they said they heard the mother administering to the boy before his death Sept. 17 in hospital.

Crown witnesses have told of hearing Mrs. MacDonald swearing at the boy and saying she hated him and wished he were dead, of seeing her hit him on the head with a child's broomstick and of her going out on an all-night drinking party.

ACCUSED IS BORED

Mrs. Ray Joyce, 23 Mikel Ave., Belleville, told of accompanying Mrs. MacDonald on an all-night party and of returning to the MacDonald home in the morning.

They said Mrs. MacDonald refused to give Kenneth food when he asked for it and that she became angry when one of them gave him some.

She said that on Sept. 16 they offered the boy money.

Mrs. Ray Joyce.

tasted about an hour before the doctor arrived and one or 1¼ hours after he left.

Earlier, Paulean Barre of Hull, a friend of accompanying Mrs. MacDonald on the all-night party said she had seen Kenneth feed when he asked for it and that she became angry when one of them gave him some.

She said that on Sept. 16 they offered the boy money.

English Duke Gets Some Tips From Disney

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—The 13th Duke of Bedford is a resourceful chap who opened his English castle to the paying public so he could keep the place solvent.

Wednesday he took a good look at an American castle operating on roughly the same principle.

This castle is owned by a showman named Walt Disney.

His Grace thought the castle and the rest of Disneyland rather ripping.

He came to nearby Hollywood to talk about selling his life story to the movies, and made a side excursion to the 160 - acre amusement centre operated here by Disney—on a paying basis.

The duke peeked into one of the movie machines in the penny arcade.

"That's where that delicious aroma has been coming from," he said.

I must get some of those machines going on my estate. They'll go over big."

It is hoped that some activity will be held every weekend, regardless of the weather. Hiking, trail clearing cookouts and other special events will be arranged, according to the interests of the club members.

Anyone wishing to join the group but who cannot attend the meeting tomorrow morning is asked to leave his name and address at the "Y".

Texas University to Play Syracuse in Cotton Bowl

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas, Virginia Military Institute, Pennsylvania and—most of all — North Carolina scored the big points as United States Thanksgiving Day football games decided entries for two major post-season bowl games and the champions of two major conferences.

Texas, trailing until the final quarter, pulled out a 20-17 decision over Texas A and M and earned a share of the Southwest conference title and the host spot in the Cotton Bowl game. Penn, likewise a trailer, overcame the ancient rival Cornell 28-13 to win the Ivy League championship and VMI whipped Virginia Tech 27-13 in a head-on clash for the Southern conference championship.

WORST BYES

North Carolina, its title aspirations long since blunted, handed Duke its worst beating ever in their backyard battle—50-0—and moved into second place behind Clemson in the Atlantic coast conference.

The Southwest conference race won't end until Saturday when Texas Christian gets its shot at a tie for first place, but the Texas victory Thursday made sure Texas will play Syracuse in the Cotton Bowl and Arkansas will go to the Gator Bowl. Each had a 5-1 record, a mark TCU can equal by beating Southern Methodist Saturday. But in the case of ties, the team away from the Cotton Bowl the longest gets the bid.

Bobby Lackey guided Texas to three second - half touchdowns, scoring the winner himself.

VMI quarterback Howard Dyer passed for three touchdowns as VMI finished with a 5-0-1 non-last-ditch record.

Faced by George Kwal, a second - string quarterback, Penn scored 21 points in the final period, after having been down 6-13.

North Carolina, the underdog, completely demoralized the Duke team in a televised game. A 82-yard return of the second-half kickoff by Carolina's Don Klochak, two recovered fumbles and a pass interception all figured in the scoring in the most lopsided game these teams ever played.

Other scores: Wichita fumbled Tulsa 26-21, Wyoming routed Detroit 45-6, Colgate upset Brown 23-14, Washington State outscored Houston 32-28 in an intersectional tussle.

Jerry James Ready to Play If Price Right

TORONTO (CP)—Gerry James said Thursday he is interested in playing hockey for Toronto Maple Leafs if the offer from the National Hockey League club is "right."

James, fullback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, was commenting on a report that coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs was interested in obtaining his services for the last few months of the NHL.

"I sent a letter to the Leafs quite a while ago asking them what the situation was," James said, "but I haven't heard anything from them."

James hasn't played hockey since his 1957-58 season with the Leafs. Imlach said he hoped he could get together with James after the Grey Cup to discuss hockey.

James suffered a double fracture of his left leg early in the 1958 football season, which also kept him out of hockey last winter. He returned to Bombers this year.

Leonard Praises Canada Cup Golf Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canada Cup golf tournament has become the "world series of golf," says Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who took the tournament's International Trophy last week in Melbourne for the lowest individual score of the competition.

"It is one of the great international competitions — bigger than the Davis Cup in tennis," Leonard told reporters Wednesday night, shortly after arriving home by air from Australia.

Leonard, who defeated Australian Peter Thomson in an extra-hole playoff for low individual honors, played in the first Canada Cup matches six years ago in Montreal. He won low honors on the same site in 1954, one year later.

In the meantime, the number of entrants has jumped to 40 golfers from 30 countries compared with seven countries and 14 golfers at the start.

"It is a friendly affair. There is less blood than in the big United States tournaments. The guys still want to win as much, but the tempers don't flare as much," Leonard said.

Polamby Whips Good Field

NEW YORK (AP) — Ned W. Frost's Polamby, who has been chasing the best mares all season, found a field she could handle Thursday and captured the 12th running of the $27,270 Firenze Handicap at Aqueduct Race Track.

The four-year-old stepped the mile and a furlong in the good time of 1:36 4-5. Merry Hill was second and Starlet Mire third.

Airmans Guide won the $15,000-added Marguerite Stakes at Pimlico.

Charlie Boy won the $7,500 Thanksgiving Handicap at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

At Miami, Peeping Tom and Roman Colonel won the two divisions of the Hurricane Handicap as Tropical Park opened Florida's long racing season.

Alex Miteff Hopes to Win Over Hunter

NEW YORK (AP) — Alex Miteff hopes to wipe out one of the holes on his record tonight in Madison Square Garden. He gets another chance at Billy Hunter, the Detroit heavyweight who stopped him in seven rounds June 25 in Syracuse.

Hunter has other ideas. The 27-year-old Miteff, followed by another over Tony Anthony, gave lofty ideas about going all the way.

With Ingemar Johansson now fencing for his next opponent in defence of his heavyweight title, all the big boys are anxious to keep in the running.

Miteff was a 4-to-1 favorite over Hunter when they fought the first time. When the bout was stopped because of Miteff's cut eye, Hunter was in full control with a 4-3-1 edge on all official cards. Despite this, Miteff probably will be a slight favorite in their 10-round televised rematch.

2 Pink Salmon Caught in Fall In Lake Superior

POST ARTHUR, (CP) — Two pink salmon, a Pacific coast fish, were caught this fall in Lake Superior, it was reported Thursday.

Pink salmon were raised to fingerling size at Port Arthur this year and most were shipped north to be released in Goose Creek which flows into Hudson Bay.

After the fish - carrying plane left, more than 60 fingerlings were found in the hatchery troughs and were released in Lake Superior.

William Negard of Duluth caught one 19½ inches long off the mouth of the Manitou River in Minnesota Sept. 5 and two weeks later William A. Vancalberg of Duluth caught an 18-inch pink just above the mouth of the Sucker River, also on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Both fish were identified as males and in good condition.

PLAN FIGHT-OFF

QUEBEC (CP)—Gene Letourneau, national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, said Wednesday he has received a letter from boxing manager Chris Shaben that Yvon Durelle is retiring.

Durelle, Canadian and British Empire light heavyweight champion, announced in Moncton, N.B. Tuesday that he was through with boxing.

Mr. Letourneau said it will open the way for a championship bout, probably between top contender Doyle Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., and any one of Al Hoplock, Charlie Purvis, or Goerlie Baldwin, all of Toronto or Frank Bola of Montreal.

BULLDOGS HERE TONIGHT

Jean-Paul Lemieux and his scoring Bulldogs from Windsor will be the guests of the McFarlands in the senior "A" hockey fixture at Memorial Arena this evening.

But we do hope the visitors will not be too disappointed if the Macs fail to display a great deal of hospitality. Tonight should be different, for according to the law of averages the Macs are just about due to bust loose with a potful of goals.

Both clubs are expected to come up with at least one lineup change for this game. If plans went according to schedule yesterday, the Macs will have Ken Gribbons, a centre ice player, in the lineup, giving them three regular centres for the first time this season.

Gribbons, late of the Chatham Maroons, played his earlier senior "A" hockey with the Sudbury Wolves who have themselves the amateur ranks this year. Gribbons was one of the top men in the Sudbury lineup for a number of years and it is expected that he will still be able to make his presence felt in this class of hockey.

With Bradley, Frizzle and Gribbons working up centre it will permit some of the wingers, such as Lee Sparks and Ted Tompkinson, to play their regular positions. It should make a big difference and we look for an improved performance from the club as a whole tonight.

The Chatham club in putting Gribbons and Zorica on waivers, the latter being purchased by Windsor, stressed the point that it was for financial reasons that the move was made.

The Windsor Star carried a story from its Chatham bureau, which by the way withheld the names of the players being placed on waivers, quoting Chatham Hockey Association President Max Hamm as saying that the club was in dire need of financial aid and that the players were being let go only to obtain cash to help the cause of their team. From the price Chatham tried to get from Windsor for Zorica, we certainly can believe that.

We do not know if Zorica will play for the Bulldogs tonight or not, but Lamirande has announced that John Utendale, back from a five-game trial with Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern pro circuit, will replace Jack Costello in the lineup.

Utendale, a speedy left-winger, will be the boy's home colored player if he stays with the Windsor club. Apparently he played well while on trial with the Wolves, so should perform well back in senior "A" company. Jack Costello, younger brother of Murray, who holds down a regular right-wing spot, has slumped badly after a fast start in this, his first, year of senior competition.

Jerico tonight should be fast-and hard-hitting, a few middle heads developing between members of the Macs and Dogs in earlier games. The McFarlands have a couple of scores to settle with Windsor, scores of 10-1 and 9-3, to be exact. But on the other hand one of local two victories came at Windsor's expense, snapping a six-game losing streak.

Don't bet against Hildebrand's crew repeating that feat tonight.

SYMPATHY EXTENDED

Claude Tice, former sports editor and a personal friend of the late "Gunner" Arnott, pays respect here to that gentleman and sportsman who passed away earlier this week. Mr. Carver and myself join with Mr. Tice in offering our deepest sympathy to the Arnott family.

"The sympathy of the entire sporting fraternity of the city and district goes out to the wife and immediate family of the late Lionel "Gunner" Arnott, who died this week at a heart condition. There are only a few of the old guard left and Yonge Wells probably the only one left of that great intermediate team, who delighted fans over the district for some years. Many stories could be told of "Gunner" Arnott, a powerful man and strong wrists could propel the rubber disc into the tiniest of holes. "Gunner" was a natural hockey player. Although not considered fast on the blades, he could skate with the most of them and what he lacked in speed he made up in "brains."

"He could diagnose plays, rally his teammates and was an uncanny marksman. It brings to mind a playoff game against the Port Hope team when Flanigan Hill was in his prime. Bobby Hewitson was the referee and the risk was banned for the game. "Gunner" worked his way through the defence and put the puck into the net, but apparently there was a hole in the twine. At that time goal judges stood on the ice and he refused to award the goal and Mr. Hewitson said he did not see the puck. "Gunner" argued loud and long but to no avail, so he told the referee to watch the next one and sure enough he put the puck through the hole again and incidentally he scored seven goals that night to win the round.

"He was a fine fellow, a splendid companion and will be sadly missed."

Canadiens Rack Up 16th Straight Without A Loss

Defeat Detroit Wings 4-2; Leafs Beat Hawks, Bruins Take Rangers by 4-3 Count

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It gets harder and harder for opposing teams to figure out which of Montreal Canadiens' flying Frenchmen should be tied down.

When the first and second lines are checked, the third line can still score. Detroit Red Wings found that out Thursday as the Canadiens beat them 4-2 to extend the National Hockey League's longest undefeated streak this season.

Dickie Moore, Phil Goyette and one by Claude Provost were enough to give Montreal its 16th straight game without a loss. Jean Beliveau of the first - line family added a goal which wasn't needed.

Detroit was operating with substitute goalie Gilles Boisvert, normally with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, as the illness-injury toll sidelined another hockey great, betrothed Terry Sawchuk, with unexplained leg pains.

ROCKET OUT

Montreal already missing Bernie Geoffrion sorely, were hurt more severely when Maurice Richard was hit by a flying puck and suffered a broken cheek bone. He'll be out for a month.

Boston lost high - scoring left-winger John Bucyk last week. The Bruins beat New York 4-3 Thursday night but Bucyk's Uke Lise mates missed him.

Toronto, missing nobody, strengthened its grip on third-place with a 4-3 nee-saw win at Chicago.

Johnny Wilson scored two goals and goalie Johnny Bower stopped 44 potential goals to give the Leafs the victory.

At Detroit, Provost slammed a 10-footer in the first period to give Montreal a lead that Gary Aldcorn of Detroit erased a little later.

Goyette made it 2-1 but the Wings drew even when Norm Ullman clicked on a power play poking in Alex Delvecchio's rebound.

The winner came when Goyette expertly picked Provost's rebound off the boards and smashed a 15-foot shot. Beliveau stole the puck and broke away alone for the insurance goal only 45 seconds before the game ended.

HOWE REACHES LANDMARK

Gord Howe assisted on both Detroit goals—the 480th and 500th of his great career.

At Boston, newly promoted forward Doug Mohns got a goal, his first since being put up front after years as a defenceman.

Bruins were ahead 4-1 late in the second period on goals by Leo Boivin, Leo Labine, and Guy Gendron but New York came back and almost pulled the game out as Andy Bathgate and Camille Henry added goals to Harry Howell's early score. Bruins buckled down and held on to win.

At Chicago, the Leafs rammed three goals past Glenn Hall in the last five minutes of the first period. Bob Baun, Wilson, and Larry Regan got them.

In the second the Hawks roared back and scored three goals within five minutes to tie it up. Ted Lloan, Ed Litzenberger, and Ron Murphy did the scoring.

Old reliable Wilson, the NHL's iron man, was killing off a Toronto penalty when he got his winning goal on a pass from Bob Pulford.

Rocket Richard Gets Fracture Of Cheekbone

DETROIT (CP) — The great Maurice Richard, a man who knows well the anguish of National Hockey League battering, has again fallen victim to the injury jinx. This time it will force him from the game for at least a month.

The incomparable right winger with Montreal Canadiens, in the twilight of his hockey career, suffered a depressed fracture of the left cheekbone Thursday night when struck by a flying puck as Canadiens beat Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

Doctors said the Rocket will require surgery and that he will be out of the lineup for at least a month, possibly longer.

Richard was en route to Toronto by train with the team today. Canadiens planned to fly him from there to Montreal for treatment.

FIRST HE OLIVER'S SHOT

Richard, mindful of his 39 years and living in quiet dread of the day when he must retire from a sport to which he has devoted most of his life, was hit by a puck fired by Detroit rookie Murray Oliver with 90 seconds left in the game. He clutched his face and left the ice under his own power.

The question today is whether the flying puck signalled the beginning of the end for one of hockey's most hated, loved and admired performers. The pain of injury prevented Richard from talking last night.

In the last two seasons he has run into serious injuries, and each time there was a question

Western Money Begins to Show On Winnipeg

TORONTO (CP) — Western money began making itself felt Thursday and there was a slowly widening point spread establishing Winnipeg Blue Bombers favorites over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Saturday's Grey Cup game.

In Toronto the spread was four points on a take-your-choice 6 to-5 basis. If you bet the Bombers, you lay 6 to 5 and give four points. If you bet the Tiger-Cats you also lay 6 to 5 but get four points.

For the friendly betters in Winnipeg, with no point spread, of whether he would call it quits.

Two years ago Richard suffered a cut Achilles tendon that kept him out of the lineup for 21 games. He missed 34 games last season with a broken leg. Which reminded sportswriter fans that the Rocket was the oldest campaigner in the NHL and could not be expected to withstand much more punishment.

Each time he came back.

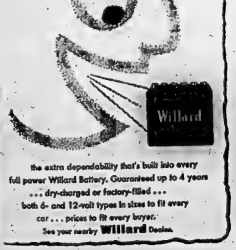
In 20 games this year he has six goals and nine assists for the league-leading Canadiens. Much more impressive is his 18-year career total of 321 goals and 444 assists in 947 regular NHL games plus 81 goals and 61 assists in 125 playoff appearances.

Stadium Field Not in Good Shape for Game

TORONTO (CP)—Three football officials took a look at Exhibition Stadium Thursday and didn't like what they saw.

Don McPherson of Regina president of the Canadian Football League, later told Mayor Nathan Phillips that if Toronto wants the Grey Cup game again, "you'd better get someone who can look after a field."

McPherson visited the stadium along with football commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg and Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.



At that time, six workmen were removing the tarpaulin. Patches of sodden turf, mud and ruts were in evidence.

McPherson and Halter described the field as in only fair shape. Gaudaur called it a "disgrace."

The CNE management promptly ordered an extra crew on the job but by early afternoon before the field was completely uncovered.

McPherson commented: "It should have been up before dawn with a crew of 40 men working on it. It was a beautiful drying day but most of the field was still covered."

During Thursday night, light snow fell, adding further to the groundskeepers' problems.

Bomber Coach Grant Used Ploen Both Ways at Practice; Hamilton Ti-Cats Ready to Roll

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Dief coach Bud Grant tip his defensive setup for Saturday's Grey Cup battle against Hamilton Tiger - Cats when he put Winnipeg Blue Bombers through Thursday's workout.

Many of the bystanders were wondering.

Grant had quarterback Kenny Ploen at safety as the offensive squad ran through several Hamilton pass patterns against the Bomber defence at the University of Toronto campus grounds.

While Grant has maintained he will use Ploen at safety only in goal-line defences and other tight situations, it appeared that the Winnipeg quarterback was getting more than the usual time at the deep spot during the late afternoon practice.

RECORD-SETTER

Ploen excelled at the safety position during the regular season, intercepting 10 passes to tie a Western Interprovincial Football Union record, knocking down several others, and making many key tackles that helped the pass catchers and in close on running backs.

Ploen inherited the quarterbacking job in Bombers' second-last league game this year when regular Jim Van Pelt from Michigan went out for the season with a shoulder separation. Ploen had quarterbacked Bombers to the Grey Cup final in 1958.

But coach Grant wasn't too happy about Ploen's bowl as an offensive defender. Grant attempted to switch his defensive unit around, putting former linebacker Gordie Rowland at safety and inserting Ken Ploen at former Toronto junior, in Rowland's position. It got a lot of practice on Rowland.

Grant may go with Ploen both ways in the single-game championship. The workout Ploen received Thursday indicated that possibility.

Ploen was in his glory at safety, roaming short and deep to hound down or intercept passes tossed by halfback Quarterback Joe Zalecki, who was "playing" Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney in the practice.

The crowd of hockey supporters, university students and others were amused and often surprised at Ploen, his every move with the usual wad of chewing tobacco on his stomach side protruding, often found the mark.

Bombers have not played since they knocked off Edmonton in the western final two weeks ago, and many of the players have not been as sharp as they were then.

However, if the sharpness was not there, the spirit was.

Grant's face was grim as he hurtled the players back to the Varsity Stadium dressing room.

"You can't play to-day and then the big one," Grant said. As an after-thought, he shouted, "Don't forget tonight's meeting."

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats regard Winnipeg Blue Bombers as their opponents in Grey Cup games, as the best football club they'll have met this season.

That's the word from Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney on the eve of the third straight cup field between the two clubs.

"The over - reckless club is the best club we have met all year," Faloney said Thursday night, ranking Winnipeg a notch above Ticats' opposition in the Big Four.

"We're happy we're going into the game as the underdogs," he added.

Ticats were scheduled to hold a final light running drill in mild afternoon today before attending an early-evening parade and pep rally in front of a downtown Hamilton hotel.

QUIET FINAL NIGHT

Later the club will leave for an undisclosed hotel near Toronto for a quiet night of "getting-ready-for-the-game" the new psychological warfare between coaches and players and talk about their offensive and defensive alignments.

During the parade tonight, the players and coaches will ride in open-top convertibles and be presented to football fans at the rally. A similar display of fan support was held last week and the local Tiger-Cats partied themselves out of the doldrums and wiped out a 12-point deficit to win the Eastern Conference final, a two-game total-points affair, 28-24 over Ottawa Rough Riders.

"That kind of thing helps the players," Faloney said.

"It really gives the boys something to play for, apart from their own personal pride."

CAUGE 'FEG STRENGTH

Faloney said Winnipeg's greatest strength lies in its rushing offence, but he did not under rate quarterback Kenny Ploen's passing ability.

Faloney, like his coach, Jim Trimble, said he expects a high-scoring game.

Trimble said he will have to drop one player, with the choice between tackle Bill MacDougall, a Hamilton native from Toronto Argonauts, and halfback Billy Graham, veterans of four years with Ticats.

In view of the fact that rookie Bronco Negurski, first - string offensive tackle, is unable to play because of a knee injury, there was speculation that Trimble will direct MacDougall as an extra lineman.

Negurski, former Notre Dame star who hails from Calgary, Alta., citizen, damaged the cartilage in his knee when he eyed the serve and aggravated the injury in a tackling drill short a month ago. He is not ready for heavy duty action, though he has been trying out his knee in recent workouts.

Guelph Bilts Wallops Cubs; Flyers on Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores' centre Jean Ratelle and right winger Rod Gilbert collected a hat for a total of eight goals Thursday night as they demolished the Hamilton Tiger-Cubs defence for a 13-5 win. Guelph could grab first place tonight in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Barrie Flyers defeated Peterborough Petes 6-3 and Peterborough Petes to snap Petes six-game winning streak.

The Biltmores, with seven goals for in each of both games before the win over Hamilton, have won three straight. They are tied at second with St. Michael's College Majors, one point behind Toronto Marlboros, and a win on home ice over Marlboros tonight would give first place.

Peterborough is tied followed by Barrie, Hamilton and St. Catharines TreePees in that order.

Gilbert, the league's leading marksman, scored three goals and four assists. Ratelle, runner up, tallied five times and aided on two others.

Bert Brown, Bill Bustalo, Eno Kraft, Bob Cunningham and Harry Adelman scored singles for the winners. Nick Polano, Neil Young, Ron Ellis, Bert Templeton and Jim Dahmer replied for Hamilton.

The winners led 4-1 after the first period and 8-4 going into the third.

The defeat spoiled Ralph (Farmer) Maglio's debut as Hamilton coach. He took over from Gerry Brown Thursday.

Brown, his fourth year at Hamilton, will continue with the parent Detroit Red Wing organization and conduct hockey clinics.

Maglio's base is Hamilton Burlington Industrials, the Cubs' Junior B farm club, for the past five years.

LOSE FIVE STRAIGHT

The Cubs now have lost five straight.

In the game at Peterborough Pierre Gagnon led the Flyers with two goals. Jean Gilbert and Bob Awrey had singles. Doug Senior and Wayne Connelly were the marksmen for Petes.

Barrie led 3-1 at the end of the first period and carried the same lead into the final period after a scoreless stanza.

Barrie drew six of nine penalties.

Minor Hockey Notes

Because of a couple of the Senior "A" hockey games being played on Wednesday nights, this week and next, the midget and juvenile games in the BMHA were rescheduled.

Both divisions played a full slate of games last night and next week the action in these two loops will take place on Tuesday, rather than Wednesday.

MIDGETS

Black Hawks defeated the Rangers by a 3-1 score. Bill Ryan posted two Hawk goals with Jim Muir getting the other. York and Jones picked up assists. Jay Kiser scored for Rangers with Norm Richards and Jerry St. Denis assisting.

Red Wings and Bulns played to a 0-0 deadlock in another midget league tilt.

Canadiens came up with the best goa production in the group to down the Maple Leafs 8-5. Larry Duvall spaced the attack with two goals and one assist. The other markers were shared by Bob Ridley, Robert Burr, Ross Pirie and Jim Rutherford with Don Goodfellow had one assist. Bob Demorest tallied for the Leafs.

JUVENILES

Both Juvenile fixtures resulted in high scores with some top individual performances.

Bombers outlasted the Rovers by a 9-5 with one the potting sight of the nine goals. Peg Kellar and Gordie Grayton had three goals and three assists while linemate Jim Sheridan had two goals and five assists. Johnson also scored with Harvey, Rushton and McKnight getting single helpers. Billy "The Kid" McGuire clicked for four of the Rover markers while Jack Moore had one and one. Clapp and Weston drew assists.

The Aces defeated the Jets by a 7-2 count with Mike Stubbert's two goals and one assist leading the way. Jim Dahl had a goal and two assists and Doug Dales one and one. Bruce Gelethorpe, McLaughlin and Billy Button also scored with Don Vance getting a single assist. Cliff McCrimmon and Dennis Sinclair had a goal and assist apiece to look after all the Jet's points.

Lions Keep Roaring

Out-Bump Montreal Roys To Win, Soo Takes Hull

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Trois Rivieres Lions kept roaring towards the top of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Thursday night as they out-battered Montreal Royals 3-2 in Montreal to climb into a second place tie with Hull - Ottawa Canadiens.

But they had a little co-operation from Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds who weathered a last minute Hull-Ottawa attack to preserve a 4-3 victory in Canada's other EPHL game.

Lions extended their winning streak to three as they pulled within three points of the league-leading Sudbury Wolves. Wolves, however, now have two games in hand.

Dino Marcotte, Mel Pearson and Sandy McGregor scored for Trois Rivieres in the game which saw the Lions pick up nine of the 15 penalties.

Billy Rotherland and Roger Sicwicki scored for Montreal as the Royals couldn't tie it up although they pulled goaler Charlie Hodge with a minute to go.

In the Soo, Hull-Ottawa had little more luck when trailing 4-2 in the final minute they pulled Bob Dawes and Jim Stanfield at 19:32 but they couldn't tie it up.

Fred Hills, Milan Marcetta, Gerry Meehan and Walter Bradley scored for Thunderbirds. John Kowalchuk and Gilles Tremblay were the goals for Hull-Ottawa scorers.

Canadiens outshot the Thunderbirds 53-13, firing 18 shots at Soo goaler Denis Dejordy in the final period.

Thunderbirds announced they are picking up a little help with the acquisition of Jim Moore from the Calgary Stampeders in exchange for Terry Gray. A defence defenceman Edwin Zemrau is also arriving from the Winnipeg Warriors.

MILWAUKEE AP)—Coach Johnny McLellan scored three goals Thursday to lead Milwaukee Falcons to a 6-3 shutout of Indianapolis in an International Hockey League game.

Indianapolis trainer Joe Wolloreih filled in at goal and stopped 36 shots. Falcon goalie Marv Edwards turned in his first shutout of the season with 30 saves.

Indianapolis had obtained goalie Chuck Adamson, formerly of Milwaukee, from Belleville, but, thinking it was a night game, Adamson arrived with only about 20 minutes playing time left.

CITY PLANNING
Is City Planning really necessary? Many citizens will answer us with an emphatic no! I feel a planning program is certainly necessary if we are going to progress and develop a balanced city, however, those persons who are appointed from the city council to draw the proposed planning should be carefully chosen and should have a real interest in the city and property owners.
It is very apparent from the developments at City Hall that every effort was not put forth in appointing a veteran business. Could it be that we have some planning proposals drawn in a like manner? Let's consider the property owners that the planning-by-law has created a real hardship and in many cases the result has the effect (temporarily at least) of "Expropriation" without property without any payment" by turning potential valuable land into "Green Belts" which can only be used for park or similar purposes which the Parks Board have no money to develop.

STRIP STRIPPER RETIRES — Jane, probably the most frequently undressed blonde in Britain, has retired after 26 years to get married. The famed comic strip character in the London Daily Mirror has bowed out of circulation in favor of a new girl, Patti. The Mirror says Jane, shown right in a not-to-familiar degree of undress, was retired because it became "increasingly difficult to find a situation new to her." Despite the expectation of Mirror readers the newspaper says Patti, seen at left in the introduction panel of her first appearance, won't disappoint. (CP Photo).

Patti Is Jane's Successor In Daily Mirror Comic Strip But Will Not Be Stripper

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Patti, a sweet young thing of 18, has been around two months now, and everyone is waiting for her clothes to come off.

But she will fool them. Patti is going to remain a fine, wholesome, upstanding young lady. She has doffed a few garments but not enough to cause a noticeable stir.

It's enough to make Jane turn somersaults in her grave.

Patti is Jane's successor in the Daily Mirror comic strip, and anyone who knew Jane would expect young Patti to air her assets—coy with disrobing—or delightful — regularity. Jane did little else.

WEARS THIN

But a spokesman for The Mirror says this business is finished. "It began to wear thin," he says. "We needed a fresh, young approach." Hence, Patti.

Jane, perhaps the world's most famous stripper, who spent 26 years cavorting in The Mirror, was written off when she finally proposed to George and they sailed into the sunset. They used a rowboat. And, naturally, Jane was virtually naked.

During her spectacular lifetime, she probably caught her dress in car doors 5,000 times—always rippling it clear of. She fell into oceans almost as often—forcing her to dry soaked garments over camp fires. George was with her on deserted islands, and on ships, about 19 of her 26 years. Still he wouldn't propose. He was shy.

Jane's picture was on the first British tank to enter Normandy. She decorated the fuselage of bombers, as a squadron mascot. Her strips—comic strips — were passed around the trenches.

A group of British submariners, trapped on the bottom during the war, was given advance copies of Jane when the sub's captain ex-lover pretty well."

expected disaster. He was supposed to pass the strips and each day, courtesy of The Mirror. When the sub luckily surfaced, the strips were passed around, and the navy had a two-week jump on other Jane readers.

Soldiers never forgave that submarine captain.

NAKED BOAT

A rumor persisted during the war that the day Jane stripped completely—she normally had a few strings attached—the Allies would invade Europe. Sure enough, on June 6, 1944, Jane stood before the world, stark naked.

After the war she was credited with helping Labor win the 1945 general election. She didn't participate directly, but The Mirror supported Labor, and Jane was a disputed editorial policy.

No one knew how Jane's last name. But just mention her first name in London and everyone knew the tall, leggy blonde.

During her 26 years she taxed the talents of two artists and two writers. "Finally," says a Mirror spokesman, "it became increasingly difficult to find a situation new to her." It seems she stripped in every conceivable paradicament.

MORE BODY

The Patti strip, he says, will have more body in it. That's the story, not Patti.

The nearest this chic blonde has come to body displays was when she visited her sister's night club act in London. When her sister stripped down to a Bikini outfit, Patti was well and truly shocked.

In the old days of Jane, the sister would seem swell and truly covered.

Patti's author, ineldentally, is a woman. And a Mirror spokesman says she has no intention of creating another Jane character. He says initial public reaction indicates the new strip is "going

Joan Caulfield Says Marriage Destroyed in Television Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD AP) — What's it like for a divorcee to go through a pregnancy all by herself?

"It was hell," said Joan Caulfield, star of one of Hollywood's oddest domestic situations. "I've had quite a year. I last worked in November a year ago. In March, I had a bad auto accident.

In April, I divorced Frank Ross, [illegible] producer). In May, I found out I was pregnant. I spent the rest of the time waiting for the baby."

The child, named Caulfield Ross, "I got top billing at last"), was born a fortnight ago, with complications. The birth was over two weeks late. After nine hours of labor, Miss Caulfield was given a Cesarian operation.

Now the actress has bounced back with her customary verve and proudly displays her tiny son at Beverly hilltop home, once owned by John Barrymore. She admitted that the whole experience has made her a changed person.

"Oh, I've learned so much in this past year," she exclaimed. "This is the first time in my life I have been on my own, and I like it. Before, I always lived at home, and my mother made decisions for me. Then I married Frank, and I took all my problems to him to decide."

The marriage was destroyed, she said, in the television series they undertook together, Sally.

"It was a terrible mistake," she admitted. "Aside from Lucille Fontaine, I don't know of any married couple who can work together successfully.

"I blamed Frank for all the frustrations I had on the show. I thought he was responsible because the scripts weren't good or because I didn't have a hand in some man, as I did in My Favorite Husband. I talked about our problems all the time, and we just got sick of each other."

Does she think their marriage would have been preserved if they had gone on the venture?

"Absolutely," she replied. "We were happy before. And we got along much better now. I think I understand Frank now, and perhaps he knows me better. He was with me when I was in the hospital and he never left my standing. He's very proud of his son."

Then perhaps they might reconcile?

"I really don't know," she said seriously. "Perhaps. But first I want to keep my films. Frank had his while I was pregnant. I did some dating at first, but it's kind of embarrassing to date when you're pregnant.

"Now I want to kick up my heels a little and see what it's like."

More Time Spent Watching TV in U.S. Than Working

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK AP) — An awe-inspiring statement comes from Arthur C. Nielsen, head of a research company whose figures on audience size often mean the difference between cancellation and renewal in television:

"More time is spent in viewing television in the United States than in any other human activity except sleep—and that includes work."

Even if Nielsen's rating is off a few points, this is a horrendous thought. It was bad enough to contemplate the widely circulated statistic that the average person in the U.S. spends more than five hours a day before a TV set.

Rumors are rife—and in print —that CBS' The Lineup is in trouble and may be dropped at the end of the year. It was a healthy little perennial in its half-hour format for several years, but hasn't been doing so well since it stretched to an hour's length and lost one of its two stars, Tom Tully.

Why do all TV private detective drive convertibles — and with the top down even when all the bad men are out to shoot them on sight? And why do producers, aware that they may be setting examples, permit TV police cars to violate all the rules of the road, of legal parking and of common sense? Tires scream around curves, cars skid into U-turns on busy highways, and even when there is no real emergency — speed furiously with screaming sirens. All this doesn't help any safe-driving campaigns.

Astrological Forecast

By CAROLL RIGHTER
Saturday, November 29, 1969

General Tendencies: So much that is dynamic, forceful and unpredictable can occur today. You would be wise to really make plans for a big measure of self-control to be used by you to keep out of hot water this Saturday and turn all the energy into worthwhile and constructive channels. Thus you turn potential troubles into active opportunities.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Since you are aspiring to get all personal and business affairs in order, today you are tempted to use force, if necessary, to achieve this end. Take the more intelligent attitude instead, for you may lose one who is valuable to you.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) While you want very much to ally yourself with certain individuals in outside interests that you feel would be worthwhile, a family tie may not agree. Do not argue, but await a better day before taking any concrete steps.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Wisely forgo any social or pleasure sprees over this weekend and get all those small but important tasks completed instead. An early start is imperative. Relaxed, P.M. stirs the lagging spirits of a good friend.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) Remember that there are many worthwhile things that can be enjoyed now, without having to be so very expensive you deplete hard-earned savings. Also get in touch with that good authority who can help you solve some pressing problem.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) This could be a very trying day for you if you do not realize there is much a fundamentalist nature that needs attention at home. Give property and kin the benefit of both ideas and fine creative hands. Put all in order quickly.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Relax early and get back on even keel or you might lose your purse, wallet, cause small misunderstandings and your level of consciousness to bigger and higher things and get into the realm into which you rightfully belong.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Look after your budget today and don't go mad in a very expensive place and spend foolishly. Don't permit mate to do an either P.M. avoid friend who sks an eye on your wallet.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) Since you are very enthused about some venture or idea, you may be tempted to be too forceful with others. This is poor psychology. So patient, state your facts calmly and quietly P.M. obey regulations. Be courteous.

Sagittarius (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23) Problems and seeming worries should be a challenge to your intelligence and a means for spiritual growth. Treat them as such. Then help those in need and do some fine patriotic work. P.M. laugh at those who undermine you.

Capricorn (Dec. 24 to Jan. 20) There is nothing wrong with being ambitious, provided you hurt nobody and are not too forceful. Full speed ahead cleverly. Tonight you must avoid a rift between wise advisor and a friend who does not understand.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You must use finesse today in dealing with Algherups If you want to reach your goals properly. Then in P.M. be firm and do not allow that fine but temperamental associate to ruin all your work and plans.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Every opportunity is open to you now to get an entirely new and better concept of things closest to your heart and most important, to your bank account. But be sure you first complete what has been left undone of old routine.

If your child is born today . . The intelligent child born today is the type who will always endeavor to follow the straight line that is the shortest distance 'twixt two points. This is very good, provided you also teach that a certain amount of diplomacy is to be used in dealing with others, so that feelings may not be hurt. Very good chart for the government worker, the detective, police person.

Sunday School Lesson

Beginning the Right Way

By ROY L. SMITH

There are few men among us who, on re-considered, find that they are able to see the end of the righteous road, but there are those of us who are so blind that we cannot see how to begin the right way at all.

The late Archbishop William Temple, on of the most gifted men this land has produced, once said that there was not a man in all Britain who did not know enough about Jesus Christ to take the next step in the direction of God.

LIGHT ON DAMASCUS WAY

The significant thing in the story of the Apostle Paul on the Damascus Way is the fact that the embittered and prejudiced Pharisee was still able to see the light and take the turn in his direction when he saw the Misty another man, overtaken on Saul way, would have gone on unchanged in spite of his experience.

When Jesus told His story of the prodigal son, He did not mention the fact that, quite probably, there were a dozen other silly young fellows in that far country who also started home because they could not come to themselves. The prodigal man of Jesus' story showed a certain pure and splendid quality of mind and spirit when he said, "I perish with hunger. I will arise and go." Most of us "LACK has been against us. We did not get the break."

All about us there are those who have refused to walk in the light given them, and for that reason they live on in darkness and futility. Rare indeed is it the case that any man has gone to the devil without having been warned again and again, in advance, against the way he was taking. No small part of the greatness of the Apostle appears in the fact that he had the good sense to change his way when he saw the light.

WHEN THE LIGHT SHINES

It is one of the splendors of faith, that it accepts the light whenever it appears to light up the way.

A young set student had been asked, by date of a few months, to buy a ticket which admitted him to a performance of Sarah Bernhardt in a relatively small midwestern theatre. As a lad with a mind and heart open to great impressions he sat through the performance as though enthralled. When the play was ended he hurried from the theatre and the next three hours seeking the streets and the paths in the parks, trying to adjust his life to a great new vision that had come to him under the spell of the gifted actress. The next morning, before he took his place in his art class, he was a young man reborn, and in the years that followed he produced a series of art pieces that were at least near-masterpieces.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for November 29: "Saul Confronted by Christ" Acts 9:1-9.

It is one of the common experiences of the faithful that they find the light shining in upon them in strange places and in the chance encounter with a great soul, a stray sentence in the magazine article, an unpremeditated line or line of a supporting member of the cast, one clever quip in the comics, or an unexpected phrase in the midst of the preacher's sermon.

No man works himself a greater woe than when he allows a prejudice into his mind, for prejudices are so persistent. It is worth noting that the

Indians Given Equal Rights With Eskimos

OTTAWA (CP)—Indians in the Northwest Territories Thursday were granted full liquor rights, placing them on an equal footing with Eskimos who already were able to make liquor purchases.

A proclamation bringing into force in the territories a section of the Indian Act to the effect that liquor rights may be granted the Indians at the request of a provincial or territorial government.

Apostle Paul continued blinded for several days following his vision. And there are aspects of the case which incline us to the belief that he had to fight his prejudices throughout his entire lifetime.

But when who had owned a well deserved reputation for generosity, confessed that for many years following his conversion he had to fight continually against his habit of stinginess. He said of himself, "Giving always hurt, and I had to give until it quit hurting."

Only rarely does it happen that we lose a prejudice by a single stroke of good fortune. A really well established prejudice is apt to be the problem of a lifetime. Paul had to go about bling for several days. But at last he could see.

Judge Warns Jury to Agree In 10 Minutes

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters)—A judge with a train to catch Wednesday warned his jury that they would be locked up for the night if they could not make up their minds in 10 minutes.

Seventy - one - year - old Mr. Justice Stable recalled the jury, which had been out for two hours and 20 minutes, and told them:

"I have disorganized my private arrangements out of consideration of you pretty considerably—and I am not going to disorganize them any further.

"Use your common sense and don't worry yourselves with legal quibbles."

The jury filed out—and returned within four minutes with their verdict—guilty.

The judge then rushed off to catch his train.

An appeal in the case, involving the theft of television sets, is considered likely.

Panama Tense, New Riots Feared As March Planned

Urge Americans Stay Away From Capital

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Panamanians pointed up their grievances over the U.S. - controlled Canal Zone today with a "march of sovereignty" on the capital.

The day marked the 50th anniversary of Panama's independence from Spain but thousands poured into the capital to attend rallies supporting the little republic's claims of sovereignty over the canal.

Troops and Panamanian national guardsmen were held in readiness to meet a possible new outbreak of anti-American violence. Americans were urged to stay away from the centre of the capital during the demonstrations.

PEACEFUL DISPLAY

University students and civic organizations sponsored the principal rally in front of the foreign office. They said it would be a peaceful demonstration designed "to show the United States that country united in the defence of its sovereignty over the Panamanian Zone.

President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr., endorsed the rally but urged the participants to refrain from violence. He ordered police from Nov. 3 when nationalist crowds tried to plant the Panamanian flag in the zone. About 80 demonstrators were hurt in clashes with Canal Zone police and U.S. troops.

BARRICADE DWINDLES

A motorcade carrying more than 150 demonstrators set out about the middle of the afternoon for the capital but the parade dwindled overnight from 30 autos to 14. The cars were stopped briefly at one point and searched by Panamanian police, apparently for weapons.

The United States recognizes Panama's nominal sovereignty over the zone but exercises all the rights of sovereignty granted in the treaty signed between the countries in 1903. The republic receives a yearly rental from the United States of $1,930,000.

Panama wants the treaty revised to meet what it considers present-day conditions.

72 SHIPS FROM 13 COUNTRIES RACE TOWARD SEA

Govt. Will Handle Vessels in Seaway

MONTREAL (CP)—Nature and man have begun their annual battle on the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes navigation system as 72 ships from 13 countries race eastward towards the sea.

This year they must contend with an untried third party in the St. Lawrence Seaway, the deep-water channel linking Lake Ontario with Montreal. Opened this summer, it is getting its first feel of winter.

The federal government has set a Monday midnight deadline for the last ship through the canalized a little Friday night.

A government announcement that the government will maintain its facilities past the Monday midnight for ocean ships actually in the seaway. It had been feared that some of the 16 ships reported west of the Welland Canal would not make Montreal in time.

Shipping agents in Montreal said that each ocean-going ship leaving the seaway at Montreal as late as Wednesday morning.

TWO MAY STAY

However, one or two ships appear likely to winter in the Lakes-water. The Theodoras A is reported stuck in the ice-choked canal with attachment for falling to pay a bill. Another, the Gulf Port, is said to be aground and expected to be lengthened, but this has not been confirmed.

Thirty-three ocean vessels are in the St. Lawrence Seaway between Kingston and Montreal Friday night, and 39 were west of Kingston. Most of the ships of those west of Kingston were expected to enter the seaway on entrance by this morning.

Bad weather hampered movement Friday. Traffic was held up for much of the day during a heavy snowfall that reduced visibility to a dangerous level. Ships began to move again in the late afternoon.

The Montreal Harbor master's office said Friday night no ice has formed in the Montreal area and weather forecasts reported further mild.

SUBWAY TAKEN UP

Night navigation on the Lake St Louis and Lake St. Francis, widening of the St. Lawrence River west of Montreal, ended this week when the transport department took up its lighted buoys for the winter.

However, ships that reach the well - lighted seaway canals during the 17 hours of daylight each day can be passed through the locks during the night.

The 27-mile Lachine River below Montreal, the transport department will operate several icebreakers.

No Use Waving Yesterday's Banners Gaitskell Warns Labor's Left Wing

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell today took a hard swipe at party extremists and warned the party it must modernize if it is to win a general election in the future.

"Let us remember that we are a party of the future, not of the past, and that we must speak to the future," he said as his delegates told 2,000 delegates and visitors attending the weekend election post-mortem.

"It is no use waving banners of a bygone age."

The speech was an outright challenge to party left-wingers who believe Labor's only hope for victory lies in an all-out program of nationalization.

Gaitskell was, giving the lead for discussion on the main cause of the party's third elec-

Some Conclusions

Easing of International Tensions a Possibility

By JOHN G. McCONNELL
Editor of The Montreal Star

Total disarmament is impossible. I do not think there is any question about that. In a disarmed world, we should forever be haunted by the question—who is keeping what up their sleeve?

All the inspection in the world is not necessarily going to discover the hidden weapon. Even if you have "total disarmament in theory what is to stop the boy with the slingshot from keeping a couple of pounds of destruction all over again?

Yet if total disarmament won't work, this doesn't demonstrate that we must have the opposite, that is armament in saturation. This summer, it is getting its first feel of winter.

FOOTBALL FANS WHOOP IT UP BEFORE BIG GAME

Divided by Choice But Still United

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's finest football hour was awaited today by a nation divided in its choice but as one in the intangible spirit of it all.

The fanfare and colorful preliminaries to the annual Grey Cup game end with the traditional spectacle of the Grey Cup parade.

Earlier there was the naming of Canada Grey Cup from among the 13 pretty girls competing from the major football clubs in Canada. The winner was 18-year-old Joanne Wilson of the British Columbia Lions, a brown - eyed schoolgirl from Vancouver.

The rest was left to two capable, powerful football teams—seven - time champion Winnipeg Blue Bombers from the West; the Hamilton Tiger - Cats from the East, losers to the Bombers last year and winners in 1950 and 1951.

MUD SLUNG EARLY

The fun and build-up to the big game struggle has run true to form. This time there was a difference—a little mud-slinging. Did somebody fumble in not seeing that the field in the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium was positively free of sogginess for the start of the game?

A lot of the bickering, pseudo and real, was due for a comeback by hot-dog time at the game time.

Weather conditions and weather do play a part. A still bigger part is played by the teams, on any kind of field.

The aftermath is something else. Then, about 3:30 p.m., comes the explosive outburst that is echoed across the country.

The game is endedby the fans take over. Just as in tiger years, the pre-game hilarity has been leading up to this popping explosion—every sore of it.

MANY LACK TICKETS

The fun began early Friday with the arrival of the first trainloads of fans from Winnipeg. Probably upwards of 200 among the 500 or more without tickets. It's been hopeful but with dim prospects of getting them.

Planes brought in additional hundreds. All early today more trains arrived from the West with fans not only from Winnipeg but from all points in Western Conference.

By Friday night the contingent from Hamilton, 40 miles away, was making its presence known in the city's night spots. Hamilton matched yell for yell with the Winnipeg fans.

Even before the early arrivals hit town, the Royal York Hotel, traditional focal point of the hilarity, had gone through the ritual of the opening of the "Grey Cup" in the lobby.

By Friday night the excitement was steaming up, but still well below the blow-off point. Saturday morning it will be there. There was yelling, whooping, cheering, singing and shouting, the younger element who had had a taste of things.

TRAFFIC HEAVY

There were traffic jams around the hotel. Torontonians driving down to have a look at what might be going on. There were traffic jams on the approaches to the first-floor mezzanine that rings the lobby.

Uniformed and plainclothes police were posted in strategic places, letting the good-natured fun go on but ready to crack down if the fun became over-stepping reasonable limits.

Grey Cup Parade Draws Thousand More Than Game

Glamor, Fun, Frivolity Make Exciting Mixture

TORONTO (CP) — The annual Grey Cup parade was moved today a few minutes behind schedule with only one overnight. There was no hold for this afternoon's Grey Cup football game.

The snow, which came, unseasonably early, to the night dumped just over two inches on the Canadian National Exhibition field at the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium, setting it the football classic.

Workers began shovelling soon after the snow ended at 7 a.m. and by 10 a.m., when the first bands broke through the thinning overcast, almost all evidence disappeared into the protective covering from the field.

It was 30 degrees at the stadium three hours before the p.m. kickoff time with a northwest breeze of nine miles an hour.

SLIGHT WARNING

Forecaster John Kincy of the meteorological office said the mild, damp temperature would be about 35 degrees for the game, cloudy and partly cloudy skies. "A fair amount of sunshine was expected to break through in the clouds.

On the weather office, Kincy reporters pondering what to wear to Toronto's Grey Cup game today can forget about it. "That's the prediction had been further improved.

"A weather disturbance which developed over the southeastern United States was expected to move into the Toronto area. It didn't. During the night the disturbance went down to a low of 27 degrees and was colder than forecast.

The Turpaulin was lifted from the CNE field Friday p.m. a man crew. An all and water was sprayed on the field to help dry out damp and soft patches.

CNE officials hoped a further drying from the breeze would put the field in "pretty fair shape" by game time.

He was manager of The Evening Telegram here in 1929 and purchased the Weekly Times, changing its name to the Port Colborne Times. In 1931 he became a semi-weekly and then a weekly again. He sold the Times-Tribune to become the daily Evening Tribune in the same year. It is now defunct.

City Building Inspector Grant Stickle views the mess of broken plaster which fell on the mayor's dais at city hall Friday after a portion of the ceiling fell.

Big Chunk Ceiling Plaster Falls in Council Chambers

Heated discussions in Belleville city council chambers have finally taken their toll.

In fact they have actually brought the roof down — the ceiling that is.

Wednesday night the council chambers were filled to capacity as residents turned out for the most heavily-attended nomination meeting in years.

And Thursday night a big chunk of the ceiling fell in, spattering broken plaster over the mayor's chair and dais, and over the council chamber floor.

Friday morning an architect was called in by City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull with result that the ceiling plaster has been condemned. This resulted in the chamber doors being sealed with a sign indicating that anyone entering the room did so at his own risk.

In the interest of safety Mayor Gerald Hyde has directed City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull to have the entire ceiling plaster sink down.

Final repair will undoubtedly be left for the incoming 1961 council but authorities have already been made regarding replacement with acoustic ceiling tile. Such a move would result in considerable saving, the engineer said.

After a hectic year as head of the city's administration Mayor Hyde has decided not to stand for re-election and yesterday after looking at the broken ceiling in the council chambers summed everything up with this comment in check statement:

"The roof fell in."

IN MEMORIAM

JEFFERY. — In loving memory of our daughter, Anne Marie, who suddenly left us on November 26th, 1958, due to an accident.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and memory last forever,
No farewell words were said,
No time to say goodbye,
You were gone before we knew it,
And only God knew why.
—Sadly missed by daughter Ethel and family.

BUSHLOW. — In loving memory of Louis Bushlow, who passed away November 27th, 1959.
Dear Lord, remember him today,
Bless his love had given,
And keep him in your memory here,
The soul is safe in heaven.
—Always remembered by Sarah Venalstyne and family.

BUSHLOW. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Louis Bushlow who passed away November 27th, 1959.
Sweet memories are treasures,
No one can steal away
Nov. 27th.
—Lovingly remembered by wife, Lillian Bushlow and family.

FROST. — In loving memory of our dear son, Ronald Frost, who passed away November 29th, 1952.
Resting beneath the willows,
In perfect peace she awaits us all,
And God will take the broken ones,
As one by one we'll meet again.
—Sadly missed by the family.

HANNAH. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ussher Hannah, who died on the 1st of November, 1959.
We dream of you, dear loved one,
We miss you smiling face,
And know that you are happy,
With your heavenly companions.
—Sadly missed by daughter Ethel and family.

WARDAUGH. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Bessie Wardaugh, who passed away November 29th, 1959.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Ever remembered by son Al and family.

HILL. — In loving memory of Elton Hill, who died November 26th, 1941, on his 17th birthday.
Our hopes and dreams were shattered in a game.
You took it seemed God called him home,
He suffered so much and bore it with a brief career . . . But who can say he had not filled his days to the pointed mission here?
We know that if death should come before a man has reached his prime, he is at once translated beyond — that mortal reckonings do not count.
We do not ever the grave of Christ's young — in unseen fields they labor still and their work is not unfinished — they go — some greater purpose to fulfill.
—Always remembered by Mom and Dad.

HILL. — In loving memory of Elton Hill, who died November 26th, 1941, on his 17th birthday.
Heaven gained another angel in a happy game.
We shall remember him as he was,
For the years had made him wise,
And we had no wish to change
Any look and word and action
Of the boy we idolized.
—Sadly missed by mother, sister, brother with laughter, love and memories of a quiet, unselfish life.
At the closing of the day,
When memory comes like that a happy presence,
Dear Lord, I believe that he is near me,
Close in spirit and in touch,
He has found the sacred glory,
Which he dreamed of so much,
In faith I find my comfort,
In this knowledge I am glad,
I shall meet him when he was,
A dear brother and a good brave lad.
—Always remembered by Donna and Lesley.

Hastings County Jr. Farmers And 4-H Club Members Hold Their 9th Annual Club Night

Hastings County Junior Farmers and 4-H Club members held their 9th annual club night at Stirling Friday evening when prizes and other awards won during the year's club activities were presented.

Guest speaker for the event was Mr. Art Bonnett, assistant director of extension for the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Chairman for the evening was Wesley Farrell, president, Hastings County Club Leaders' Association.

The agricultural award, the Bank of Commerce wrist watch, was won by Douglas Rollins of Plainfield, as the outstanding 4-H Club member during his five years of membership in agricultural club work, while the Homemaking Club award, the Book of Commerce silver tray, went to Nancy Reynolds of Madoc.

Ron Heath and Robert Sager tied as club members of the year and each will receive cheques for $15 for their efforts from the Victoria and Grey Trust Co.

HALL FILLED

The Stirling community hall was filled almost to capacity for the club night program at which saw juniors and their parents from all parts of Hastings in attendance. The program was under the direction of Agricultural Representative Sidney McDonald and Associate Director Clinton Nesbitt of Stirling. Musical selections were given by Margaret Bates, who Mrs. Fred Bailey led in community singing.

Guest speaker Arthur Bennett who, as assistant director of extension, congratulated county 4-H club members and Junior Farmers on their year's work.

No other county in Ontario had done as well at the interclub competition at Guelph as had Hastings, he said. Hastings had five teams placing 5th or higher in the competitions.

Mr. Bennett also congratulated the county juniors on their showing at the Ottawa Winter Fair.

PROBLEMS OF FUTURE

The speaker went on to outline the important problems with which farm families of the future will be faced, noting that the tendency would be toward larger and more specialized farms requiring more and more know-how.

"The time is past when an extra bit of brawn can make up for the lack of farming knowhow," he said.

Farm families of the future will be increasingly in the minority as farms get larger and the number of farm families at fewer. This would necessitate better public relations to acquaint the farmers' problems known to an increasingly greater percentage of the nation's population.

Training in decision-making would also be great importance for the future farm family. The high capital investment required for farming operations today would make handing down of family farms more difficult and would be a big obstacle or establishment of new farms.

Douglas Rollins, now in his second year at Guelph Agricultural College, was valedictorian for the club night and told of members and Junior Farmers that club training was getting increasingly more important.

A permit for the construction of a new $575,000 Victoria and Grey Trust Company building on the corner of Front and McAnnany Streets has this week been taken out at city hall with construction to start in the very near future.

City building inspector Grant Sickle noted that the new trust company building and the permit for the new county building brought this year's total to close to six million dollars this year.

Slippery Roads Cause Accidents

Slippery street conditions caused by the overnight fall of snow resulted in a series of auto accidents in the city.

Police said that five accidents, none of them resulting in personal injury, had occurred in Belleville since midnight.

Provincial Police reported that up until 10:30 the Belleville area had been free of highway mishaps, although two accidents were reported in the Napanee area this morning, and a Kingston man was killed when his car went out of control and was wrapped around a tree.

Slippery Snow Causes Minor Accidents Here

TRENTON — Slippery road conditions in Trenton were responsible for three accidents of a minor nature yesterday.

At 2 p.m. a truck from the army camp in Picton, owned by the Department of National Defence and operated by A. G. Mathews, 4 Union Street, Picton, slid into the rear of a wagon wagon owned and operated by Thomas Clairmont, 23 Heber Street, which was stopped on Dundas Street, signalling for a left turn onto Herchmer Street. Damage was estimated at $75 to the panel truck and $15 to the station wagon. The force striking the station wagon, the truck careened across the curb, striking a hydro pole.

A car, owned and operated by Evelyn Whaley, 97 1-3 Marmora Street, came to grief when the driver pulled out of the Dominion Store parking lot onto Dundas Street, and struck a hydro pole, which was struck by the driver, causing damage estimated at $50.

Snow on the back window of a car owned and operated by Evelyn Whaley, 97½ Marmora St. in Trenton, was responsible for a collision with a car driven by Raymond Blakely, Bruce Street, in Frankford, when Mr. Nicholls stopped suddenly to park on the north side of the parking lot at Hill's Grocery, and backed into the Blakely vehicle which was parked. Mr. Nicholls did not see the parked car.

Fly Babe to Hospital

TRENTON — At 1:20 p.m. yesterday a call was received at Trenton Rescue Co-ordination Centre from RCAF Station, North Bay, requesting an airlift to take a convoy flight to Toronto with a "blue baby" with mechanical obstruction in the respiratory tract. The baby, a boy, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Demers, 1414 Golfcrest Ave., North Bay.

A Dakota aircraft, piloted by F/L W. W. Goodby from 102 F Unit of Air Transport Command was dispatched and was airborne in 20 minutes and headed for North Bay. Upon arrival the baby was placed aboard the aircraft and flown to Toronto, and then rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children where he is receiving treatment.

DND Accepts Water Charge

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has been advised by H. M. Reed, a representative of the Deputy Minister of Defence, that the rate of 18.36 cents per 1,000 gallons for water supplied to RCAF Station Trenton, by the town of Trenton, which has been stipulated by the PUC for future service, has been accepted by the department and that this rate will be effective to June 1, 1950. This will enable the water department of the PUC to balance its books, which have been limping along "in the red," pending settlement of this outstanding account. There had been some misunderstanding in the department as to the expenses estimated for the use by the PUC, which had been clarified at a meeting in November 1949, when Mr. Reed met with members of the commission and representatives of RCAF Station Trenton.

A Message To The PUBLIC!
SELF-PRESERVATION IS THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE!

During the past 8½ years, since we first started in business, the motto of "The Store of Quality and Dependability" has been our aim at all times, this we will strive for always.

However, with so many distress sales being carried on all over the country, plus mail order catalogues (in many instances showing inferior merchandise) and other inroads, we have decided to add to our motto "WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD."

Before making any jewellery purchases for this Christmas or any time, be sure to drop in and see us.

WHY?

(1) Because we intend staying in business for many years to come.
(2) We do honor all our guarantees and will be here to look after them.
(3) We guarantee satisfaction or money refunded.
(4) WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD on top quality merchandise which is the only kind we handle.

Yours Sincerely,

The Magic of the Theatre

ny person should object to the appearance of the Little Women" and the word "Art" in the same these objections would find us sympathetic, this may be nought but the result of our ignorcerning Louisa Alcott's famous book, or art, or vertheless, such is the magic of the legitimate even the most flimsy of vehicles can often convey its potential glory. It follows that the small e in attendance at the opening night of the le Theatre Guild's production of "Little Women" rdly a compliment to the standards of artistic ation in our city.

may be argued that the members of the Theatre are amateurs, and that the theatre, being by no the least demanding of the arts, is not likely to a amateurs the peaks attained only by the most of professionals and that only after years of study and work.

require perfection of every artist, though, would liquidate all but a handful. Given sincerity of some talent and a willingness to study and work, artistic endeavor has some value. Possessing these essentials in more than ample measure, it follows the members of the Theatre Guild here always a worthwhile contribution to make when they stage

Since this contribution is in a field in which ia is particularly poor and yet one which is capable of the noblest and worthiest of the arts, it follows get the oldest and worthiest of the arts, it follows ese rare occasions which live theatre is offered ought to be greeted with enthusiasm.

here are those who find it difficult to distinguish en the art of the stage and the art of the motion re. Though they have similarities, and though in their the motion picture to be a legitimate art, the ances are deep. The theatre demands participa- by the audience, requiring that man give full rein a most precious attribute, his imagination. Only can the theatre stage into a home, or a counter- or a battlefield, as the play demand. This imation depends for its inspiration on the art of players, whose acting must be of a higher standard that demanded of a screen star.

Some may say that "live" television has remedied ada's poverty in the realm of the theatre. This, plausible, yet controls another attribute of the imate stage. The TV set in the corner of the living a may, indeed, make demands on the imagination of viewer, but if the actors are successful in evoking required response they are unable to reward the ginative by acting style, by embedding him with the ne of actuality only made possible by the proximity eal, living persons, experiencing lively emotions.

Only in the legitimate theatre, with the magic of viewer's imagination blended with the magic of player's performance, can the play ever become can make-believe be transformed into reality.

To expect this miracle every time a play is performed to ask too much; to refrain from hoping for this racle whenever its appearance is a possibility is to seek little.

We hope the Belleville Theatre Guild has many more ters of miracles on hand for its next presentation.

Iron Curtain Lifting

We are sure that many readers of The Ontario ntelligencer have found the series of articles by John McConnell, publisher of the Montreal Star, on his recent trip to Russia both informative and thought provoking. One observation struck as particularly revealing.

"What is important is that, possibly for the first time in history, the Russians are genuinely interested in other people," writes Mr. McConnell. Then came the penetrating observation. "They lived in isolation for many centuries, for the Iron Curtain was no invention of Stalin's."

Some, remembering the days prior to the First War when Russians were to be found in every fashionable resort in Europe, may dispute this statement. Disputing it, though, just reveals how easy it is to deceive oneself. Could a few aristocrats ever truthfully claim to be representative of Russia? Surely not.

Today, with the increasing flow of foreign visitors across the border, the Iron Curtain is going up for the first time.

Canada's Amazing Western Frontier

by Harry M. Moore

GAS DRILLING
(Article 10)

As previously stated Wonowon is the "gas gathering centre" of a large area. Presumably little or no oil has been found there. All gas, and there are several companies supplying it from their wells with new wells coming into production daily, goes into a spur line which runs to the large refinery at Taylor which is the ultimate destination of the gas. From the gigantic western transmission's trunk line to southern British Columbia and the northern United States.

Locating the presence of gas is a proper counter or seismograph or both it but the beginning, though a most important one. Once the site for the drilling has been established and if there are no roads nearby, then roads have to be built, and that's where the big "cats," or caterpillars, come in to the assistance of the highway as put to use. Nothing will make roads from the mud as well to the highways are as direct as a compass would have it.

The tremendous power of these giant cats is shown here there is a forest through which a road must be cut. Sixty-foot high pencil pines are taken topple before them and are pushed aside, after which comes the bulldozers to make the ditches, to round up the debris and to fill in that which is later levelled and surfaced.

These are of course play a most prominent part long before the drilling rig has arrived. Over which the road must come the knock-down cabins for offices, engineers, drillers, living room, supplies, and the men to put them up in preparation for the arrival of the drilling rig and the men to operate them. Then these roads must come huge carriers with their loads of drilling machinery, casing which must go down as the drill goes.

15-ton Derrick

By the time the rig is set up and the 15-man crew, five men to each eight-hour shift, are on duty, mostly wage $500 take home pay, the trucks arrive. This mad which is volcanic clay wetted down is "cat" by the drivers, and they com- pooses. 1 — to prevent seepage; 2 — to lubricate the tires which the drill might make when coming into contact with the rock on its way into the depths of the earth. Prior to its use and experience were not uncommon, drilling rigs were held up, damaged, and men been killed or severely injured. It might be added that there is a right way to 125 feet in height and of course all speed.

Jack Hamilton, married?, who is but one of the many women who are husbands of the gas industry and who can handle a car as well as a man, was busily engaged this morning on the way to the scene of a drill in the north. The operator, a bulldozer never gave her a second glance as he continued to clear up what appeared to be fair road. She was to wheel from a rocky, cliff-like car over high furrows, let it down and out of ditches without any complaint. After many miles of fair driving there was a small stream to cross by bridge and in the clearing on the right, the several buildings and some distance away a drilling rig in action.

But a word about this is well retrieving section by section many heights of the "cats" and the drill which for some reason must be brought to the surface. Then the personal level are uncoupling these sections and lowering them, one by one, going up by a long hook on a man standing in the crew's next cone of the derrick, the several sections out of the way before sending the bore into the earth.

This was precision work at top speed. Men used to their jobs that these men were aware that they had visitors. Generally there was a tendency to taking time out for anything. But these men, as above stated, they work eight-hour shifts, but better still for those shifts has been for the big executives.

Of course "dry" wells occur frequently and that after boring down are usually 7,00 feet, but that is the way it is. After all, like everything else, there are limitations.

SECOND CREW TAKES OVER

Once gas has been detected the action of the drill slows down, then the well is capped until another crew arrives to lay a pipeline to the next drilling site, a low building filled with many gages, among them the pressure gauges which control the flow of gas into the line which runs from one station to the other on its way to the gathering centre. Here each well station will be found a reservoir of water to be used in case of fire which might be caused by lightning or some wanderer's carelessness in the area.

Of course there are among the drillers men who are specialists in some certain line. There is nephew Donnie, and Donnie for the most part at High Prairie many miles south, but he often brought south in a hurry to retrieve a drill that has been "lost" in the bottom of a well. It would appear that Donnie has some sort of sixth sense which tells him where to go it out in a hurry. Then, too, among his other duties is that of moving rigs from one site to another.

Before bidding the Wonowon section goodbye until next time it might be worth while mentioning that in a cold section of Canada, at least in June, although it is not within the Arctic Circle (Belleville is Latitude 46), a fine recreation is known as the Ices provinces, James Bay and Labrador. But better still, and Belleville is the anglers, those who go north to Algonquin Park in search of trout, there are no black flies, and for mosquitoes there is a repellent which, while it apparently just as hungry as their larger cousins in Ontario.

Potemkin's Villages

The Times of London

"Aha, Potemkin's villages" is the cry which will recall the old story of the cardboard huts and granaries, built in 1787 to flatter and deceive Catherine the Great when reading of what happened in Vladivostok this week. A woman told Mr. Khrushchev that she was ashamed to see him and hoped he would come more often, because "everywhere, before, and in many other things have been rushed into the town simply for the visit. There you are, those Russians will never change. They have to show off and to astonish tourists by the nose, of course, and now they are carrying on the same game of spending their own leaders.

Before going any further, however, it is just as well to remember that the Potemkin legend is not accurately interpreted. Most of the villages which Catherine saw, with the exception of the first, the golden gallery were real villages, built on the Russian model described, in the north Russia and newly embellished with fresh paint and the traditional architectures. The Vladivostok area has in its turn been full of Russian peasants and is marked for further industrial expansion.

Nor were there only a few thousands of miles from Moscow, and, as a general rule, round the ports, Russians become fewer, poorer and less varied as the distance increases from the great cultured areas. It is one of the marvels which Mr. Khrushchev has had to overcome when giving the separate regions more power to develop, produce and buy for themselves.

Possibly the Vladivostok buildings were rushed by putting on a special show, to demonstrate to the leader how nicely he had planned. Probably they were intended to prove their own zeal rather than for organization—rather like battalion officers who make sure, before the general arrives, that all the men have roast beef for dinner. It was all very wrong. The people were not amused. But it is the kind of misunderstanding of the kind which, though not unknown in the past, seems to happen most often under Mr. Khrushchev. The woman did not hesitate to tell him to his face what had happened. And he promptly resolved on the reforms. It is a wonder that he did not remind them of the story of the emperor and the mischief of blinkering a leader — "The Czar cannot see for the hedge."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

November 28th, 1929

The Soviet government today informed Finland it considered itself freed of the provisions of its non-aggression pact with Finland concluded in September, 1928. The Soviet note charged that Finland has "systematically violated" the provisions of the pact. The Soviet newspaper Red Star published an order of the commandant of the Leningrad military district that in case of "repeated provocation" by Finnish troops Soviet soldiers were "to answer with fire until these troops have created the incident are exterminated".

It is suggested that the nickel deposits in the Petsamo Finland may provide a clue to German exploration in the Russian territory on the Northern Republic. Recent reports indicate that Russia cannot meet the present demands for minerals from its own territory. Russia produces from developed mines does not greatly exceed domestic requirements, but Finland has nickel, zinc, lead, iron and cobalt. Another source of supply has recently been lost to Germany. The Krupp armament firm until August took the entire output of the Lakris nickel mine in Greece. That mine has now come under Italian control, Canada is the greatest world producer of nickel but Germany cannot get the metal from the Dominion.

"The Admiralty told in a vivid communique how the Hawaiipiloted formerly a mail liner in the Orient service, was overtaken off the southern coast of Ireland November 23rd, set afire and literally torn to pieces by the guns of the pocket battleship Deutchland and two unidentified destroyers. The "Hawaiipindi replied with all four starboard six-inch guns until the report, "but at the distance of 18,000 yards the battleship" had the margin of power".

The municipal elections will take place on Monday, December 2nd. There are approximately 4,000 voters in this city, the majority of whom are ratepayers. No doubt a large vote will be polled, as there is a large list of candidates for the offices of aldermen. Last year the total vote recorded in the mayoralty contest was 3,039 which was less than five per cent of the available vote. There are this year. The contest for the twelve aldermanic seats is elected. President — Lieutenant-Col. E. D. O'Flynn; vice president — Dr. J. J. Robertson; secretary-treasurer — R. B. Lucas; manager of hockey team — W. To Your Good Health

PLASTIC SURGEONS PROUD OF THEIR WORKMANSHIP

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to have plastic surgery on my face. All I want is my lips made smaller.—A.I."

There have been vast advances in plastic surgery in recent years, and a great deal can be done to correct flaws which mar the appearance.

I decline to say, offhand, whether your problem is one that can be handled by surgery or not, but I will tell you how to find the answer.

Go to a plastic surgeon (ask your own regular physician to refer you, or ask the aid of the hospital you go to). Plastic surgeons, as you might expect, are very proud of their workmanship, and do not, for their own sake as well as yours, want to tackle a task that does not promise reasonable assurance of success.

If the surgeon can help, he'll say so. If he can't help you, or if he can only help you to an improvement, he will tell you that, too.

In cases of the latter sort, judicious use of powder, coupled with a discreet touch of lipstick on the lips, will often do a great deal to foster the illusion of thinner lips.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is meant by the terms 'incompetent abortion' and 'therapeutic abortion'? I have taken them meaning to be something bad, and 'right or wrong'.—Mrs. R. D."

From the wording of your letter, I believe you are referring to when you shouldn't. An "abortion" is the loss of the fetus, or embryo, in the first three months of pregnancy.

This can, and does, occur from natural causes at times — just as a miscarriage occurs through no fault of anyone.

"Threatened abortion" is suspected if the pregnant woman starts to show blood. Proper treatment may avert the loss, and the result is a normal birth later.

An "incomplete abortion" is one in which the fetus is lost but remnants of tissue remain in the uterus causing continued bleeding and drainage. Naturally it should be corrected medically.

Your reference to "something bad" means, I suspect, that you are confusing the word "abortion" with the type of abortion caused by criminal and unscrupulous person with the sole purpose of ending the baby's life.

The fact that natural abortion takes place through illness or unforseen cause, has absolutely nothing to do with "criminal abortion," which is another matter.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My father-in-law worries whenever he sees me drinking any liquid full of ice cubes, whether tea or ice, soda, or tea. My doctor says this is not dangerous. — Mrs. H. M. B."

Does your father-in-law disapprove of ice cubes, too? I have the use of cold drinks, or frozen confections of any sort, is in my opinion purely a matter of tolerance. Very cold fluids cause pain in the throat or or gullet — which is nature's way of saying, "That's enough!"

As children, you weren't most aware of the cold, painful feeling "at the back of the nose" when we ate ice cream too fast? So we slowed down.

Ice cube in the mouth can cause numbness unless you keep moving it around.

If the cold doesn't bother you, don't worry about it. After all, having ice cubes in your tea, or whatever, keeps the beverage cool, but by the time you swallow any fluid, it is well above the freezing point. I'm not aware of any actual harm resulting from iced drinks.

Africa to Use Aussie Plan

Milwaukee Journal

An organization was just been formed in England to provide fly-by doctor service in part of Africa, according to the London Times of London. It would be patterned somewhat after a type of service started 30 years ago for families in the "outback" of Australia.

The service would be provided at first in the great native areas of Nigeria, Kenya and Tanganyika. It might be extended to other parts later.

The idea would be to have a fully trained and good pilot at disposal of a doctor who would supervise medical care for some native villages. He would direct routine care through two-way radio communication with persons trained in first aid and handling medicines in each village. He would come quickly by plane in cases where he was required.

It is another way in which man's marvelous machines — such as the plane and the radio — can be used to enlarge his ability to aid his fellow man, and even to help the backward regions of our world.

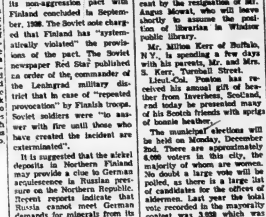
CHRISTIAN LIBERTY

We hear a great deal these days about Christian liberty. Of course, believers have been hearing about Christian liberty throughout the centuries. The Bible lays great emphasis on liberty. What is this Christian liberty?

Well, it is not precisely the same thing as political liberty. The time has passed in our own country when people try to interfere with the religious beliefs and customs of their fellow men. So far as worship is concerned, there is no problem of liberty.

But Christian liberty is much more than the right to worship as one wishes. Christian liberty is that inner recognition of the spirit whereby we are freed from ourselves, from our sins, and made to walk upon the heights of a new gladness.

Sin is bondage, and the sinner is in bondage to his sin. When faith lays hold on a man, he really born again. He gets a new confidence. He lays hold on a new outlook of life. A new happiness comes into his heart. He is free.



The Bible describes this freedom by saying that the Lord is the spirit and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. Through the grace of God and Christ and the Holy Spirit are released from the power of sin's life, he experiences a great release from himself and from the bondage of sin.

This is Christian liberty. It is as much a matter of inner life as external matter. There is no spiritual privilege greater than this.

WHAT THE RICH MAN SAYS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Go ask of any millionaire
What joy his money brings;
Ask him to tell if anywhere
The rebin's rewster sings.
Because he has a store of gold,
Or those get the silver,
Or that his land is growing
Or cattle,
Or that he thrives by
Or that he has
Or that he has

He'll say contentment's not in gold
Nor in the power to buy,
For anything that's bought and sold
Can never satisfy.

He'll tell you that much money brings
With it the curse of lust,
The heartache and the sorrowings
Of cynical distrust;
He'll say, in spite of all it does,
He never was so glad
As when men smiled for what he was,
Instead of what he had.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MOVING DRAMAS

"All the world's a stage", said Shakespeare. He could have gone further and said that every man is a drama in himself.

We are not merely actors on this world's stage; we are also accomplished playwrights. Today we write, act and manage some noble comedy — tomorrow a tragedy, or maybe a farce.

We move our stage as we move. Our audiences are those we meet, feel or hear us.

Some of us get applause for what we produce; some of us do not. But if we are true artists, our only concern shall be that we let the secret of the divine acquit ourselves as born thoroughbreds. We shall not preach our efforts before the world to be judged upon their merits — to live and die at last.

Moving dramas are we. Today we may be playing to crowded and empty seats before us. But game to the core. Resourceful. Steady in nerve. Strong in heart. Immovable in convictions.

Let Time and Heaven look after the receipts at the box office.

THE PACKSACK

Jacques Cartier tells us that the Indians he found on the present site of the St. Lawrence wore robes of beaver slung around them like Roman togas. He remarked that they did not have any underwear, a fact that makes you shiver when you consider the Quebec climate in winter. But when you look at the pictures of the past, seems to happen most often under Mr. Khrushchev. The woman did not hesitate to tell him to his face what had happened. And he promptly resolved on the reforms. It is a wonder that he did not remind them of the story of the emperor and the mischief of blinkering a leader — "The Czar cannot see for the hedge."

around the Mediterranean, both in the European and African side, now as in Caesar's time, all men wear a sort of nightshirt, if that. The Arab still gives you the impression of being almost in your nightshirts. But in winter, he's got his pants on again.

Art has a lot to account for. Greeks gradually developed the sculpture a man or woman in the nude. Next to that, they wore a skin jerkin and knitted pants. But even primitive man, when he peeled the hide off a nice warm furry animal, knew well enough to employ the fur all over himself, as the animals did. Man's fashion's first canon is comfort.

Stories of Famous Hymns

HORACE B. POWELL

AWAKE, MY SOUL TO SOUND HIS PRAISE

Awake, my soul to sound His praise,
Awake, my harp to sing;
Join, all my powers the song to raise,
And morning incense bring.

Among the people of His care
And through the nations round,
Glad songs of praise will I prepare
And there His name resound.

Be Thou exalted, I my God
Above the starry Frame;
Diffuse Thy heavenly grace abroad,
And teach the world Thy name.

So shall Thy chosen song rejoice,
And throng Thy courts above;
While sinners hear Thy pardoning voice,
And taste redeeming love.

Hymn lovers who know the Bibles will not have to be told that when they sing Joel Barlow's "Awake, My Soul, To Sound His Praise", they are singing the one hundred and eighth Psalm.

It was Dr. Isaac Watts, the English hymnist, who first put the Psalms of David into verse, and the collection of "Psalms which Mr. Barlow published in America in 1786 and in several subsequent editions was put together in an attempt to correct and enlarge Dr. Watts' endeavour, and to adapt the English version of the Psalms to "American thought and circumstances".

Mr. Barlow was a prominent author and politician during the stirring period of the American Revolution and in the years that followed. He was born in Redding, Connecticut in 1754, was graduated from Yale University in 1778, and died abroad — in 1812.

preacher in Chicago a generation ago, told of wrestling with a problem until long past midnight. About 2 A.M. he thought he heard a divine voice say to him: "Quayle, you go to bed. I'll sit up the rest of the night." That fancy of a saintly old mystic, but the experience has scriptural support, for the Psalmist asserts, "He giveth his beloved sleep."

Whether awake or asleep we are in the hands of "One able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us." Many of us can testify that more than once we have gone on to eternal life."

to bed with baffling problems; then, after committing ourselves to God's keeping, we have awakened to find light on our perplexing questions.

When we have been looking long and intently at some close work on our desk or in our yard, then turn to look out the window, how long view seems our eyes. This common experience of relaxing and what the Psalmist must have in mind when he said: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord who made heaven and earth."

LOOK UP TO GOD

When we look up to God, we see more than the day before us. Consider this day. It began at midnight. We cannot seize or hold time. With all our efforts to crowd every day and night with thrills, we have so largely lost the power to realize the present. It is because the pace is so swift that we do not enjoy the scenery along the way? A woman who had crossed the Atlantic many times said to the captain of a great liner, "It must be very monotonous for you." He replied, "I never enjoy the scenery every voyage I make." A young man told a friend of mine that he drove from New York to Richmond, Va., in six hours. "What did you see?" asked my friend. "A trained bear at a motel stop — and that bear sure could do tricks."-

Have we cheat ourselves by wasting time on little things when God's world offers such possibilities of good living. We need God's largeness of outlook to lift us from our littleness and shame us out of our selfishness.

God has so arranged this world that the best things come to those who give to life rather than to those who demand from it. Hence the wisdom of the ancient prayer: "Teach us, O Lord, not to seek so much to be consoled as to console; not so much to be understood as to understand; not so much to be loved as to love. Show us that it is by giving that we receive, in self-forgetting that we find, and in dying that we awake

A Lift for Living

Solace of Prayer Is in Giving

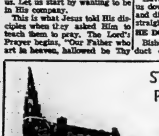
By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Dr. Charles C. Merrill told of a family incident back in the Spanish-American war. A mother learned that her husband was soon to return home from the front. She wondered what her little son's reaction would be. When she told the boy, he exclaimed, "I wonder what he'll bring me."

The lad's remark made Dr. Merrill think by contrast of Dwight L. Moody's little son. One day the great evangelist heard a knock at the door of his study. Being busy, he called rather brusquely, 'What do you want?' His son replied: "I don't want anything, Daddy. I'm just like to be with you." Those words warmed Moody's heart.

When we pray, let us not begin by asking what God will bring us. Let us start by wanting to be in His company.

This is what Jesus told His disciples when they asked Him to teach them to pray. The Lord's Prayer begins, "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name." Only as our minds and hearts look up to God can we clearly see what we need and how sensitively to receive His help.



Do our world problems seem so dark that we have grown tired looking at them? The charges and counter-charges of the Cold War, the releases of nuclear energy which could conceivably enable the human race to commit suicide — do we feel they are too much for us?

These seem very much like things which have happened before. The Psalmist said: "The earth and the kingdoms were moved; he uttered his voice, the earth melted." Then the Psalmist interprets God as saying, "Be still and know that I am God."

Have our daily burdens gotten us down? Are we so bothered and distracted that we can't see straight?

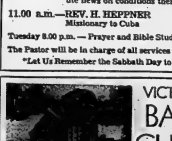
THE NEW AND DANGEROUS HERESIES OF "LIFE AND DEATH"



The Committee on Christian Faith, of the United Church of Canada has recently published a booklet entitled "Life and Death". The booklet, which is to be circulated in congregations it contains, "may seem new and even dangerous to some people. We admit that the impression is there."

Since the book has been presented "for study", we feel obliged to offer a few criticisms in comparison with the teachings of the Bible, as has been our practice immediately since Luther, Calvin and Wesley. Each Sunday Evening at 7.30 p.m. in the Calvary Temple Community Centre, Dundas and Bright Streets, the pastor of the Parkdale Baptist Church, will be speaking on subjects suggested by the book and which in many instances are being studied in all United Church groups who seek to avail themselves of this opportunity to study this book. The dates of the sermons will be as follows:

Nov. 30—Heresy No. 2. Baptism saves.
Dec. 6—Heresy No. 3. Salvation is not personal.
Dec. 13—Heresy No. 4. The Bible is unreliable.

Africa' Topic At Jubilee Auxiliary

The November meeting of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church was held in the Sunday School auditorium.

Following a delicious supper, served by Mrs. Chalcough, Mrs. T. & T dealt briefly with some of the work of the H.L.G., the Provin- cial Labor Organization, and intended to mention how it all began with a match. In the beginning most of the inspectors' affairs of men employed were in- different to the conditions. Then the "In the begin- ning" was the Lucifer match. The "Scripture" was Matthew 25: 1-13 and Corinthians. Mrs. Alger led in prayer.

Mrs. Joy Nicholls, supply sec- tary, reported that 25 quilts for Korea were still being collected.

Anna Finlayson Of Vancouver Miss Grey Cup Girl

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A statuesque Vancouver girl, Anna Finlayson, is Miss Grey Cup for 1929.

The 19-year-old British Columbia Lions became the seventh western winner in nine years. The 1927 winner was also a Miss B.C. Lions. Last year's winner was from Montreal.

Miss Finlayson was to attend her first Grey Cup game today. She watched it only by radio—and on television.

Miss Grey Cup, who is tall—five feet, nine inches, and shapely—36-26-36, was out over three contenders.

It was a fifth straight win for Anna when she took the crown at a pre-game dance. She was chosen by a committee of the Vancouver, then went on to be- come Miss Vancouver. Later she became Miss Pacific National Exhibition. This title automati- cally made her a contestant for the Miss B.C. Lions title and the Miss Canada contest scheduled for next year.

She has no steady beau and has never dated a football player. But she does know the type she wants to date.

"Tall, has to have character. I don't care if he's short or tall or good looking as long as he has character."

When she gets back to Van- couver she plans to get a driver's licence so that she can drive her prize, a red sports car.

Jane Ann Cooper, 18-year-old Miss Hamilton Tiger - Cat, was runnerup. A red-head, she hopes for a career in the emotional movies.

Third was Ann Schnell, 20- year-old University of Saskatche- wan student whose home town is Tisdale. She hopes to become a school teacher.

V.O.N. Gives Report of Work, Plans Activities

The Board of the Victorian Order of Nurses held its month- ly meeting at the Y.M.C.A., No- vember 19th at 3 o'clock.

The annual dinner meeting will be held in January and several possible speakers were discussed — Mrs. Ralph Col- lier, Mrs. Lawlor, Mrs. Max Ford and Dr. Walter Herbert.

Miss B. Corbett, the secretary, read the minutes of the pre- vious meeting, and the finan- cial report. Miss Gilpin presented his report.

Mrs. H. Luik reported from the finance committee. The 1953 car needs to be repaired and it was felt that a smaller car would be advantageous. After some discussion it was moved to purchase a com- pact car. Mr. Luik recommend- ed that snow tires be purchased for the other car and it was passed.

Miss Dorothy Connor report- ed on the nursing activities for the month of October. A total of 79 patients received care this month. A total of 331 home visits were made. Two half days were spent in Consoli- Corbyville School and four half days were spent assisting the Belleville Department of Health at the Child Health Confer- ences at the Kiwanis Centre.

A special meeting was held on Tuesday evening, for the nursing service for the South Thurlow Schools. Miss Seaman, Miss Lowery, two members of the School Board, Miss Corbett, and Miss Connor of the Board attended. They require a nurse at the school two half days a month. Facilities are adequate at the school for the nurse to carry out her duties. They will provide the equip- ment and space. An agreement has been sent to the clerk- treasurer of the Township of Thurlow and their approval is pending. It was felt that V.O.N. should review the agreement with the Cannifton-Corbyville School.

The December meeting will be held the 16th of that month.

Centre St. W.A. Sponsors Fine Bazaar, Tea

The ladies W.A. of Centre St. United Church held their Christ- mas bazaar and tea in the church school room on Wednesday eve- ning. It was a most successful event in spite of the counter attrac- tions. It presented a Christmassy atmosphere with its red and green streamers and sprays of evergreen here and there and delectable odors which added greatly to the theme.

The president, Mrs Longhurst assisted by Mrs. Vanderwater, welcomed the guests at the door, the bazaar was officially opened by Mrs. W. E. Dower, who thank- ed all the W.A. members for their time and work spent on this event.

Presiding at the silver ser- vices were Mrs. E. Simpson, Mrs. W. E. G. Dower, Mrs. L. Hall, Mrs. M. Vanderwater. The motif for the tea table and the lit- tle tables was the Christmas tree.

The long table, with its lace cloth and its centre piece a mir- ror, Christmas tree with gold and silver bells, flanked with red candles in silver candlesticks, a pretty rubitelle picture while the little tables had their own white clothes and centred by green candles in Candy Cane holders nestling on a tiny bough.

Several booths were prettily adorned for the occasion. The country store convened by Mrs. S. Vos and Mrs. Jones and assistants, Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Brady. They were pies, cakes, cookies, candy, home cooked meats, made buns and preserves.

The candy table was a great success, the assortment of the sweets conveyed by Mrs. W. Vanderhoven assisted by Mrs. L. Collins.

The apron table and children's booth, the knitted goods, pleated skirts, granny gowns, boys shirts and cabaret aprons were displayed. The convener was Mrs. McLeod.

A booth of Christmas cards with Mrs. Ferguson convenership of Mrs. F. Stapley had cards and paper in assortment, bright and at rea- sonable prices.

The touch and take and plant booth was busy with Mrs. A. Knott Sr. as convener. Those who served included Mrs. Bradden, B. Stapley, R. Newman, G. Mor- ray, R. Shamis and Mr. Hudgins.

Perhaps the little sand- wiches cookies were: Mrs. Lind- say, Mrs. Hawley, Mrs. Hall, Miss Towner made the tea for the evening.

The tea room convener was Mrs. Pat Schamerhorn and the assistants convener, Mrs. Haw- ley.

Mrs. G. Wood had charge of the tickets at the door.

Thanks of appreciation are be- ing sent to all who made this tea and bazaar such a delightful event.

To Gain the World and Lose a Soul

By ALMA MASON

(1st Article in Series)

If we have happy memories of childhood (let us hope we all possess some), do they not resound on the keyboard of security in home?

The small child, when he takes his first uncertain steps, must look to his parents in their in his baby ventures. He seeks their praise when he uses his clubby fingers to arrange his blocks. He creates their gratification when he brings them offerings of ragged little bouquets of dandelions and Queen Anne's Lace. He of- ten battles with his brothers and sisters to win a place in the sunshine of their love. Later on, he bursts in the door from school, desper- ately anxious to have his progress in the classroom as he calls "Mom, where are you?"

The words, "Mom, where are you?" strike a minor chord today in thousands of homes, for a good many Moms are conspicuously ab- sent a good deal of the time from the home port.

Mom and Dad are the lighthouses on the shore of home for small craft tossed on a dark sea of insecurity. Their continual absence from the beacon light of home will set a childish boat early adrift into unsafe waters of doubt and fear.

For many reasons today, real and unreal, abstract and tangible, hosts of today's mothers are employed outside the environment of the home. In many cases, particularly where the husband cannot find employment, it is abso- lutely necessary for the mother to become the sole bread earner and for father to take charge of the home and the children. In many other cases, absence of the mother from home, is due to an expanding and deadly craving for more and more material comforts and luxur- ies. True, she shares these things with her husband and children. Will these extra com- forts compensate her for the loss of the pre- cious hours she might have spent with her growing family?

If all our working mothers would try to honestly and objectively balance the heart and soul of a neglected child against the new shoes and the new toy purchased for him.

Will we women never understand that there is no adequate and proper substitute for a mother's care! Our grandmothers realized fully that the homes they established, even though they were log cabins with God's good earth for floors, were the strong rocks that steadied their young in purpose, thought and deed.

Perhaps it would help to glorify the hearth of home if we worked certain words from the Bible into old fashioned samplers to hang on the walls of our homes. We all need to read over and over again such scintillating words as these, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the world and lose his own soul?" We should dwell more specifically perhaps on the thought that it is even more terrible to gain the whole world and lose the soul of one's own child.

Why will we not believe in God's promises that if we put first things first—love of God— unity of family—benedictions and manna kind- ness—we need not fear for the future as re- gards our material needs?

We once lived next door to a family of missionaries. The mother and father had re- turned to Canada after long years of service in India to found a small church. They were without funds as the world thinks of funds. They were rich in faith, secure in their shared love for each other, their children and their God. They knew and had been shown that if they put the things of the spirit first, the Heav- enly Father would keep His promises to supply all material needs. They lived from day to day, working at their new project, teaching their children love and obedience to God and parents. As we watched them live their great faith, daily miracles accorded them unfolded before our eyes.

They in glorious reality their children have risen up and called them blessed.

Better our children know the pangs of star- vation, better they starve a bit with us in body, yet have us at the helm; better they be deprived of modern luxuries, but bask in the warmth and comfort of protected companionship.

The home is not only personal. We will never hold the gates of our nation's integrity against the battering ram of athletic Communi- stic godless we seek first—in our homes— through our children—the Kingdom of God.

What will you trade for the smile of your child

What will you give if you must
Will your ralmost of silk and your soft velvet cloak
Pay for his faith and his trust?
What will you buy for the heart of your boy?

For his soft loving hand in your hand? The years that you spent seeking pleasure and soil
Have placed his poor feet on a strand,
Where all of your gold cannot buy back his soul;
Where your silver, like his lonely years,
Will drop in a vessel heaped high with his woe
And filled with your pitiful tears.

Convenience and Economy Keys To Big Season at Miami Beach

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Miami Beach, Fla. — So far, the haste axiom has not clamped its golden grip on the Gold Coast. The thermometer by Hertz have not yet been replaced by the Cadillacs by the hundred on Col- lins Avenue, nor is it necessary at the point to send the head- waiter's daughter through college in return for a ringside table at a night club. Only the ghosts of last season's money haunt the opulent palaces, and mullin Cab- bies howard screaming through the gallery Hampton Court.

But the voice of the prophet is heard in the land as boisterous- ly predicted and the season has exercised by the greatest co- alaught of dollar-staining high- priests in this lush resort's gilt- tering history.

In preparation for them, some of tourism's most fertile brains have been employed in devising fair beyond the imaginations of more pedestrian operators.

Meet the competition beck- oning tourists from far away places, no longer is it enough to the jet age, a new emphasis is being placed on conveniences and economy in the fields where they were most needed — food and entertainment.

Once a daily examination of the budget was necessary to determine where you could af- ford to eat and whether you could take in a night club show.

The former has been taken slightly choppy cigar, but the latter is a much from Flor- ida is easily the most exciting country in the United States, visibly in all of Latin America, Cosmopolitan Miami Beach, glamour of New York, the grass of Paris, the dignity of Rome and the charm of Old Seville.

Miami Beach is a great place to go and watch a few kind words.

Shaped, symbolically, like a slightly droopy cigar, the resort is linked to a mere 5-mile mainland by a series of causeways. Thus each islet is separated from its neighbors by a whole- some stretch of sparkling blue water, yet is only minutes away from the mainland.

Each islet is developed in its own personality and is a separate entity.

The former has been taken over by the university of the American plain of all the arts and sciences, exclusive research. And the latter is being climaxed by a whole- sale transfer of night club enter- tainment to theatres where guests will be admitted free. Already a smaller scale last year this plan proved itself admirably.

BIG NAME ACTS

Instead of clipping the limited number of people who can crowd into a night club, the theatres will fully drink up the minimum only necessary for the big name acts. Hotels have banded together to present big name acts to their guests in large numbers. Thus speed, the cost to hotelmen is small enough to spread the name of increased business.

Up the street apiece in Holly- wood. The Diplomat, making the most of its position about from the Hollywood Country Club and ding for a more highbrow clien- tele, entertainments are to be chubs concerts, stock productions and cultural lectures under the auspices of the Florida Festival of Arts.

Even the challenge of Florida's unpredictable but nonetheless ex- pensive winter weather is being met. The American becomes the first hotel in what will undoubted- ly be a long line of hotels to en- closed swimming pool. It is to be

COCKTAILS AND COURTESY

The festivities surrounding Christmas and the New Year are close upon us. From now until after the first of the year, parties and more parties will be the order of the day.

Bearing this in mind, I was interested when I stumbled on a very pertinent article written a long time ago by Nina Wilcox Putnam, the famous novelist. She covers a problem that is very apparent during this season of the year. She asks this question: "Did you ever see a photograph of yourself taken at a party when you were drinking?"

Mrs. Putnam went on to tell about a function she attended — not a drunken affair by any means, just the usual cocktail gathering. Later on she saw some photographs taken at the party and was amazed a and humiliated to see how indicrous she looked. The picture showed her than men and women never look or act their best when drinking. To put it bluntly, those who drink can make themselves ridiculous and not know it, unless they make every effort to realize their limitations.

This brings up the question as to just what constitutes intoxication in social drinking. It is rather elusive, and what is something that the individual has to determine for himself. So, if you drink, determine what is your limit, ate for you and act accordingly.

Please don't misunderstand me! far be it from me to presume to give a lecture on the socalled "evils of drink". I am simply trying to make the point that overindulgence is not good taste, anywhere or any time. The person who prides himself on overindulge in the homes of others is showing an utter lack of consideration for the rights of guests, and his actions are a definite affront to his host.

Courtesy works both ways in this instance, for the host and the hostess have as much of an obligation to fulfill as their guests. Mother, you will drink lightly or not at all, at their own party. They will never be guilty of the unpardonable rudeness of urging a drink upon someone who does not want it. The thoughtful host will offer non-alcoholic drinks — such as soft drinks, fruit or vegetable juices — on the same tray on which cocktails are passed, so as that the guest may make his own choice without fear of comment.

There is the self-confessed person who, because of social inexperience, feels that he or she must see his popularity if he refuses to imbibe. This is the wrong attitude to assume. There is no reason why a person should feel prudish in refusing a drink. Very often there are good reasons why he should, such as dietary allergies, personal convictions. Whether a person does or does not, drink is his own affair. It is never necessary to give an excuse for refusing. Your "thank you, no" can be expressed with an impartiality that implies no criticism of those who do not do as you do.

So, during the coming holiday festivities, show consideration to the other fellow by making certain that you do not offend by going beyond the limitations of your moderation point!

Question: I recently attended my first formal luncheon. When the dessert plate arrived, there was a spoon and a funny-looking fork on it. The dessert was ice cream, and I was at a loss to know what to do with the fork. I noticed several of the other guests using them to eat the ice cream. I may be dumb, but I wanted to be sure to know what to do if I meet such a situation again. — Miss L.E.B.

Answer: The funny-looking fork to which you refer is an ice cream fork and often is provided along with the spoon. You may choose either implement you prefer. Both may be used, as in the case of very hard ice cream.

Queen of English Silversmiths

"If the past three thousand years do not lie in your survey, for you the darkness never clears; you must live from day to day."—Goethe (Thomas Mem: Last Essays.)

A good quarter of a century before Belleville was founded, a girl was being discussed with a woman, who for thirty of her fifty years of life was the mother (of six) and assistant her silversmith husband in his work. He, a dying consumptive, told her: "As you know, Hester, a silversmith's tools are his most precious possessions; there is having another single silver shoot, can create in one piece, a tea or coffee pot, a spoon or salt cellar, along with the best of silversmiths. Here is my further confidence in you. The House of Bateman will flourish under your hands."

Here was a fetish truly justified. For after John Bateman's death in 1760, so greatly sought was the silver of the House of Bateman, that roughly speaking, from 1770 to 1810, it was found in most homes of any pretension whatever, as well as in the Courts of George Companies, city halls and in many churches throughout England and Wales. Also to Hester Bateman belongs a volume entitled Hester Bateman: Queen of English Silversmiths (1858), is just off the presses, written by Mr. David S. Shure of the Antique Silver Vaults, 53-54 Chancery Lane, London. Its author is a recognized collection may be seen.

While artists such as painters and writers often become famous after death, this is not always the case with silversmiths. points out Mr. Shure, for his reputation is the creation of the possibility of his acquiring his work, a lot of raw material."

This beautiful volume happened our way because of a visit to the Belleville Public Library here by a well-known Belleville family lining on Bleecker Ave. They toured Europe after attending the medal convention at Edinburgh. "But one of the highlights for us was the Silver Jubilee Year, when our children, John and Marilyn, fell in love with Hester Bateman's silver.

Somehow for me it was a special thrill. For though we share the same surname we can claim no relationship, as my initials, H.B., on the spoons are the same as mine," says Helen, wife of Dr. J. H. Bateman, Bleecker Avenue.

From the biographical pages followed by eighty-six beautiful illustrations of Hester's work which staggers the eye as well as the imagination, is gleaned many enlightening facts about the life of this creative and gifted woman. "But one of the revealed upon feminine creativeness. Here was a fortunate blend of talent and "the times." Tea and tea drinking had just ushered in a whole new social institution and its demands "fostered the prosperity of the silversmiths." We get some idea of the supreme skill of this artist who worked in a day of "hand work" when one must "feel" the silver before it was possible to create with a mere mallet and hammer such lovely exquisite silver objects. The pages turn, and we see tea and coffee pots, sugar bowls and cream jugs, kettles, spoons, sugar tongs, cake baskets, a twelve-sided cruet stand with eight bottles, tankards, a bakstand, wine labels, an epergne, a pair of silver gauntlets for a lady-in-waiting to the queen, snuff boxes, porringers saucebouts, coasters for wine bottles, tea caddies with lock and key, for tea was as valuable as the contained in that is evident.

We learn that Hester Bateman made the tiny bead trim and edge above the thread line and

QUESTION:

Would you kindly print your recipe for Salisbury Steak. I have eaten this tasty dish several times while dining out, but my own don't seem to. I haven't got the recipe . . . Mrs. Paul D.

ANSWER:

The shape of Salisbury Steak is different in some communities. Shape them in individual oval cakes. That is what you are accustomed to and bake a shorter time.

SALISBURY STEAK:

1 1-2 lbs. ground beef, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, pepper to taste, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1 egg beaten, melted butter.

Have sirewing beef ground once. Combine all ingredients except butter, mixing thoroughly but lightly. On a buttered shallow baking pan, mould the mixture into the shape of an oval long, oval or rectangle to fit plate, making it about 1 1-4 thick and pushing edges up so they will be shaped like a steak. Brush top and sides with melted butter and place in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. Bake 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. to finish cooking, which will take about 25 minutes longer. Brush with butter once or twice during baking. Slide carefully onto hot platter, using pancake turner. Serve with sauteed mushrooms, French-fried onions, or tomato sauce, or with more melted butter.

QUESTION:

. . . On Sunday, we must prepare a simple luncheon for one hundred men of our parish, to be served directly after church services which begin at 11:30 a.m. Our hall is our church and the kitchen is directly next to the altar so we won't be able to make much clatter. We hope to have tables set and start to serve by at least 1:00 o'clock . . . We do not have refrigeration. We have a gas stove with two ovens and two large roasting pans about 24 x 28 x 2 1-2" . . . Mrs. Blanche F.

Can you give us a recipe for a meat loaf for 100 and the cooking time for that many baked potatoes? We have to make too much noise and we had scalloped just last week)? . . . Mrs. Blanche F.

ANSWER:

I was glad to see you have 2 ovens. Could one be devoted to the potatoes — for they require a higher temperature than the meat loaves. The higher the temperature the better. Scrub potatoes well, trim out any blemishes, dip in melted margarine or shortening and bake in pans of 45 or 500 deg. Fahr. for 45 to 50 minutes. Will the other oven accommodate 2 of your large roasting pans, one above the other?

MEAT LOAF:

(Serves 100 — size of serving 4 ounces). 25 lbs. ground stewing beef 1 lbs. onions, finely chopped, 5 oz. fat, 2 cups (approx. 12) eggs, 3 lbs. bread crumbs, 1 quart beef stock or tomato juice, 5 oz. salt, 1 tablespoon pepper, 1-2 cup Worcestershire Sauce.

Add chopped onions to melted fat. Saute 10 minutes or until clear. Add to meat. Add remaining ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Shape into loaves. Place in greased pans. Bake at 350 Deg. Fahr. approximately 1 1-2 to 2 hours.

NOTE:

More beef stock or water or tomato juice may be added if you would like a softer meat loaf.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies.

Olga G. — His parents are biased.

Howard G. — They just don't see her point of view.

Olga G. — I was married several months ago to a man of a different faith from mine. Both sets of parents objected at first, but they finally accepted things when they saw we were determined to marry.

My husband shows no interest at all in knowing about my faith, but I am greatly interested in his. I have always felt that basically we all worship one God and there's little difference between us. I want to understand more about his faith different from mine.

When I question my husband about this, he tells me he has never interested in things of this sort or he gives me answers that just don't jibe. His parents' answers are also confusing and vague. Recently when I attempted to discuss these things with them they claim as a result I am treading on forbidden ground. I feel that they are biased and not open to fair and reasonable discussion.

Howard G. — I suppose it's a matter of just what importance is much interested in religion. That is why I thought I could marry out of my faith without religion entering the picture. Instead, it seems to be getting more important all the time.

Olga seems to want to talk religion by the hour and I don't have either the interest or the inclination. My folks feel the same way. Sometimes Olga's questions confuse them. They just don't see her point of view at all.

When we visit Olga's parents the religious question never even arises. They don't see why it has to be discussed with my parents. We have agreed to bring up our children with some knowledge of both faiths. When they are old enough they can choose for themselves. Olga says she'll have to know about my faith in order to teach the children, but I think they can learn at their own pace.

The Council: Although she likes to think of herself as being open-minded, Olga shows that she has definite fixed ideas about her religion. She believes that there "shouldn't be any differences," yet the differences exist.

Olga should be aware that she may not obtain such information, as she so innocently asked. We strongly suspect that she is seeking justification for her particular point of view. It is quite possible that, in a disguised form, she is actually proselytizing for her own religion. If there are no real differences between their faiths, why shouldn't husband belong to here? may be her underlying even conscious reasoning.

We deduce this from the wisdom of Howard and his patience to her questioning. Since she been accepted into the family more than likely that would want her to have some knowledge of their traditions. they "clam up" or reply in vague terms, it is possible they have a feeling suspicion that they being belittled.

There is no law against proselytizing and certainly most persons have found new life, happiness because of it, but we believe that missionaries should be honest- with themselves and others. They should speak up for their own faiths, and not talk about their beliefs.

If Olga's primary aim were to establish a happy marriage and family life, we think that it would not be necessary that she evidently painful to her husband and his family.

A century old oil painting commissioned by Queen Victoria in 1848, graces the walls of the board room at Belleville General Hospital, thanks to the generosity of Mrs. Mabel (Fairfield) Gutzeit, Bath, Ont. Mrs. Gutzeit is the sister of the late Gene Fairfield of this city.

The painting by T. Sidney Cooper called "The Pasture" depicts a flock of sheep at rest in a field. The English painter, born in 1803, in Canterbury, was very prolific and six of his paintings hang in the National Art Gallery in London. He died in 1902. Frank Domenico, hospital board chairman, with members Bruce Lattimer, Mrs. Jane Forrester and Mrs. Ben Burley, are seen admiring the 111-year-old painting.

High School Activities

By JANIE GILL

With the termination of the examinations, the scholars at Quinte are rejoicing. The black cloud of gloom has lifted only to be replaced by a grey fog of apprehension as to the results of these examinations. Our students, with the exception of the Grade thirteen, who spent five days at "the grind," passed through three hectic days frantically cramming knowledge into their already overcrowded brains. Later with the distribution of the reports we shall know, whether or not, all the bed talents either was in vain.

During the two weeks before the "exams" the charter bus service at the Rawson Bus Line was kept on the steady run by the students at Quinte who have become just about the busiest people in this whole metropolis of ours.

One group of upper school students journeyed to Kingston for a tour of the University and campus. The students were divided into groups under the headings science, arts, nursing science, physical education etc. and then taken on guided tours through the buildings which were connected in any way with the respective groups.

After dining royally (a wonderful food supplied them free of cost, our group journeyed across campus to watch an exciting intermediate football game.

From all reports, to say the trip was fascinating would be an understatement.

The following day our school band left, bound for Toronto and Massey Hall, with their leader Mr. R. Schroeder and his wife. The group had been greatly anticipating the treat that was in store for them — they were to hear the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

One shy Mr. Schroeder had obtained choice reserve seats for his musicians and also managed to get them through the crowd, in through the stage door and into their seats before the beautiful music had begun.

No one knows what was done but we gather that the stage-door man was either a distant relative of Mr. Schroeder or just knew a good group of fine musicians when he saw one.

A week later another excursion left Quinte headed for Toronto and the Royal Winter Fair. Mr. Cochrane was taking his agriculture boys on the annual trip he baskets on making in order to determine who knows whether the chicken or the egg came first?

From what I hear the boys had a wonderful time.

Spirits run high at Quinte and have continued to do so since we now have in our school the first C.O.S.S.A. football champions in the Quinte area in over twenty years of attempts. Buttons are continually falling from the shirts of the members of the team due to the great deal of expansion the chests under them undergo when someone mentions the game, score or even the word "football." But credit where credit is due. We have a great "football." But credit where credit is due. We have a great "football." But credit where have had it not been for the skill and expert handling given them by their coaches. Congratulations to Mr. Sisson and to Mr. Motter for giving us such a fine team ! ! !

Some Conclusions

Another impression. In Moscow we dined with a well known Soviet journalist. One of my companions said to him, "If I were a Russian I would be frightened of these Chinese." The Russian's gestures were more eloquent than any words he might have used. I remember how nervous he looked, and how he kept twisting his bow tie.

We have all heard the speculation about a Russian-Chinese split, have heard it repudiated scornfully by leaders of both countries, and denounced by other observers as wishful thinking. To think in terms of an immediate rift is not only wishful but dangerous. Yet an ultimate parting is not out of the question. Khrushchev's statement on the border dispute with India was moderate, almost neutralist in tone. It cannot have comforted his allies in Peking. If this tendency to impartial statecraft continues, it could lead to a cooling off.

Red China's curious position vis a vis the United Nations enters into this. Some sophisticated UN observers, including influential Americans, have long felt that Russia was well pleased to have China kept out of the UN because this is one of the few things the Russians can do for the Chinese — set up an annual clamor about admitting them. The day the clamor succeeds, the Russians will have lost a chief bargaining point.

If speculation along these lines will not get us far, there is one other area where it can be more profitable. It is pretty generally agreed that Khrushchev's tour of the United States was useful, if only because it helped to revise some of his ideas about a capitalist economy. But in a narrower sense it was extremely useful to Mr. K. because he made a better impression than he and his hosts had perhaps counted on.

Now what about Eisenhower's return visit to the U.S.S.R.? The most experienced correspondents in Moscow do not believe he will go beyond that capital. An alternative guess is that he will visit four or five cities and read a number of prepared speeches. He is not a Khrushchev, or even a Nixon. The quick, sly banter which is instinctive with these men is foreign to his nature.

SINCERITY BIG ASSET

Eisenhower does have one striking asset — his sincerity. If he gets on television in Russia and his words are as fully translated as Krushchev's were in the United States, he may make a great impression.

"May" and "if". So much of this is a question of timing. If by Spring 1960 no more serious cracks in the western alliance have appeared, if the Mainland Chinese continue to be querulous and nasty but stop short of open war. If Mr. Eisenhower has access to the channels of Soviet communication. If the timing is right for him, so that he can project the buoyant, dedicated image which is characteristic of his best moments.

If all these conditions hold good, we may then be on the way, not to any miracle like total disarmament, but to detente, which the dictionary defines as the easing of strained relations.

This concludes the series of articles written by Mr. McConnell.

CARELESSNESS IS KILLER — Careless drivers and pedestrians — not unlike those shown here in this posed picture—accounted for a large number of the 3,134 Canadians killed last year in traffic accidents. In an effort to draw attention to this tragic toll the Canadian Highway Safety Conference is sponsoring "Safe-Driving Week: 1958" starting Monday, November 30. (CP Photo).

Safe-Driving Week' Will Be Campaign to Reach Careless Motorists, Walkers

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The "don't care" driver and pedestrian are killers or candidates for death.

They belong to a group that refuses to recognize that they can kill other human beings on the roads, and be killed by others in traffic.

For the next seven days a concerted campaign will be conducted across Canada in an effort to reach the careless motorist and pedestrian, and break through their wall of indifference.

The campaign "Safe - Driving Week 1958" starts at midnight on Monday, and ends at midnight on Monday, Dec. 7.

The Canadian Highway Safety Conference, sponsor of the campaign, hopes that no Canadians will lose their lives or be maimed during the seven-day drive to cut the traffic toll.

But the conference says it must be realistic, and can only hope that the normal expectation of 10 highway deaths a day will be reduced by five. This would put the death-toll for safe-driving week at 35, compared with 45 last year and 42 in 1957.

The campaign against death and injury on the highways has the active support of all provincial and municipal safety organizations, provincial and municipal governments.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker says it is the responsibility of every citizen to awaken to the seriousness of the campaign designed to reduce the terrible highway toll in Canada.

Highway traffic accidents last year killed 3,134 Canadians—an average of 8.6 deaths a day, or 60 a week. In 1957 there were 3,216 deaths, and in 1956 there were 3,164.

W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the highway safety conference, said this toll "is particularly tragic when you realize it is about equivalent to the population of Lunenburg, N.S., or Port Dalhousie, Ont., Lennoxville, Que., Kenora, Ont., or Courtenay, B.C."

Mr. Diefenbaker said when driver and pedestrians are indifferent to the dangers they run or create there can only be death to many.

He described last year's death toll as a "needless waste of human life. Each often died chiefly because someone did not do what he knew how to do."

This year's safety campaign is aimed directly at the motorist and pedestrian who refuse to recognize that they can kill other human beings and be killed by others.

"This is the group which refuses to believe the advice and pleas for safe driving and safe-walking," Mr. Bryce said. "They are convinced that this advice is for everyone else but themselves."

These unfortunate people must be reached and converted, Mr. Bryce said. They must be made to understand that they can make mistakes and that mistakes in traffic can kill and maim.

Mr. Bryce said that before the advent of Safe Driving Week, December was the month with the most traffic fatalities. However, it now was the seventh most dangerous month, tangible evidence of the conference's safety campaign.

Three types of traffic offenders —the highway bully, the jay-walking pedestrian and the motorist who refuses to signal—are the main targets of this year's campaign.

Mr. Bryce said the highway bully is one of the most menacing characters in existence.

"He not only cares nothing for the rights of others but seems deliberately to go out of his way to push other traffic around."

He stops half-way across an intersection, drives at a snail's pace, insists on one traffic lane to another, uses bad language when his failings are noted and resorts to dozens of other tricks and gimmicks labelled "mean."

The jay-walker refuses to obey traffic signals, he walks across intersections and streets without looking for oncoming traffic.

The motorist who refuses to signal doesn't realize that signals are made from it (leave you as others. He has to be taught that signals will be necessary until the day arrives when motor traffic is guided electronically within a plastic traffic tube and drivers have no decisions to make after they pre - set their routes.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Arranging Personal Affairs Now Can Save Lot of Confusion Later

By THOMAS COLLINS

If you are past 55 and work for a living, there is some valuable information you should put in the hands of your wife or next of kin.

Not because you're about to die — at 55 the insurance tables give you a long while yet. But retirement is coming on, and before it arrives there are certain matters you should dispose of. Among them are details of your personal affairs, which you can dispose of by writing them down, placing them where your survivors can readily find them, and then forgetting the whole thing. Here's a check list:

An explanation of your company pension plan which tells whether your wife gets a cash payment, a pension or nothing if you die before retirement, or what she gets if you die after retirement. It should also recommend to your wife that option she should take on your pension if there is an option.

An explanation of what your company health insurance policy or any private health policy, provides both before and after retirement — just in case you've up nuts some morning.

COLLECTING THAT WAGES DUE

Directions for collecting any money that may be due from the employer, in case you die before retirement, such as accrued vacation pay, severance pay or deferred salary. Also directions for collecting on any life insurance policy at the company either before or after retirement.

Last year's income tax return, along with notations of this year's income and tax deductions made from it (leave your tax bill destitute and homeless if you must, but don't leave her a mauled up income tax problem).

The deed to your home or the lease to your apartment, which-ever it is. If necessary, a note telling what safety deposit vault it is in.

Your life insurance policies or a note telling what they will pay and where you have put them.

Specific information on any safety deposit vaults you have rented and the keys to them.

Also information on bank and savings accounts. (Family trauma is being lost all the time by surviving, elderly husbands who hide their money away and die before they thought they would.)

The name of the friend or lawyer you want to move in and take charge.

QUICK CASH

Information that will tell your widow where she can hurriedly get her hands on enough cash to tide her over until the life insurance pays off. She will still want to eat — and the grave-diggers will want to be paid.

A copy of your birth certificate and wedding certificate, and of your military service record, if any.

Directions for finding your Last Will and Testament. If you don't have one you should make one.

A letter giving those left behind the suggestions on finances and living arrangements that your superior business experience has equipped you to give.

Last, it will take a psychologist effort and a physical effort to do all this. But by age 55 you have a duty to do it.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Barr, Gary and Kenneth, of Picton, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brandon. They also called on friends in Kingston on Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Day Desormeau and son of Belleville were callers on Sunday at the above home.

Mrs. William Insley, of Belleville spent the weekend with her son's family while Mr. and Mrs. Frank Insley spent the weekend in Toronto with relatives and friends.

Forestry Management Methods In U.S. Studied by Canadian Grou

By J. W. KEENAN

TWEED — A group of foresters from the south-eastern region, which includes the Tweed district recently toured the states of New York, Vermont and New Hacapshire. The tour was for the purpose of gathering information concerning forestry problems and practices which would be applicable in our part of Ontario.

The first of the north-eastern United States are very similar to those found in southeastern Ontario. As in the Tweed District, the pines, spruce, yellow birch and maple are the favored species. Because many of the foresters in the areas visited have been studying for a set management problems with respect to these species over a great number of years, it was only natural that, in considering our approach to problems of this district, we should spend much time in their studies.

It was interesting to note the degree to which chemicals are used both to poison and destroy hardwood trees. Studies of this are carried on at the Adirondack Research Centre at Paul Smiths, New York. Several pulp companies are using chemical treatments over quite considerable areas to destroy undesirable trees, gradually cutting them for forwarding to the pulp mills. In other instances, chemical killing is done solely for the purpose of stand improvement, cull trees being removed in this manner. This method has also been carried out in the Tweed District during the past three years.

At the Pack Forest at Warrensburg, N.Y., we toured a 2,200-acre pine forest which has been managed intensively for 30 years. A facet of their management which was most interesting was the pruning of white pine up to a diameter of 12" to 14" and a height of 2-3 logs. A study of pruned white pine which yielded 1,506 board feet of lumber and $130 showed that if pruned to the living crown at the appropriate time, the same tree would have been worth $250 — an 80 percent increase in value.

A privately owned 4,000-acre pine plantation was visited at Saranac Spring, N.Y., this area, known as the Luther Forest, had a value placed on it of $500 per acre — this for plantations ranging in age from 30-35 years. It was learned that in one sample area, which was visited, three [illegible] plantings of a 1934 red pine [illegible] plantation, yielded a total of $2,5[illegible] with a net value of $150.00 [illegible] acre.

The New York State Nursery, also at Saranac Springs, is one of the largest on the continent with an annual production of 25 million seedlings. It is interesting to note that in order to facilitate shipments, weighed lots are used, the control rather than counting of trees. To do this a packing average weight per 1,[illegible] trees is reported and for each type of scales and the 1,000 bundles are made up on [illegible] beds.

In our visit to the Green Mountain National Forest, with headquarters at Rutland, Vermont, we were most interested in the handling of timber sales and public auction sale. As in Ontario, sales of goods and [illegible]pments, common throughout our countryside, the timber are bid by species with the highest total bid for a thousand being the sale. A recent sale of 3 million feet, largely hardwood yielded an average of $52.85 per thousand board feet with the price per [illegible] birch being $107 per thousand.

The Bartlett Experimental Forest at Bartlett, N.H., yields very interesting information about the management of hardwoods. They are giving much consideration to cutting methods to secure satisfactory regrowth. As in our own case, the best marking of trees is most essential, chances being generally being too inflexible for good management. Of considerable interest was the high extent to which White Birch is held. The Bartlett area is in the centre of the wood turning industry (bowls, smokies and spools) in the USA and 45 per cent of the wood used is white birch. White Spruce, 2nd species is worth $34 per cord delivered at the mill. This points up the fact that we can't afford at any time to discount species of good quality simply because a market is not readily available. Quality in any product has a way of stimulating markets sooner or later.

There can be little doubt that the foresters who participated in the tour have learned new approaches to their work which will pay off in better forest management in their own districts.

OUGH THE HOOP

Basketball, which never seems to get very far off the mind here in Belleville, is available to local fans again this year since the formation of the Bay of Quinte League.

Entries in the grouping are: Belleville Quakers, RCAF Effners, Napanee and the Trenton Wilsons. Actually it is more of a players' league than it is a fan attraction, especially here in Belleville, and that is one of the things that is making the Quakers' executive a little unhappy.

The Quakers get their name from a local firm, Duncan Brothers, which is supplying uniforms for the team. But the players themselves still have to meet the high cost of gym space.

Games and practices are being held at the Quinte Secondary School gym and according to friend Doug Philpott the team is charged $5 a night for practice time and $10 per night for games. And the sad part of it is that for this money the club is not allowed to charge admission to fans attending the games, as a matter of fact, not even permitted to take up a collection, or an additional charge will be made to the club.

True, only about 25 people turned out to watch the club in its first game last Tuesday, but even then if admission had been charged it would have very likely covered the cost of the gym.

We are given to understand that in Trenton and Napanee the local teams are charged only one dollar to open a gym, and a dollar an hour for its use, by the local school boards, regardless of whether an admission fee is charged or a collection taken.

The Quakers expect to send a representative to the next meeting of the Belleville School Board to see if similar arrangements cannot be made here.

And Manager Dave Duncan also points along word that there is some activity in minor hockey circles, as any reference to "Goose" Tuinas in the district are welcome to try out.

DOTS AND DASHES

Friend Doug Patterson sends a reminder that the OMHA group meeting in Stirling Monday night will be held in Legion Hall at 8.00 p.m., and in the library basement as first scheduled . . . The Macs have a tough schedule next week, playing home and home games with Whitby on Tuesday and Wednesday, and then hitting the road Friday morning for games with Chatham, Kitchener and Windsor on the weekend . . . Ken Gribbons, the Macs' new centre, scored 23 goals and had 36 assists while with North Bay in the Ontario Hockey Association . . . He is 23 years of age . . . The new 8.00 p.m. starting time for weekday games in the Senior "A" loop seems to be working out very well, considering the circumstances, taking in last Wednesday's game here and filing out of the arena at 10.15 to get the last bus for Consecon, which returned to the office . . . We see where Pete Conacher has returned to the Soo after his try-out with the Buffalo Bisons after declaring the Macs with the world title last winter . . . An article in the Hockey News says that Russ Kowalchuk, still with Kelowna, has turned down offers from the Western professional loop and several clubs in the east, including Greensboro, Milwaukee and "teams in the Ontario Senior 'A' league." Well, well, wonder who has been after Big Russ in this loop? . . . Midget and juvenile players in the BMHA are reminded that league games next week will be on Tuesday night, beginning at 7.30 . . . Gary Goyer is the top scorer on the Jr. B Lakefield team, with 20 goals and seven assists and the same number of assists . . . There should be plenty of action at 1.30 tomorrow afternoon when Williams Brothers and Boots meet for the Industrial hockey league lead. In the 12.30 affair Chris' Drive-In tangles with Ellis Printers . . . Reports are that the Belleville Curling Club is enjoying a very successful season to date and the club members are preparing themselves for some keen competition as bonspiel time draws closer . . . The Macs looked full credit for their hard fought game last night all the players had put much into the game as Bus Gagnon it mught have been a different story.

Tackle Canadiens Without Services of Terry Sawchuk; Leafs to Meet Boston Bruins

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The moment of truth seems to have arrived for Detroit Red Wings.

The Wings, the comeback team of the year in the National Hockey League, invade Montreal tonight to battle the loop-leading Canadiens.

Detroit will be missing goalie Terry Sawchuk, sidelined for at least a week with leg pains. Many feel he has been the main factor in the Wings' surprising early showing to date.

Gilles Boisvert, who rendered yeoman service in Detroit's 4-2 loss to Montreal is expected to be in the nets again tonight for his second NHL game. He has been playing this season with Cleveland Barons of the American League.

HABS ON STREAK

Canadiens, with a Sunday date in Boston, are putting a 16-game undefeated streak and an eight-point Canadien margin on the line in weekend action.

New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, both of whom need to get rolling if they are to have any hopes of making the Stanley Cup playoffs, clash in Chicago tonight and New York Sunday night.

Boston Bruins, in fourth place two points behind the Hawks after their last seven starts, take on the Maple Leafs tonight in Toronto. Leafs, a surprising sharp hockey, are just one point behind second-place Montreal where they play Sunday night.

With six games on tap, there should be a shakeup among the league's top scorers. Boston's Bronco Horvath, whose 18 goals are just one shy of his output last season, is still comfortably on top with getting competition from Andy Bathgate of New York and Gordie Howe of Detroit. Horvath has 32 points, Bathgate and Howe 28 apiece.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tense was the word for action in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league Friday night.

At Chatham the Maroons built up a 4-1 lead but came within an ace of blowing it as the Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen scored two goals less than 30 seconds apart in the final two minutes. Final score: 4-3.

Meanwhile in Belleville the Windsor Bulldogs defeated the McFarlands 3-3 but only after a Windsor goal was allowed by the referee over Belleville protests.

Chatham and the Dutchmen played their first game in the new Cliff Pennington arena for K-W in the first period and Ted Power replying for Chatham in the second.

Bill Forhan, Gary Sharp and Fred Pletsch scored for Maroons early in the game before the Dutchmen came to life.

Ted Maki scored at 18.30 of the final period and Ken Schultz added another. The Dutchmen then pulled their goalie but couldn't get the tying counter.

At Belleville referee Art Chartier disallowed a goal by Jerry Servais of the Bulldogs in the third period and Windsor coach Clarence Manago had made a disputed save. Chartier ruled 10 minutes ago that pulled the puck out of the net.

Larry Speck, Tommy Walker and Servais got the Windsor goals, Bus Gagnon and Ike Hildebrand scored for Macs.

Hamilton Fans Give TiCats Big Sendoff

HAMILTON (CP)—More than 5,000 Hamilton football fans whooped it up on a downtown street Friday night to give their favorite Tiger-Cats a boisterous sendoff to the Grey Cup game today in Toronto.

Treats coach Jim Trimble delayed his departure for the Grey Cup dinner in Toronto to take part in the pep rally and thank the fans for their support.

"We'll feel good when we go out there tomorrow," he told the crowd, massed in front of a downtown hotel.

"We're the proudest team in Canada and we're from the proudest city in Canada.

"Let's get together tomorrow night and have a big party."

The players were driven in open convertibles from the James Street Armouries, a parade of about seven blocks. At the head of the parade were the Hamilton Tiger-Cats drum majorettes and band. Fans lined up two deep along the route.

Will Listen To Grey Cup Game at 102

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. Isabella Wilson of Winnipeg, 102, said Friday she will be listening to today's radio broadcast of the Grey Cup game in Toronto.

Mrs. Wilson said she hopes Winnipeg Blue Bombers will beat Hamilton Tiger-Cats but hopes the score won't be something like 30-0.

"That's too discouraging." She has never seen a football game.

Apology Letter Will Be Sent To Soviet Assoc.

BOSTON (AP)—Walter Brown, vice - president of the American Hockey Association of the United States, says he is "ashamed and disgusted" with the conduct of the U.S. team which recently played five games in Moscow.

Brown said Friday night he will write a letter of apology to the Russian Ice Hockey Federation.

"I have been sending teams to Europe since 1934 and never in my life have had anything to do with a situation such as this."

The team from Brockton, Mass., was criticized in a United States report which alleged disregard for training rules and ungentlemanly behavior towards Russian women.

"If these things happened, I didn't see them," said team coach Louis Dabamel.

Brockton lost all five games by lopsided scores.

Transient Asked For Winnipeg Floater, Got Jail

HAMILTON (CP) — Police court officials were introduced to the "Winnipeg Skater" Friday, and they thought it had something to do with a secret football play.

William Duncan, 25-year-old transient, pleaded guilty to a shop-lifting charge and then asked Magistrate Walter Tuchtie to consider a "Winnipeg Skater."

He explained to the puzzled magistrate that this was something practised in Winnipeg courts. Stiff sentences are cut in transients who are then told to leave town immediately, he said.

The magistrate said he would have nothing to do with such a practice and sentenced Duncan to three months in jail.

Cooke Is Ready To Spend Bundle For Good Team

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs' baseball team, said Friday he is ready to pay $2,500,000 for a Toronto major league team in the proposed Continental League.

He told a city council subcommittee studying stadium sites that such a team would require a new 35,000-seat stadium by 1963.

The city is considering an all-purpose stadium, to seat between 35,000 and 50,000, which would pay off a 30-year debenture debt with revenue from various sports.

Mr. Cooke said the stadium at the Canadian National Exhibition, where the Grey Cup football game will be played today, is "the world's worst." He was confident the city could support an all-sport stadium of 50,000 seats.

The baseball owner said he has an $170,000 operating Leah in the International Baseball League.

Plaques Awarded To Five Men At Dinner

TORONTO (CP)—Three earn-ners and two westerners were awarded Sheaf Friday night at the 46th annual Grey Cup dinner.

More than 500 persons were on hand for the gala affair on the eve of the cup clash between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In recognition of the five men's contribution to football, Canadian Rugby Union plaques were awarded, one of them posthumously, to CBU president Bob Moran of Toronto.

The other were the late John DeGruchy of Toronto, R. W. (Bobby) Gowdy of Regina, who was Jim McCaffrey of Ottawa, John Rowand of Regina and Annis Stukus of Vancouver.

GUEST SPEAKERS

Guest speakers at the 810-plate dinner, funds from which go to financially distressed former players or their families, were Frank Tindall, head coach at Queen's University, Kingston; and Tom Gerdsley of Ottawa, sports editor of the Regina Leader-Post.

Other speakers included Mayors Nathan Phillips of Toronto, Glen Sikes of Regina and Lloyd Jackson of Hamilton, and head coaches Bud Grant of the Bombers and Jim Trimble of the Tiger-Cats.

The gathering also heard a tape recorded message from Maurice Richardson, who was unable to attend the dinner. He wished the Grey Cup game well and hoped that "the best team would win."

Most surprised guest at the dinner was CFL president Don McDonald of Regina, who was presented with a birthday cake. The celebrating football official, however, did not reveal his age.

Browns Favored To Whip '49ers In Feature Game

NEW YORK (CP) — Slim John Brodie was just 13 when quarterbacks Otto Graham and Frankie Albert starred in the final game of the old All-America Football Conference.

Otto, Cleveland Browns beat Frankie's San Francisco '49ers 21-7 Dec. 11, 1949, and both came into the National Football League the following season.

Now Otto and Frankie have retired but nothing else has changed much. The Browns are 10-point favorites to whip the '49ers Sunday in the feature of a five-game NFL card.

It's Brodie's job to upset the odds and keep the sagging '49ers atop the western conference. The '49ers are tied with Baltimore Colts for first.

The Colts have a healthy Johnny Unitas to run their attack while Y. A. Tittle, San Francisco's No. 1 signal-caller, is out with an injured right knee.

GIANTS FAVORED

New York Giants, with a 7-2 record, are a game better than the Browns in the East. The Giants are favored to win by 10 points over Washington Redskins (3-6) at New York. The Colts rate the same edge over Los Angeles Rams (3-7) at Baltimore.

Philadelphia Eagles run into the Steelers at Pittsburgh. Chicago Bears meet Chicago Cardinals and are likely seven-point winners.

New Argo Coach May Be Watching First Cup Game

TORONTO (CP) — Lou Agase, Michigan State University offensive line coach, was in town today as speculation mounted that the boosting speculation he may be the top candidate for the head coaching job of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League.

Agase was non-committal on this point when questioned on the subject as he attended the Grey Cup dinner with Bill Ross, president of Argonauts.

The husky American, who was wearing a tie in the double blue colors of Argos, said he was here to see his first Canadian football game.

Lew Hayman, the Toronto club's managing director, last week returned from the United States where he talked to several coaches in his hunt for a man to succeed Steve Owen as Argo head man.

Owen took over that job when Hamp Pool was fired in midseason.

MAY FOLD

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Dr. George Smith, president of the Kamloops Chiefs hockey club, says a public meeting will be held Monday to decide whether the city's representative in the Okanagan Senior Hockey League will fold. He said unless a miracle happens the club will be forced to fold after weekend play because of lack of fan support.

Dogs Edge Macs 3-2 On Disputed 3rd Period Goal

Losers Claim Winning Goal Never Did Cross Goal Line But Referee Has Final Word

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Windsor Bulldogs scored a disputed goal early in the third period here last night to register a 3-2 victory over a tall-and Belleville McFarland squad that played like it was seeking permanent possession of the OHA Senior "A" circuit's bottom rung.

The Bulldogs, registering their third consecutive victory, were far from impressive, although playing good defensive hockey to protect their scant margin in the final twenty minutes. But somehow the McFarlands managed to look worse. It was the Macs' sixth loss in a row, their 15th in 17 starts, and left them 11 points behind Windsor, the club that owns the fourth and final playoff position.

Belleville twice spotted Lamirande's visitors a goal but tied it as many times, deadlocked 1-1 after twenty minutes of play and 2-2 entering the final heat. But over the final 17 minutes and nine seconds the Bulldogs made the one-goal margin stand up for an important "four-point" victory before a small crowd.

Defenseman Ken Ullyett, who scored the markman on the Bulldogs' winning goal at 2.51 of the third period, a goal that will likely be the topic of a great deal of conversation for the next few days.

Servias, Gross and Moffatt were near the Belleville net and goalie Cesare Lamirande appeared to have made the save. The puck got loose however and trickled either onto or over the goal line, with Maniago leaping to glove the disc at this point.

Referee Art Casterton signalled the goal, touching with Jim Farlands, led by their goalie, protested that the puck had never crossed the line. The referee's decision stood up however and so did the one-goal lead for the remainder of the contest.

EAYS IN AND OUT

Questioned after the game, Casterton said that he had been in perfect position to watch the play and that the puck had gone over the line, stood on its edge and topped back over the line before Maniago grabbed it. Maniago still insisted that the goal never scored and he had the agreement of his teammates to back him up, which unfortunately means absolutely nothing.

Belleville had a couple of good chances to tie the score again, one in particular when "Wimpy" Brown got behind the Bulldog defence at the 16.00 minute mark. His shot missed the net by at least a foot and a minute later Maniago was forced to make a fine pad save to prevent Rene Pepin from scoring on a breakaway.

The Macs attempted to get a faceoff in the Windsor zone to enable them to lift the goalie in favor of an extra attacker during the final two minutes. The Bulldogs kept the rubber at the Belleville end however and when Maniago did skate off for a sixth attacker, with play still going, only ten seconds remained and the best the Macs could do was miss the net again in a hurried effort.

Ken Gribbonen, a 25-year-old centreman obtained from Chatham Maroons on waivers, made his debut in the Belleville lineup. An honest type worker, it appeared that he will be a valuable asset after a few workouts with the club. Jean-Paul Payette worked in Pieton until nine o'clock and did not arrive until the start of the second period, leaving the Macs with 14 players dressed for the first period.

Servias, Tommy Walker and Lenny Speck scored the Windsor goals with Irwin Grosz assisting on two, Pepin, Bendo and Moffatt on one apiece.

GAGNON BEST MAC

Rus Gagnon, hardest working McFarland on the night's play scored one goal and assisted on the other, potted by Ike Hildebrand. It was number five for both men, keeping them in a tie for the club's goal-scoring leadership. John Chaszewski earned assists on both.

Penalties numbered nine in all with Windsor collecting six of this total. Both clubs scored once while playing with man ad-vantage but the Macs missed a great opportunity when Utendorfer and Servias drew minors at 13.47 and 15.32 of the second period. Don Head had little trouble with the McFarland attackers while his club was shorthanded for almost four minutes running.

Benoit was off when Speck scored from a point position to give Windsor the lead at 2.56 of the initial period. Servias had three seconds left in an interference penalty when Gagnon tied it up at 11.41, bulling his way in with sheer effort, to beat Benoit.

Bendo had just returned from holding penalty when Walker made it 3-2 at 6.07 of the second period, pushing it under Lamirande's leg when a defender could not clear quickly enough after Speck's shot broke up one play.

Coach Ike Hildebrand tied it again at 10.22 whacking the rubber past Head while standing at the corner of the net. Chaszewski had made a good play to get the original shot on goal.

Gagnon and Lou Dietrich tangled and drew double minors at 7.56 of the third in the Belleville zone, Edmonton 2 minutes. They started by high sticking and then Gagnon stood up on the ice, Gagnon on top with Dietrich's sweater pulled over his head.

The Bomber coach said that a muddy field will hurt his outside runners—halves Carver Shannon and Leo Lewis — but not fast-footed runners Gerry James and Charlie Shepard at fullback.

He said the muddy going wouldn't hurt Hamilton's straight-ahead ball carriers—full backs Gerry MacDougall and Ralph Goldston.

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Stuart

A new column appeared this week in "The Canadian Sportsman" (the national harness racing paper) entitled "Bits and Horse Sense". Some of the odd bits of information included are worth repeating, so for the information of horsemen and fans alike I will quote from this column:

"Harness Horse Racing attendance in the past five years has increased more than any other American sport".

"The Mobile betting gate has been directly responsible for the increase in attendance due to the elimination of false starts".

Many comparisons are made between harness horses (standard breds), and running horses (thoroughbreds) and on the question of stamina "Bits and Horse Sense" says "That a Trotter or Pacer goes at least ¼ mile the fastest due to the driver's reins, whereas a runner goes the first ¼ the fastest" and "that a Harness Horse on race day goes an average of ten miles whereas a runner goes only one mile or less".

Fans often notice that harness horses usually race in Indian file a good portion of each mile and the reason for this fact is that a horse on the outside for a whole mile must run further than one next to the rail. When standard bred racing versus horse breeding a seldom remembered fact is that 90 per cent of all trotters or pacers racing today trace to the foundation sire Hambletonian 10 in their male lines and a large percentage of the females through the illustrious "Peter the Great" who was a great - grandson of "Hambletonian 10".

An example of the growth of the sport in Canada is the Kingsnaught Park Raceway at Hull, Quebec where betting hit an all time record of $6,145,770 for 8 nights of racing, with a paid attendance of over 180,000 with thousands more in on passes. In 1954, the first year for harness racing at Connaught just $400,000 was bet.

This year's figure surpassed anything that was bet on thoroughbreds at Connaught from its opening in 1913 till

Sudbury Wolves Are Drawin Biggest Crowds in League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Home ice has been pretty good to Sudbury Wolves in the first year of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

The Wolves have won eight of their 11 home games and the Sudbury Arena draws the biggest crowds in the league.

The latest proof of this pudding was Friday night when nearly 3,000 fans cheered their cherished Wolves to a 3-1 victory over Hull-Ottawa Canadiens. The win left Sudbury on top of the league by five points, the largest lead enjoyed by any of the six teams this season.

Hull-Ottawa's loss left them a second-place tie with the defending Trois-Rivieres Lions. Montreal Royals hold fourth pla ing Trois-Rivieres Lions. Montreal Royals hold fourth pla ing Trois-Rivieres Lions. Montreal Royals hold fourth pla ing

Danny Lewicki's Overtime Goal Wins for Bisons

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Danny Lewicki's goal from 45 feet out at 2:03 of an overtime period gave Buffalo Bisons a 3-2 American Hockey League victory over Rochester Americans Friday night.

The win moved the Bisons within two points of third-place Rochester.

A crowd of 4,043, largest of the season here, watched Rochester take the lead at 11:41 of the first period when Cecil Hoekstra scored.

Buffalo evened the score at 8:17 of the second period on Lorne Ferguson's goal and then went ahead at 11:45 while the Americans were a man short when Wally Hergesheimer snapped in the game goal of his AHL career.

Dick Van Impe lifted the Americans back into a tie still more than a minute later with Ken Schinkel's goal that eluded Bisons goalie Roy Edwards.

Lewicki's game - winner came on a hard shot from outside the Rochester blueline. The puck slithered under goalie Ed Chadwick's left leg.

Ragan vaulted from sixth to first with his rounds of 32 and 33.

The average television contains between 18 and 20 small tubes—all of which must function perfectly for peak performance. Sooner or later these tubes weaken or fail completely . . . usually just when your favorite program is starting.

Finding a faulty tube isn't always easy. Although tube testers are big sales, the only true test is to substitute a good tube for the one that is under suspicion and check the performance of the set.

At CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St., there is no substitute for quality. Only brand name, Canadian made tubes are used . . . backed by a 90-day guarantee. There is also no substitute for the experience of our trained technicians. Phone WO 8-6791, (Ira Thurston EX 2-7669) for prompt service.

Winners of Grammies Will Be on Hand to Play, Sing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The fast-recording academy takes a step into the bigtime tonight with its awards television featuring the best the disc industry can offer.

This is Grammy, newly-born first cousin to Oscar and Emmy. Although the recording industry confides movies and television, its members never got around to rewarding its best achievements until the spring of this year.

Somewhat belatedly, the Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences gave out its 1958 Grammies (numbers for gramophone) at a private affair.

Now the 1959 awards are due and will get an NBC network spread in the Sunday at 4 spot.

There's not as much hubbub about the Grammies as there is about the older award affair. The reason is that the winners will be on hand to sing and play numbers that got them the big prize. Among them: Van Cliburn, Kingston Trio, Bobby Darin, Shelley Berman, Duke Ellington, Mel Torme, Tchaikovsky, Ella Fitzgerald, Jonah Jones quartet, Jimmy Driftwood, Nat King Cole.

Tying all this talent together will be emcee Meredith Willson, who is not sure why he was chosen.

"I think they wanted someone who wouldn't be funny, so they picked me," he quipped.

The choice of Willson is an apt one. He received his first Grammy ever presented, for the original cast album of The Music Man.

He said that most of the winners will be on hand in Hollywood or New York to collect their statuettes, golden replicas of old-fashioned phonographs. Some of the musical bits have been taped because of performers who could not be present tonight.

The recording academy hopes the affair will be a milestone in achieving the same dignity and artistic recognition for records that the other academies have provided for movies and TV.

Canucks Increase Lead in League, Drop Cougars

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Friday was a no-change night for the Western Hockey League as Vancouver Canucks increased their lead with a 2-1 victory over Victoria Cougars and Edmonton Flyers consolidated their hold on fourth place by defeating Spokane Comets 5-0.

The results left Victoria in a second-place tie with Seattle Totems. Canucks are in last place.

Sandy Hucul and Ray Cyr scored for Vancouver and Arnie Schmautz for Victoria.

Goaltenders were in the limelight at Edmonton with the Flyers' Dennis Riggin getting his first shutout of the season and Spokane's Emile Francis making an illegal dash on to the ice to Edmonton their second goal.

Chuck Holmes put Edmonton in front in the second period and Francis was pulled in the third period in favor of an extra attacker as the visitors fought to equalize. But he rushed on to the ice at 15:33 to set up an Edmonton clearing shot which would have given them the win.

Referee Lloyd Gilmour awarded an automatic goal to Edmonton rearguard Bud MacPherson.

Montreal Royals Without Win In Seven Starts

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals, without a win in their seven Eastern Professional Hockey League games, have two doubtful starters for the weekend fixtures.

Goalie Jacques Plante and defenceman Tom Thurlby and centre Skippy Burchell, both injured in Thursday's clash with Troy Warriors, Mass., have been receiving treatment respectively for a shoulder injury and pulled thigh muscle. No decision has yet been taken on whether they will play.

Already sidelined through injuries are Ken Mosdell, suffering from concussion, and Fern Perreault, with a shoulder separation.

Royals play the Frontenacs at Kingston Saturday night and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds Sunday.

Billy Hunter Wins Decision Over Alex Miteff

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Hunter, a technical - knockout winner over Alex Miteff in September, won a split decision over the Argentine Friday night in a blood-spattered 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Hunter, weighed 191½ and Miteff 203½.

Miteff, his left eye a circle of blood from the seventh round on, dropped Hunter for an automatic eight count in a wild ninth-round rally. But he couldn't put away the lanky Detroit boxer.

Miteff didn't agree with the split decision.

"He run away, he no fight," he said. "I thought I was winning so the seventh round I knocked him down in the ninth. So, I didn't win the last round, but I thought I won the fight."

Judge Charlie Rosen, agreed. He had Miteff ahead 6-4. But referee Ruby Goldstein (5-4-1) and judge Leo Birnbaum (6-4) made Hunter the winner.

Hunter, ranked No. 7 among contenders for Ingemar Johansson's world crown, is expected to go against Eddie Machen, ranked No. 4, in his next bout.

Vancouver Out To Get Game Next Season

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver is definitely out to get the 1960 Grey Cup game.

The decision will be made at the CFL's annual meeting early in February in Winnipeg.

The final was played in Vancouver last year and in 1955, the first time it has been held in the West.

Battery's Life Depends Upon Good Regulator

By EUGENE MILMOE

At this time of year, when a strong battery is most needed, consider the important role of the generator regulator. It controls the generator output. Thus, it can be hit fault if the generator isn't charging, if the charge is too low or excessively high.

Few car owners know enough about regulators to service them without help. Not many realize there are different types and any replacement must match the car's original regulator.

Outside of poor connections, most regulator maintenance work involves cleaning and adjustment. Regulator contact points should be cleaned with a "spoon" rather than a fist file — never with sandpaper or emery paper. When it comes to adjusting and measuring the gap, let your mechanic handle it if you have even the slightest doubt about the job.

G. L. writes: "When my car would not move recently, a service station towed me in and finally got it going. They said it was sealed by zero temperatures."

(A) If the mercury goes low enough, crankcase oil, transmission and axle grease can congeal enough to freeze moving parts temporarily.

From W. R.: "I've heard that with nylon cords there is a tire bump that you don't get with rayon-type tires."

(A) On the first nylon tires, a flat spot would usually develop over-night causing a bump effect in the morning until the tire warmed up. Latest nylon cord tires have minimized this tendency greatly.

MONEY TALKS

Shekels are mentioned in the Bible, and were a silver coin of Israel, in use about 1000 years before Christ. The word originally meant weight.

Wampum — which was bead work done in white and dark purple beads made from the cores of conch or cockle shells was originally used by North American Indians as necklaces and belts.

Two Bits, as a slang phrase, goes back to Spanish dollars, which were widely circulated in Colonial America. To make change, people broke these in halves, quarters and eighths. Thus "two bits" came to mean a quarter of a dollar, "four bits", a half, and so on.

Speaking of breaking things, did you ever try to save money by doing your own packing and moving yourself? Some people do! Usually they find—when they are all moved—that they have scratched or damaged so many articles that they have not saved money, but lost it!

Fox Cartage and Storage Ltd., is a leading Moving and Storage firm, with over 50 years experience and reputation for their service. They were the first in Eastern Ontario with the famous "Blanket Pack" method, which uses no messy newsprint or dusty excelsior but only clean, soft paper padding. Their work is no expert and their charges are always reasonable, that you'd do well to let them estimate (in advance) on your next move.

You'll find Fox Cartage and Storage at: 89 Dundas St. E., Trenton, EX 3-3500; 1274 Hammond St., North Bay, CR 4-4444; 270 Bond, 414, Timmins, KI 3-4977 (1½ mile north of Timmins Skyway) and in Picton EX 2-1000.

Russian Troops Stay In Hungary Kadar Declares

International Situation Said Why They Remain

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — Communist party leader Janos Kadar declared today that Russian troops will remain in Hungary as long as the international situation makes it necessary.

Russian troops are not in Hungary for internal political reasons but as a result of unsettled international questions, he added in a speech to the Congress of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Communist party, its first since the 1956 uprising.

Speaking in the presence of visiting Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Kadar said that in concurrence with Russia ad the Warsaw pact countries, Hungary felt that negotiations should be taken up on the withdrawal of troops and mutual withdrawal of troops in foreign countries.

ROBS U.S. AND U.N.

Kadar criticized the United States for "its campaign to stir up feeling against Hungary" and the United Nations for putting "the Hungarian question" on its agenda again.

He said Hungary wanted to restablish diplomatic relations with the U.S. ad was prepared to take the necessary steps to do so.

Khrushchev arrived Sunday to find the Communist government which Russian tanks kept in power three years ago apparently firmly entrenched.

There were extensive security precautions evident at the airport as the beautiful Soviet leader emerged from a TU-104 jet airliner with his wife.

KADAR KISSED

Khrushchev's visit had not been announced beforehand by local newspapers or the radio but a crowd of about 300 was on hand to cheer. Communist party chief Janos Kadar led the welcoming Hungarians. Khrushchev embraced him and planted kisses on both cheeks.

The congress is scheduled to discuss the 1956 uprising and Kadar's role. It is expected to deliver one of the major speeches of the congress on Tuesday and Thursday.

The Soviet premier's presence in Hungary coincides with the United Nations debate on Hungary. A Hungarian exile group upbraided Western critics of Soviet intervention in the 1956 Hungarian rebellion and asserted that the Hungarian people were happy about their relationship with the Soviet Union.

ILLEGAL MINES BEING WORKED IN NOVA SCOTIA

Ordered Closed For Safety of Men

SPRINGHILL, N. S. (CP)—Grisly coal valleys, with memories still fresh of two recent mining disasters here, continued to operate illegal mines in defiance of a provincial mines department order.

An RCMP spokesman said Sunday night that illegal, or "wildcat" mines in the area are continuing to operate. Mines Minister E. A. Manson said last week none of the mines met the requirements of the mining act. He ordered them closed for the "safety of the men themselves."

There have been no legal mines operating here since the town's last colliery was closed following a 1958 disaster. Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation closed its No. 2 colliery following an upheaval that killed 75 miners. A 1956 disaster in No. 4 colliery of Cumberland Railway and Coal Company, a Dosco subsidiary, led to closure of that colliery.

29 ILLEGAL MINES

About 29 illegal mines are operated in the Springhill area. About 20 coal seams are produced daily. The number of men involved is not known.

Many of the workings are about 20 feet deep. Coal is brought to the surface in five-gallon buckets attached to a rope.

Nine of the illegal pits in the area are known as "gopher holes," named for a United States wildcat which mined there before the 1900s. All are within an area of about 100 feet.

The mines, most of them operating for only about two months, turn out from one to six tons of coal a day. Some coal is sold there for $10 a ton delivered.

SIX-HOUR DAY

Each mine is operated by from three to six partners who generally work about six hours a day.

Springhillers admit many of the "hooting" mines are not safe but say they need coal to heat and have no money to buy it.

Mayor Ralph Giles said in addition to the illegal mining problem would be the opening of a new mine that would employ about 200 or 300 men. He said there is a market for between 400 and 600 tons of coal a day in the wintertimes.

BOMBERS GIVEN WILD WELCOME BY LARGE CROWD

Affection for Team Knows No Bounds

WINNIPEG (CP)—Love those Bombers!

It was tough to find anybody around Winnipeg who didn't today.

Banks are still talking about how Winnipeg Blue Bombers beat Hamilton Tiger-Cats 21-7 in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto Saturday.

Their affection for the Canadian football champions showed no bounds. Although only a few hundred turned up at the airport Sunday for the Bombers' arrival, more than 10,000 were at Winnipeg Arena to give their football heroes a wild welcome.

It moved veteran team captain Buddy Tinsley to say:

"Whatever happens to me in the future, I'll be all right. It will come as an anti-climax after this."

TINSLEY'S LAST GAME

Tinsley, 35-year-old tackle who has toiled for 10 years with the Bombers, was a great performer Saturday. After the classic, the 238-pound Winnipeg car salesman announced his retirement from football.

Bombers arrived about 4 p.m. Hundreds again had been planned regardless of the outcome of Saturday's game.

The Bombers were hustled into the cars, each of which was draped with a banner with a player's name. Fans lined the route and cheered as the motorcade made its way to city hall in adjacent Civic Square. One car had a platform attached to its top with the Grey Cup tied to it.

Mayor Thomas Finlay and his wife entered the lead car and the team was whisked to the arena.

JANZEN YOUNGEST

The players were introduced individually to the crowd, starting with 18 - year - old Henry Janzen, Canada punt - return specialist who was the 1959 rookie-of-the-year award in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

All the players were cheered but particularly noisy demonstrations were reserved for Winnipeg native Gerry James, import from Ezzie Pitts, quarterback Kenny Ploen and coach Bud Grant.

Grant, congratulated personally by Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, thanked the throngs at the reception—win or lose—was the backbone of the team's spirit and contributed greatly to victory.

The Bombers were piped around the arena at the end the half-hour ceremony. They later attended a private dinner.

Price Spread Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the report of the royal commission on price spreads of food products:

Costs of sales promotion devices are a factor in rising food costs.

Retail chains "are not low-cost, low-price firms" and chain supermarkets have tended to compete in services and promotional devices instead of in price reductions.

If large-firm efficiencies don't result in lower prices there is "no good reason to encourage further increases in size of firms already large."

The retail food price index rose 29 per cent in 10 years, 1949-59.

The cost of marketing food from farmer to consumer rose 34 per cent in the same period.

A compulsory inquiry might well lead to the conclusion that there should be a limit on promotional expenditures by individual firms, or that some promotional devices should be eliminated.

Where high prices are associated with high profit levels, consideration might be given to higher tax rates on profits exceeding a defined "fair and reasonable return on investment."

The 1958 level of farm prices was the same as in 1949.

Wages in food industries have been below wages in comparable industries, except in meat-packing.

Profits after taxes of the five leading chain stores in the size group, 1948-57, averaged 17.1 per cent of invested capital.

Profits after taxes of the three biggest breakfast food firms in the same period averaged 29.2 per cent of invested capital.

Increasing farm productivity forced down returns to farmers.

Extension of the scope of farmer co-operatives could reduce price spreads.

The bargaining power of fishermen on prices is relatively weak in the face of concentration in the fish processing and marketing industry.

Commission findings "provide no reasonable grounds for condemning the whole food marketing system."

Food firms must exercise restraint if price increases are to be avoided.

Norwegian Ship Grounded In Race to Clear Seaway

MONTREAL (CP) — A salvage tug has gone to the aid of the Norwegian freighter Vilja, jammed hard aground on a shoal in the Lake St. Lawrence River.

The ship, carrying beans and soya meal from Toronto and Duluth as European ports, was up on a shoal Sunday night near Brockville, 110 miles southwest of Montreal.

An official of Kerr Steamships Limited in Montreal said the freighter was taking water but was holed but there was no fear for the ship or her 35-member crew.

RACE AGAINST ICE

The Vilja is one of 36 ocean vessels racing to get out of the St. Lawrence before the early winter ice blocks the inland waterway until next spring.

Thirty salt-water ships have cleared the seaway since mid-night Friday marine officials here said today.

However, a heavy fog in the Cornwall area of the seaway raised the possibility of slow navigation for vessels heading east to Montreal and the deep-water shipping channel below the St. Lawrence River to the Atlantic.

LIGHT SNOWFALL

In Montreal, visibility was reported at 1½ miles in light snowfall. Ships were moving in the harbor and channels through Varennes, 30 miles west of here, to the St. Lambert lock — eastern end of the 27-mile seaway system linking Lake Ontario and Montreal.

Seaway and marine authorities were keeping a watchful eye on the weather — the big question mark in the battle to clear the ships.

Seaway officials in Cornwall said pilotless ships would be allowed to enter the waterway after midnight tonight, but lock operators would accompany each ship in the system itself are "leaving any ships for breakdown or weather tie-up."

LOCKS ICE-FREE

Joe Lee, 52, has yet become a threat in the seaway, experiencing his first winter. The locks and the channel, Lee knows through Lake St. Louis are ice-free.

Last year ice built up in the Beauharnois Canal by late November, blocking 13 ocean-going ships. Ice-breakers were not able to free them until January.

Ships of Nort. European registry accounted for more than half those still in the seaway-Great Lakes system Sunday. There were 13 Norwegian vessels ocean-bound, 12 German and seven Swedish.

Golden Lava Sent to Height Of 1,700 Feet

HILO, Hawaii (AP)—Kilauea, Iki volcano shot a tremendous fountain of golden lava to a height of 1,700 feet Sunday night and then stopped erupting, for the third time since Nov. 14.

The third violent eruption on Hawaii island attracted thrungs of aerial sightseers during the weekend.

The lava flow is reported by seismologists at 1,000 to 50,000 cubic yards. It has formed a lake of molten rock to a depth of 150 feet on the floor of the volcano's crater.

Seismologists at the volcano observatory said the rising lava in Kilauea Iki (Little Kilauea) crater does not pose a threat to residents or property. The inside flank of Kilauea Iki, the crater, is about 200 miles southeast of Honolulu.

Kilauea Iki first erupted Nov. 14 and subsided forth orange-crimson lava for a short time Thursday the fire revived for Sunday.

The new eruption began Saturday morning with low spouts. The height of the single active fountain steadily grew until it shot above the 1,700-foot mark.

Night-Long Ordeal on Island Worse Than Any War Experience

WINDSOR (CP) — "I went through the whole war and never had an experience like this."

Thus Pte. Clarence Crutchley, 39, of Windsor describes the ordeal he underwent during the weekend.

Crutchley was rescued Sunday by a United States army helicopter about nine hours after he was stranded into the top structure of the Detroit River by a collision between his 40-foot boat and a large ocean-going freighter.

The veteran of 14 years in the Royal Navy, who spent part of the war as a diver in the North Sea and the Pacific, set out Saturday night for Fighting Island, a tiny patch of land in the river where the Wiktron firm is building a major pipeline to Detroit's Wayne County.

The collision occurred as he approached the uninhabited island. From his hospital bed he gave this account:

"I managed to hang on to the side of the boat and got up on it immediately because numb. (The temperature in the water during the race was 25 degrees.) My clothes were water-logged and I couldn't pull myself up.

"I struggled nearly three hours . . . just then the boat floated to the island and I was able to drag myself ashore. I knew there was a shed on the island and I tried to get to it. I didn't have strength.

"Every time I stood up I fell ago.

flat on my face. I tried to keep warm by keep my circulation going and stay awake. I kept thinking if I fell asleep I would die from cold. A couple of times I thought I would give it up and die.

"After daybreak I saw a boat but it was too distant attention. I couldn't stand up but it seemed they saw me."

The boat-men a Wayne county roads commission craft. It did not, Crutchley, but its crew was unable to reach him because of the ice-jammed water in the area. A radio call to the U.S. naval air station at Grosse Ile, Mich., brought a helicopter within 30 minutes.

"I am the 'copter," Crutchley said, "and again I moved to life. I knew I was alive. After that I must have passed out. The next thing I remember was the helicopter pilot.

"They told me later they had to chop ice off the boat before were all just wonderful to me and it's easy to at the Grosse Ile dispensary.

Grosse Ile dispensary officials who treated him for shock and exposure described Crutchley as the worst exposure case ever handled by the station's air-sea rescue team. Hospital officials said Crutchley is in remarkably good shape and excellent spirits.

Promotion Methods Instead Of Price Cuts Detrimental To Customer Says Report

Cost of Getting Food to Market Increased 84 PC in Decade

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Food merchants must substitute price-tag competition for contests, giveaways and gimmicks if food prices are to be held down, the royal commission on price spreads said in its report issued today.

The commission pointed its finger at modern merchandising's high spending on promotion devices as one factor is rising food costs.

Promotion methods which take the place of price cuts "are detrimental to the consumer," it said.

Dealing with one of these methods—the trading stamp—the report said shopping housewives should be able to get a specified cash discount in lieu of stamps.

Promotional devices, it argued, are the most expendable of the many "services" offered by modern stores, notably supermarkets, to attract customers.

These services had contributed to an 84-per-cent increase in the cost decade in the total cost of getting food from farm to market basket.

But the main theme in the findings of the seven-member commission was that persuasion and publicity, not legislation, should be used to encourage price reductions where possible.

Two of its recommendations were to that end:

1. Extension of combines inquiry activities into the buying and selling practices of large business organizations in the food industries. It mentioned breakfast food manufacturers, and chain stores as examples of the kind of situation that should be scrutinized "abnormally high" profits in relation to capital, accompanied by "abnormally high promotional expenditures" and rejection to sales.

2. Establishment of a permanent council on prices, productivity and incomes to keep tabs on "and disclose" developments in the food industry, especially "situations in which increasing efficiency offers prospects of lower retail prices."

Dr. Andrew Stewart, economics chairman, said at a press conference that the commission decided legislative medicine would be worse than the ailment. But it felt publicity would "bring pressure on firms whose profits are high over a long period of time."

He that point the report said its findings "provide no reasonable grounds for condemning the whole food marketing system."

The report, "prepared by the large firms," had many substantial achievements to its credit.

"It is important that these large correctives are to be applied, that we don't throw the baby out the baby with the bath water."

The report—368 pages in two volumes—was issued nearly two years after the commission was set up Dec. 10, 1957. Its studies mainly covered the years 1949-57. A third volume, containing various studies, is to be issued later.

15-Mile Trip Into Stratosphere Wonderful Jaunt Says Aerialist

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—"Anyone could do it," say aerialists Malcolm Ross and Charles B. Prosser of their 15-mile weekend jaunt into the stratosphere.

Ross, a commander in the U.S. Navy, and Prosser, a Navy lieutenant, rode in an instrument-filled gondola under a huge plastic balloon to 81,000 feet where they took photographs of the planet Venus through a 16-inch telescope.

It is "wonderfully pleasant" up there, they said.

The men ascended from Rapid City, S.D., Saturday morning and landed Sunday afternoon in a pasture near this city after a 24-hour flight.

Ross had made six previous trips into the stratosphere—once to 86,000 feet.

The men jettisoned the balloon as the gondola touched ground but the parachute dragged their seven-foot aluminum sphere a quarter - mile across the rough pasture. Moore wasn't hurt but Ross was shaken up.

They went up to 81,000 feet to

Jordan's King Denies He Is On Wife-Hunt

LONDON (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan smilingly denied today that he is on a wife-hunting trip to Europe to find a bride.

"Why," he asked reporters who flocked to his hotel suite, "does everyone want to marry me off?"

"Because you're so eligible," replied one reporter.

The 24-year-old divorced king flashed a shy smile.

"What about Miss Madeleine Rice that, the spokesman added.

Churchill's home in Hyde Park Gate was a hive of activity, with a steady stream of gifts and cables from world leaders, personal friends and admirers the world over.

Sir Winston and Lady Churchill came to London Monday from Chartwell, their country home in Kent. They lunched in a private room at the Savoy Grill on oysters, prawns, partridge, artichokes and ice cream.

Churchill topped this off with Dundee cake.

Emerging from a side door of the hotel, they were recognized by a crowd and gave a passersby who cheered.

Mrs. Churchill responded with, "Thank you very much."

The Old Man, as he is affectionately called, looked in good health although he suffered recently from a cold.

Sir Winston Quietly Marks 85th Birthday

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill's doctor pronounced his patient in excellent health today—the 85th birthday of one of the world's most amazing men.

The announced appearance of the doctor, Lord Moran, at Sir Winston's London house put gloomy expression on reporters' faces until Lord Moran reassured them.

"Of course he didn't send for me," said the doctor in reply to questions. "I just called to see for my congratulations on his birthday."

AMAZES EVERYONE

Churchill's robust health, despite his age, was major strokes and two bouts of pneumonia—amazing everyone except some of his closest friends.

"The old man is going to realize," said Lord Lamay today, "that he is the greatest man to live in the world in the last 500 years.

"He's a freak."

A spokesman at Churchill's home said the former prime minister would attend a birthday party—with a giant international flavored cake—for about 20 people at his London house.

"And he plans to attend Parliament later that," the spokesman added.

SLIPPERY ROADS CAUSE MANY MINOR MISHAPS

Although numerous minor accidents were reported in the city, highways in the Bay of Quinte area were generally free of serious mishaps during the week.

Provincial police reported a quiet weekend, while city police noted that slippery street conditions as result of Friday night's fall of snow had been the cause of a number of fender bumps and other minor mishaps as drivers failed to take into consideration the condition of the streets.

BAY IS NEARLY COVERED BY ICE

With temperatures plunging to a season's low of nine degrees Sunday morning, a mantle of ice appeared on the Bay of Quinte during the weekend.

This morning a narrow channel of open water was seen in some areas of the bay but generally the ice covering was almost complete. The ice thickness, however, was still far from being sufficient for safety and further freezing will be necessary before skating will be safe.

Usually the ice on the bay freezes and breaks up about three times before tightening down for the winter.

Napanee Mayor Re-elected Due Clerk's Ruling

NAPANEE — Not having the written consent of nomination of a candidate for mayor of Napanee, returning officer C. J. Graham has refused to accept the nomination of Arthur E. Kimmerley.

Mr. Kimmerley did not turn in his nomination meeting November 27. Nor did he officially withdraw by returning officer that he wished to run against the candidate's backer and seconder put his name forward at the meeting. Mr. Graham refused to accept it.

Next day, Mr. Kimmerley appeared at the office of Mr. Graham—who is also town clerk—to qualify and was refused by him.

Mr. Graham claims he could have accepted qualification papers on the day after nomination if he had received written confirmation of Mr. Kimmerley's intention to run for office by 9 p.m. on nomination day.

The town clerk added he was unsure of the legality of such a move, but that he "had to make a decision."

Mr. Kimmerley is a veteran of 18 years' municipal politics, not in Napanee. He claimed that Mr. Graham was aware of his intentions the day before the general knowledge around town and had been advertised in the local papers.

He has not decided yet when or whether to appeal the ruling. As a result Harold Lasher has been acclaimed as mayor for a second term.

Quinte Civil Servants Told Holding Line Talk 'Hogwash,' Fleming's Figures 'Juggled'

TRENTON — Speaking at a mass rally in the Trenton Legion Hall today afternoon of government employees from the Quinte area, W. Hewitt-White, first vice-president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada and a member of the Joint Action Committee, stated that there had been "a startling new situation in internal government relationships created by the government with regards to the government's refusal to consider the recommendations of the Civil Service Commission for a general salary increase in pay for civil servants.

Mr. Hewitt-White stated that in 1918 the Parliament of Canada had passed the Civil Service Act establishing an independent Civil Service Commission which was empowered to recommend salary pay in the civil service. In 1957, the present Diefenbaker government had established a special research branch for the specific purpose of examining rates of pay in industry and relating them to the rates of pay for similar work performed in the government service. In August of this year, on the strength of the report of the pay research branch, the Civil Service Commission had recommended a general increase in pay for civil servants. But, the speaker charged, in early October the government had baldly refused to consider the recommendations of the commission. This, said Mr. Hewitt-White, has created a very serious and threatening situation.

"Never before, to my knowledge," said Mr. Hewitt-White, "has the government failed to back the findings of the Civil Service Commission, whose specific job it is to recommend rates of pay in the civil service."

RIGHT TO BE ANGRY

The speaker said that the government employees had every right to be angry about this situation, but he implored his listeners not to be carried away by emotional statements or threatening actions which would hurt their cause rather than help it. He said that there must not be any talk of strikes or marches on Ottawa at this point, but that the best policy was to present the facts to the Canadian public and let it judge whether the civil servants were being discriminated against.

Mr. Hewitt-White charged that Hon. Donald Fleming, the Minister of Finance, had refused to clarify the reasons for turning down the recommendations of the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Fleming, said the speaker had informed the public that the amount of money necessary to finance the pay increases recommended by the commission would amount to $242,000,000. This figure, the speaker stated was entirely misleading. He accused Mr. Fleming of "juggling the figures". Mr. Fleming had included in his estimates pay increases for the armed services and the RCMP, and Mr. Hewitt-White said that these two services had no part in the pay dispute for pay increases. Mr. Fleming had also stated that the cost of boosting the pension fund in line with the increase, would be $107 million. In fact, the speaker said, the sume of $107 million represented the total amount the proposed salary revision would increase pension payments by and the time said civil servants presently employed are retired.

OVERLAPPING INCREASES

Mr. Hewitt-White said that all the government's talk about "holding the line" against inflation was so much "hogwash". He cited rates of pay increases being granted this year in several government-owned corporations, the Bank of Canada, and two and a half years since there had been a general increase in government in the service, and quoted from two statistics published to prove that 85 per cent of Canadian companies are increasing the salaries for their employees last year and another 83 per cent proposed to do the increases during the next year.

"Obviously, industry is not holding the line, hasn't been holding the line and doesn't intend to hold the line," said the speaker, "Why is the government dragging its feet?"

Mr. Hewitt-White cited the case of the nurses in the West-minster Hospital in London as achieving a desired raise by threatening to close the entire hospital to close down one wing while negotiations were going on with the nurses.

"Do the employees in post offices, airports, etc., have to resort to similar measures before they get the pay raises they deserve?" he asked.

The speaker charged that the government had relegated the civil servants to the class of second class citizens by forcing them to accept a lower rate of pay than that paid to their jobs. He said that Canada had a civil service which was the envy of people in the world and that the principle at stake was more than the financial increase in salary. He urged interested citizens outside the meeting to see that justice was done.

MEMBERS SPEAK

Ken Craddock, president of the Trenton Postal Employees' Association, was chairman of the meeting. Following Mr. Hewitt-White's address, Mr. Craddock invited Mr. Ben Thompson, M.P., for Northumberland, to speak. Mr. Thompson prefaced his remarks by stating that he was pleasantly surprised at the reception accorded Mr. Hewitt-White. Mr. Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, and Mr. Clarence Jones, M.P. for Hastings-Edward-Lennox, who were also present at the meeting.

He said that he had read accounts of similar meetings in other areas where the members of parliament present had not been accorded such a welcome. He assured his listeners that this attitude of restraint would get them further than the other attitude.

Mr. Thompson made it clear that he was not representing the federal government in any way. He said that he was speaking for the people of Northumberland only. Mr. Thompson criticized farmers and small businessmen in his riding, and their attitude was that a raise of pay for civil servants was not justified at the present time.

Mr. Thompson stated that the government had been forced into a recession immediately upon taking office and that it had to re-everything to avert the recession by instituting the public works programs. He said that he did not see how the civil servants could be allowed at the present time without creating a certain amount of inflation. "We must keep our dollar sound," the speaker added. Mr. Thompson ended his brief address by saying that he intended to advocate what "the majority of the people in his own riding wanted.

"IN DELICATE SPOT"

Mr. Lee Grills also expressed his thanks to the audience for the reception accorded to members of parliament. He said that "he found himself in a delicate spot." He had not discussed the matter of pay increase with other cabinet members or with those in his own constituency. He said that he was not in complete agreement with Mr. Hewitt-White on the statement that "nobody was interested in holding the line," and assured those present that the Canadian government was interested in averting inflation. He said that comparisons of government wages with those received by workers in industry, inside by Mr. Hewitt-White, would not apply locally, as he was under the impression that local industrial workers would receive a smaller rate than those employed in industry in the Ottawa area. He said that he and always had complete cooperation in his dealings with Lloyd Shipperd, and that he had not come to the meeting to say that they should not get a raise but that they were to continue to negotiate with the government in a reasonable way.

Mr. Clarence Milligan also expressed sympathy with their wants, but urged a greater understanding of the government's problems.

Questions from floor were answered by the members of parliament.

Steal Police Transmitter, Air Insults

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The underworld of Stockholm is having a position to insult the cops and get away with it — unless the police switch off their radios.

This unrivalled opportunity for crooks to pay off old scores happened when thieves stole a police transmitter, disguised from a garage at headquarters. The theft was discovered Saturday night and Sunday morning the police realized the full extent of the jobs against them. The thieves had installed the transmitter above the police bolm and spent the long, dull Sunday hours broadcasting messages and orders over the police network. The crews of the patrol cars had to listen to a string of imaginative insults from anonymous callers who also tried to direct the cars to fake addresses.

Within a radius of 30 miles of Stockholm the police broadcast-

WHAT DOCTORS ARE READING

Polycystic Disease Often Inherited

Q. Will you please discuss polycystic disease of the kidneys? — A. This is a congenital condition, meaning that it is present at birth. Both kidneys are usually affected. They are enlarged and contain many (poly) sac-like structures (cysts) which crowd out normal kidney tissue. The disease often occurs in two or more members of the same family and is frequently handed down from generation to generation. The condition is seldom helped by medical treatment. In some cases, progressive destruction of the kidney may be delayed and pain relieved by rupturing or draining all accessible cysts. Whether to operate is an individual problem.

Answers do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician. Questions may be sent to Science Digest, P.O. Box 790, Grand Central Sta., N. Y. 17, N. Y. It will be incorporated in these columns when possible.

Families Give Thanks for Their Selection

ROME (AP)—Anton Motetti, 39, broke into tears of joy Saturday.

A woman kissed a United Nations official's hand.

The pair was the last Latina refugee camp outside Rome. While other refugees from communist countries emigrated to freedom overseas, Motetti's family and the woman's mother had remained at the camp for years because it was a haven from suffered from tuberculosis.

They were among the first of 100 refugees families in Italy and Austrian camps to be selected for emigration to Canada despite tuberculosis. Canada is taking the 100 families — the first tuberculosis-afflicted refugees accepted by any overseas country — from non-communist areas — under the UN high commissioner for refugees' program to empty European refugee camps before the current World Refugee Year.

A team of Canadian officials headed by Dr. A. A. Griffith of Truro, B.C., has been screening refugees at the Latina camp since last week to select the 50 families which will be accepted from Italy. The Canadians plan to move to Austria next.

Most of the families from the Latina camp escaped to Italy from Yugoslavia.

Motetti had spent 11 of his 39 years in a refugee camp, where his three children were born.

Others selected for emigration to Canada found the news in unbelieving silence, and then burst into exuberant shouts.

cast Governor, The Edinburgh-born economist, once a Manitoba farmer, is a former president of the University of Alberta.

OTHER MEMBERS

Other commission members: Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, Toronto, former president of the Canadian Association of Consumers; Bernard Corvette, president of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce; Robert MacKichan, Halifax, general manager of United Maritime Fish Reduction Limited; Romeo Martin, Montreal, general manager of the Co-operative Federation of Quebec; Dr. W. M. Drummond, Ottawa, the chairman of the national farm radio forum; and Cleve Kidd, Toronto, Canadian research director of the United Steelworkers of America.

All signed the report, but Mrs. Walton and Mr. Couvrette expressed some minor differences in two appendixes.

The commission was charged with investigating the price spread on farm and fishery products between producers and consumer and determining whether the prices received were "fair and reasonable" in relation to the services rendered.

The commission passed, no judgment on the fairness of price spreads in any of the food products it studied.

"We have of no objective test," the report said.

Instead, it looked at farm returns, labor costs and profits to see whether they were out of line.

It rejected the idea of any responsibility for the 20-per-cent rise in the retail food price index. Farm prices in 1958 were at 1949 levels, and had been below that for most of the 1950's.

Wages in the food industries had been found to be in comparable activities, except for the meatpacking industry.

But, it said, profits, expressed as a percentage of capital investment, were "generally satisfactory" in the industries.

In the entire retail trade during the nine years up to 1957, the rate of profits topped 10 per cent in only the five years. They were profit rates for wholesale firms and for the food industries, retail and vegetable processing, and baking industries were also below 10 per cent.

But for the three biggest breakfast food firms, the profit return on invested capital averaged 29.2 per cent. For the four biggest retail chains in Canada, the rate averaged 21 per cent.

The report noted that the breakfast food firms as Kellogg's, National Grocers, Loblaw, and the retail chains as Dominion Stores, Canada Safeway, A and P, Food Stores and Weston's.

HARD PRESSURE

It found the farmer's problems hard to solve. Some farm prices had increased since the world war II 27; C 20. Wholesale to retail: A large 36-37; A medium 32; A small 29-32; C 20-21.

Butter prices: Canada first grade prints 49; Canada standards 48; non tenderable 44 with light trading in Ontario: western 44 (nominal).

of a consumers' branch in the justice department, to give consumers a stronger voice and provide information on legislation and protects consumers.

There should be continued government efforts, in co-operation with the trade, to adapt more the formative labelling of food packages, standardization or containers sizes and simplification of grades.

It urged that more and better statistics be gathered, especially on the costs of services and profits on the operations of small operators in the marketing chain.

To this end it proposed that private companies operating on a national scale be required to provide the same information on their Canadian operations as the annual reports to government of companies operating abroad.

In her reservations, Mrs. Walton disputed the report's assertion that retail chains "are not a low-cost, low-price firms." The report said the four biggest retailers "have featured service competition rather than price competition."

Mrs. Walton said a shopping study by the commission in Toronto and Vancouver "showed that prices of the corporate chains on average were lower than those of the independents."

LOWER MARGINS

Besides, they operated at considerably lower gross margins than their independent competitors.

Eric Stewart, at the press conference, said there is little price difference between chain supermarkets and independent grocery stores.

The large - scale operations of chains did lead to economies, he said. But in the chain stores prices had risen steadily and their looks as though many of the savings from economies were being offset by offering additional services.

The report doubted that any concentration would result from breaking up large food firms to create industries of workable size.

"It could well be an object of policy, however, to limit concentration or to prevent further concentration which offers little prospect of significant economies or increases in efficiency."

The commissioners aren't shy to shared with consumers in lower prices the benefits of progress or encourage further increases in size of firms already large."

It said there was room for growth of the large chains, at the expense of smaller competitors in their extensive use of private brand labels.

QUESTION BENEFITS

But the report questioned the benefits these bring to consumers. It found no evidence of

"It seems to us inevitable that, among the many forms of non-price merchandising, a substantial part of the promotional expenditures may be diffused rather than contribute to rivalry."

As an example, one food processor might add to the value of his product by

The consequence is that the consumer now has a more extensive, standardized and flexible

"The illustration might equally have been referred, among other things, to appliances obtained under a stamp plan at a large retailer or to in-pack premiums offered by large processors."

It rejected the proposal for combines inquiries into buying and selling practices of large food firms, the report said chain operations had substantial revenues" from promotional allowances by food processors.

"As far as the firms in the food processing industries have found themselves forced with lower and more powerful buyers, the effect of the increased pressure on them is evident in the increasingly complicated arrangements for allowances and discounts."

NOT STATUTORY

The commission considered, and discarded, the idea of putting a statutory limit on the amount spent for promotion.

But it said a committees inquiry might well lead to the conclusion that there should be some limit, or else the complete elimination of some forms of promotion.

We are indeed inclined to think that firms who find themselves involved in the war of promotional devices might readily acquiesce to some agreed limitation on their activities."

As an alternative, retail firms might discuss their patronage dividends, as consumer co-operatives do, to customers according to the amount of business they do.

It also suggested tax penalties.

"Where prices continue to be associated with a high degree of profit return on investment and no action seems to be possible to effect a reduction in prices, consideration might be given to denying for the industry a fair and reasonable return on investment, and to taxing profits above this level be subject to a higher rate of tax.

The report gave a breakdown of changes in some of the costs going into items marketed by food dissgrown foods going into the consumer market.

10 PER CENT RISE

The total marketing bill—everything added to the price of food after it leaves the farm—had risen 149 per cent in the 10 years 1949-58.

Part of this was due to a 36-per-cent rise in volume.

But the cost of purchasing a basket of food, including the services associated with it, therefore increased by 84 per cent .

The amount of services associated with the food basket had increased by an estimated 28 per cent since 1949. The general level of service costs rose 43 per cent. So the total spent on purchasing food more than doubled in the nine years up to 1957, due mainly to higher labor and transport costs.

In the same period, food advertising expenditures multiplied fivefold. Packaging costs up five per cent of the marketing bill in 1957. The increase proportion in 1949. Processing labor made up 20 per cent of the marketing bill.

Cold storage costs rose about 50 per cent, while the cost of packaging materials rose 118 per cent.

Mrs. Walton, in her reservations, said undue emphasis had been placed on advertising, transportation, cold storage and packaging costs. They made up only 27 per cent of the marketing bill.

She also suggested that a stronger spotlight might have been thrown on the processing industries.

The report had put "undue emphasis" on the wholesale-retail sector, which accounted for 28.7 per cent of the marketing bill.

Other segments of the industry, she said, are responsible for more than three-quarters of all price increases that have taken place in the food industry since during the period under review."

The report, she added, "presents no evidence to suggest "that there is a better economic way to control prices and price spreads than that which the free marketing system of it exists in Canada provides . . .

Her views were supported in an appendix written by commissioner Couvrette.

The commission held 31 days of public hearings during 1958 in 12 cities. It received 115 briefs and submissions.

Its inquiry was the first dealing with food price spreads since the 1934-35 inquiry by royal commissive trade minister H. H. Stevens. That investigation went into price spreads of other products besides food and also studied monopolies. But it dealt specifically with farm product distribution and with the four-milling and meat industries.

Another royal commission inquiry into prices was made after the Second World War with Professor C. A. Curtis of Queen's University, Kingston, as chairman. But its main subject was post-war inflation, and not the cause of price spreads.

Scouting Around

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

15TH PAREDALE GROUP

Silverscreens of black and white pennants, the group colors, criss-crossed the hall and gave an air of festivity and a promise of an enjoyable evening.

Parents had been invited and quite a large number was there. The ceremonies were well planned to inform parents what the boys do in Scouting, and it also demonstrated how well the leaders have trained the boys to become good citizens.

The meeting opened as usual with prayers, the Cubs and Sea Scouts all looking particularly bright and keen.

GOING UP CEREMONY

Cubs Paul Fudge, Mike Taylor and Bill Forgie repeated the Cub Promise for the last time and were then introduced to Scoutmaster John Foster who in turn presented them to their parents. Paul and Judge and Bill Forgie received their Second Star before leaving the Pack. Wolf cubs entitled to wear the leaping wolf badge, they will have to wait a year with him when he becomes a Scout and means that he has been at the top of the pack for a long. Cubmaster Jim Hultquist explained the system and also pointed out, "going up" is a very big step in a boy's life. The Cubmaster presented the Silver stars to the following Bronze Arrow winners in the Cub pack: four-year stars to Mike Miller, David Sproule; three-year stars to Brian Allen, Larry Wood; two years to Lloyd Lewis, Terry Hall, Wayne Murney, Peter Morris; and one year to Mike Sproule.

Second class badges were awarded to Gene Bonisteel, Ian Vogeler, David Spring and Tommy Schofield.

A.C.M.S. HULTQUIST INVESTED

A.D.C. Mac McClelland told parents that Cubbing is based on helping people. Rules and leaders are named after jungle animals. Akela, the leader's name is burnt and in Mrs. Hultquist's case it is said she be known as "Kim" to the Cubs and by no other name.

The A.D.C. concluding the first promise all Cubs make — "I promise to do my best" — expressed his pleasure at having dad and wife teams in Cubbing.

The Cub vesper, sung solo by Bruce Sproule, and the Cubmaster's "Good and Good Morning" to the Cubs and Scouts closed the meeting. Refreshments, which were supplied mainly by the boys' mums were appreciated by everybody. Scouts will be on the sale of this part of the program but the Cubs will be on the job next week. Cubs and Scouts do so much that, and for this affair, they would look after the refreshments themselves.

BOY SCOUTS AUXILIARY

Eleanor Bluett, president of Executive Board, Boy Scouts Auxiliary, presided over the election of officers held at the Mrs. Clare Millar was re-elected president; secretary, Mrs. Jones; vice-president, Mrs. Ward Thompson; secretary, Mrs. May Spicer; treasurer, Mrs. Eileen Spring; program convenor, Mrs. Lloyd Bonisteel; telephone, Mrs. M. Armstrong; reporting, Mrs. Alex Vogeler; publicity, Mrs. Edna Keeble; social, Mrs. Doris Coles and sick, Mrs. McMillan.

The newly-elected officers were duly installed by Mrs. Blaker and with the reading of the Scout Auxiliary Promise this most successful year came to a close.

We would be to remise if we failed to mention that the Cubs, performed by Akela Tom Schofield, Robert Doyle, Donald Doyle, Dave Millar and Frank McKenna, were thoroughly enjoyed when the "victims" chosen from the adults to assist gave a good job. Scouts can always be relied on if people back into a festive mood even after the most serious ceremonials.

26 Competitors At Monthly Rally Of Motor Club

Twenty-six competitors were on hand for the monthly rally held by the St. Lawrence Automobile Club on Sunday afternoon, Apply named the Nov. Nemesis Navigational exercise) all contrasts, with the exception of the overall winners, Larry Wood and K. O'Connor in a Triumph TR3, managed to miss at least one of the various checkpoints along the snowpacked route over Hastings County roads.

The route started out of Napanee and wound its way through Lonsdale, Marlbank, Roslin and Crookston to wind up at Roseamore. Eighteen managed to complete the course, more or less, and eight competitors fell by the wayside to be classed as "did-not-finishers".

Second place went to Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Sproule of Belleville in another TR3 with the fourth place team of Bill Millar and Mike Hegarty (VW) but one penalty point behind Wood team. In fifth place was elderly president Jack Bowen and M. Lark (Morris Minor); fifth was Gerald Bonisteel and Kenl Callaghan of Belleville (Morris Minor); Carl Bjerkelund and A. Saunders of Kingston (VW) were seventh whilst eight and ninth places went to Peter and Mike Chapman and H. Dawson (Pontiac) and Wayne Rose and Miss L. Fournier (Peugeot) respectively.

The next rally event to be organized by the Belleville Club will be held in January with Canadian championship event following in April. The club also holds short one-hour events, called night petits, during the winter their regular monthly meetings.

Local Boys Win Two Events in Weightlifting

The first Eastern Ontario Open Novice Weightlifting Meet was held in the weightlifting room of the Belleville YMCA on Saturday evening with almost 60 spectators and 14 competitors participating in attendance. Designed especially for the beginners in the weightlifting game, the novice meet was open only to those youths who had no experience in competition and had been in training for only a few months. As a result of this uniqueness, competitors came from as far as Ottawa, with another entry from Kingston.

Two of the four weight classes were won by the out-of-town visitors and the remaining by local talent. In the 123 ½-pound class, 15-year-old Bob Jackson of the YMCA came first with a total lift of 300 pounds. In the 148-pound class Rick Collins, 16, of the Viney Olympic Club, Kingston, took first in class ahead of Tony Wright and Gary Thorn of Belleville with a total lift of 420 pounds.

In the heavier weight classes, the local lifters came to the fore. Gary Phillips, a 15-year-old lifter from the Apollo Barbell Club made a total lift of 445 pounds to come ahead of Frank Fox of Ottawa and Peter Bellair of Belleville in the 165½-pound class. A total lift of 455 pounds earned Ken Vickers, 18-year-old member of the Belleville YMCA, first class honors in the 181½-pound class ahead of his teammate Norm Lightfoot.

The meet was judged by Captain Bob Robertson of Royal Canadian School of Signals, Kingston. Referees were Ken Carr - Brant and Pete Green of Belleville. The meet was hosted by Bill McMurter, weightlifting coach at the YMCA, who also was master of ceremonies.

Jerry Vickers of the Belleville YMCA, received the Best-Lifter Award for his performance.

The next weightlifting event will be the Open Meet on December 30th, when the Eastern Ontario Weightlifting Championships are to be held.

A Prize Example

Everybody likes an opportunity to say "I told you so" and this type of shot in the arm is particularly welcome on Mondays, being one of the few known methods of converting the well-publicized blue to rosy hue.

Thus it is with considerable pleasure that we call the attention of our readers to an advertisement inserted elsewhere in this issue by the Bank of Montreal.

Entitled "The Facts Behind the Figures" it presents the 142nd annual financial statement of the bank, for the year ended Oct. 31 last, in a form which we find admirable.

It was precisely statements of this type which we had in mind when we recently published an editorial urging that municipal auditors should supplement the standard type of report by a few paragraphs of readable prose which would clearly explain to the average taxpayer the pertinent facts about the state of financial health of his community.

This is not the first time that the Bank of Montreal has presented its financial report in this easily understandable form. Indeed, as an accompanying letter explained, the bank pioneered such a form fifteen years ago and "this presentation has evolved over the years."

Newspaper readers have also seen it before. But there has been a hiatus. The Bank ceased newspaper publication. "This year," says the Bank's letter, "has seemed to us an opportune time to resume the 'easily understandable' form of statement for newspaper publication." We should like to think that the Bank was prompted in this decision by reading our appeal for a similar policy regarding municipal audits, and by the fact that it is not exactly a disinterested party in respect to the incidents which gave rise to this editorial. We should like to think that—but even the rosy influence of "I told you so" does not make the harsh light of reality which goes with Monday quite that deceiving —the truth is the Bank just discovered that there was no way in which it could give its financial statements such wide publicity as by publishing it in newspapers. How it could ever have forgotten that fact mystifies us.

Two Different Economies

Canadians who think of the economy of their country as being tied to the apron strings of her big neighbor to the south might find it necessary to revise their opinions if they were to study a table presented by Raymond W. Goldsmith, professor of economics at New York University, at a symposium of the U.S. National Industrial Conference Board.

This table showed the annual rates of growth of aggregate real gross national product during the years 1949 to 1958. The table dealt with six countries or areas, the United States, Canada, Latin America, that part of Western Europe included in the Organization for European Economic Co-operation, Japan and India.

Of the ten years listed, only one, 1958, showed the U.S. and Canada to have the same percentage of growth. Nor was it a case of Canadian trends lagging behind those in the U.S. Usually they were the same. For example in the "recession year" of 1954 both countries showed a decline in aggregate real gross national product, the only such decline for Canada although in two years, 1949 and 1958, the table shows no change. The U.S. also had a decline in 1958. But in other years there was a wide difference between the trends in the two countries. For example, in 1952 the U.S. increase was only 3 per cent, Canada's 7 per cent the previous only 3 per cent, compared with 7 per cent in 1951 year, but Canada's increase was up from 6 per cent in to 9 per cent in 1952. Again, in 1956, while the U.S. scored only a 2 per cent advance, Canada's increase was 8 per cent.

Most startling figures are those for Japan, with percentage increases ranging between 4 per cent, for the recession year 1954, to 19 per cent in 1950 and with an average gain of over 10 per cent.

THE FIGHTER AND THE QUITTER

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The quitter drew from the field his Weary of limb and sick at heart,
And muttered in accents low:
"Let the fight go on. I shall try no more.
My eyes are dim and my back
is sore,
I'll take not another blow;
For it's all of no use, I can plainly see
I never could gain the victory."

But the fighter said, with a stern set chin:
"It's a battle tough, but I'm out to win.
And the odds are big, I know,
And I'm pitted against some better men,
Yes, vastly better than I, but then

I'll give them all blow for blow;
I'll admit things look rather bad for me
But I'm going to make a fight for their victory."

"You never can tell," the fighter said,
"When your chance will come to forge ahead,
And your day will come to rise;
And better men you can sometimes trim
If your nerve is good and your courage grim.
Luck breaks with the man who tries.
And nothing could e'er be so sweet to me
As to turn defeat into victory."

Britain's New Magic Box

By R. W. Cobbing in UNESCO Features

Recently a group of representatives of the press, the Services and various industrial organizations in Britain were invited to attend a demonstration of a device which, we afterwards enthusiastically heralded, as a newspaper headlines. "The Magic Box Will Change Your Life." "The Magic Box Means New Era." "The Mighty Midget" and so on.

What was this 'magic' device? the answer is, the hydrogen-oxygen fuel cell! It was invented, and intelligently carried through its difficult laboratory and development stages during the last 27 years, by Mr. F. T. Bacon, a British engineer-scientist who has worked, since the war, in the Department of Chemical Engineering at Cambridge.

He started his studies on methods of producing electricity by direct chemical-combustion reaction in 1932 and, in spite of the financial difficulties which so handicapped him, especially in the early days, he has now brought this new means of producing electric power to the stage when its practical application is near.

In the electric torch battery everyone is familiar with one system of cell in which chemical energy is converted into electrical energy. But batteries of this kind have a high radio of volume to power, i.e. they are bulky and heavy for the work they do. The chemicals within them — principally the zinc which forms the case of the "electrodes" — are quickly used up.

Bacon's cell is quite different. It has two specially constructed "electrodes" of nickel plates, between which are placed parallel to one another, with a solution of caustic potash to activate them. The hydrogen and oxygen, which eventually fuel the cell, between them, are led into the outer faces of the two nickel plates and so that they diffuse through them into the solution and react there. At the hydrogen electrode, to form the electrons which they were originally derived.

The efficiency with which the cell converts the energy of the fuel into electrical energy varies from 50 per cent to 60 per cond, to about 70 per cent. The passage of the oxygen ions through the solution, to the hydrogen electrode creates an electrical potential at each surface of the nickel plates. The nickel plates themselves are not used up in the process. The power is produced from the gases which are fed in and which are used up just as though they were being burnt as fuel — hence the name fuel cell.

By using an assembly of a number of pairs of plates, the voltage of the whole battery can be raised to a more usable value. Further, the electrochemical treatment of power can be obtained from a relatively small volume due to the fact that the electric current density in cells of this kind is many times higher than in, say, a car battery. In the demonstration, a power-pack capable of an output of up to 5 kilowatts (7 horse power) was used and this was contained in a cylinder a little over 10 inches in diameter. It was shown operating a fork lift, to move heavy packages about, without any difficulty and also doing a number of other jobs.

The power produced inside the cell when it is in operation. This is an advantage in that it helps to keep the cell works best at a temperature of about 200 degrees centigrade. But the larger ones have to be cooled. This is done by water under a pressure of 400 to 600 pounds per square inch.

In spite of the special technique of operation which is required at present, the Bacon cell has obvious advantages and, although some years must elapse before it can be adopted widely, there are good prospects before it. Motor cars, power stations, even trains and submarines, could be driven by this means, a great advantage being that no fumes are created; the only by-products are a small quantity of water. Other good points are that the cell does not suffer if heavily overloaded and that its efficiency is high. Finally, to establish the output of the cell it is only necessary to change the quantity of the fuel gases.

Mr. Bacon claims that power from his cell could be cheaper than nuclear power from the same weight of fuel — especially in the small power units for which there seems to be a great future. At present the running cost is high, but this will come down if a diesel engine but the development work for the electrical cell is pushed forward, the latter will probably reduce this cost considerably.

As for the oxygen and hydrogen, these can be produced from water by passing an electric current through it. In fact, this process — electrolysis — is already the exact reverse of the cell itself: an input of current to an output of gases.

In the early days of his researches, Mr. Bacon was supported by the Department of Scientific Research Association, which later handed over the project to the Ministry of Power. After much success with the process on a small scale, the project was taken up by the National Research Development Corporation which is now sponsoring it and bringing it to the stage of practical application. Arrangements have been made for the cell to be manufactured under licence in the U.S.A. and it is already in production there.

Research on other forms of fuel cell in which hydrocarbons could be used, and in which the disadvantages stemming from the corrosive effect of high temperatures and pressures could be overcome, are also being carried out by the Ministry of Power.

Perhaps the most interesting prospect is that electric power could be produced directly from coal without the intervening furnace and steam boiler stages — local deposits of coal and hydrogen are used, the process would also be a most economical way of obtaining "local power" for a little wastage. Let us hope that such an arrangement will be put into economical operation. It would certainly provide a solution to the difficult problem of power supplies in remote areas.

CYSTIC MASTITIS REQUI RES SURGICAL REMOVAL

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is cystic mastitis of the breast? Several friends have had operations for it and mine turned out fine. Can it be dangerous in later life? — Mrs. A. M. and Mrs. C. H.

The 'mastitis' part of the name of this condition indicates that it involves the breast. The 'cystic mastitis' is sufficient. You don't have to add "of the breast".

Now the breast tissue is one which contains a large amount of glandular tissue. The glands of the tissue inside body (bone, muscle, and other) types) remains relatively unchanged. That is, it does not react rapidly and vigorously at particular times.

However, the glands of the breast are primarily for the purpose of secretion, and at the proper time, emitting milk.

Hormones, primarily from the pituitary gland and from the ovaries, regulate these countless little glands alternately causing them to become active, and then letting them subside again.

The female hormone involved is estrogen or the so-called "female" hormone. The amount of this hormone ebbs and flows in keeping with the needs of the body, and you will see present-day how this sometimes becomes changed to the healthy glands of mastitis.

Anyway, before we get to that, what is cystic mastitis? Now and again a gland, being subject to the stimulation of this type of activity, becomes sealed off. Inflammation of the duct, for example, and the material forming inside has no way to escape.

This can, and doubtless does, happen often in a small way, but the material is small and does no harm results.

However, suppose one of these cysts continues to grow, and it becomes inflamed. Then you have the trouble. The cyst becomes of sufficient size, you decide to have it removed, and you or may not be sensitive or downright painful.

It is hoped now that every woman is aware of the possibility of breast cancer, and that if she or her doctor at once when a lump is detected in the breast. Sometimes a good many of these lumps won't be cancer; they will be cystic mastitis.

The sure way of telling which is by the microscope. That is the cyst. In the first place, this gets rid of the lump. Secondly, the tissue is subjected to laboratory tests to prove whether it is just a cyst, or whether it is malignant.

Removal of a cyst means that only the cyst is removed. There is no case of removing the entire breast, as with cancer.

This does not answer all the questions asked or implied in today's letter as to the cause or other types of treatment tomorrow.

"Dear Dr. Molner: We and other members of the family are worried about my cousin who truly imagines there are 'things' crawling on him all the time. He has been to skin specialists, but we think he should see about his nerves. He uses all kinds of insecticides and sometimes one of them entirely too strong for his skin — Mrs. —J. B."

Quite right I vote with you. See about his "nerves". That is to say, consult a psychiatrist.

Note to C.F.: Polype in the ears are known to be frequently fore-runners of cancer, and hence should be removed. Write your family grandfather's age, but if he is well along in years, I suppose it is just as well to leave the polyps and hope for the best. There is no hurry to have the polype other than surgical removal.

Leg cramps and foot pains? Both can be stopped! To learn how, write to me in care of The Chicago Tribune, Doddridge, P.O. Box 158, Dundee Ill., requesting my pamphlet "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains" and enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and enough in stamps to cover handling.

Envoys Need Visits Home

Toronto Financial Post

If an ambassador's job abroad is to represent what's going on in his country, his knowledge of the subject should be kept up to date.

Canadian ambassadors need, but rarely get, a chance to interview superior courses on home affairs. On being posted from one capital to another, they should be given a short tour of duty at home to find what people are doing and thinking. This should be a regular practice; but, under oddity, it's not.

A top Canadian career diplomat, who has served with distinction in Europe, from Australia to India, without exception, has come back to work or with only a cursory visit to Ottawa for briefing. After years of his absence, he loses touch.

Of course he received copious reports from his home base; and no doubt he reads Canadian newspapers, and talks occasionally. But these sources are no substitute for direct contact. In a short flip across Canada, making speeches, meeting students, colleagues half of his own age, every few years, this should be easy to arrange and would enhance the value of our already high-grade foreign service.

REUNION

I attended a class reunion recently. Those of us who had been graduated some years before had agreed to meet at a certain time and place. There was much joking about the loss of hair and the gain of weight of some of the members. We remembered also many dear friends who had passed on through the years.

But none of us saw our classmates as equally older than the boys we had known years before. Each, shaking hands or along side that smug and obese businessman who had rolled up quite a record over the years was a youngster who used to be quite energetic in athletics. Nobody thought much about had turned out to be a man of national reputation. One boy who had to work

THE MIGHT OF RIGHT

Wrong is wrong, whether in Washington, Moscow, London, Paris, Tokio, Panama or Peru. Nothing can make wrong — right.

On the other hand, there is a power to right that is able to sweep wrong from its citadels. Let truth its power though it be ten times numerically as strong as falsehood, founded upon wrong has ever been known to permanently endure.

There is a might to right that is irrepressible and irresistible. Every man of force and vision knows this as clearly as he knows his name.

Wrong always fights a losing battle.

Think of this when you are tempted toward present advantage. Think of this when the glitter looks so much more attrac-tive.

Think of this when the darkness of the moment through which you are passing seems to hide from view the might of right is all and ever back of it.

Life is a battle of the elements. Fire against water. Darkness against light. Truth against falsehood.

Be encouraged by the fact that right has never lost a fight. That wrong, pilgrimaging across a strange and ever-changing world, has always led a victorious army to "Back home." Remember, with Lowell—

"Truth, forever on the scaffold, Wrong, forever on the throne."

Yet that scaffold sways the future, and, behind the dim unknown,

Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"The stupid Christmas look," says a floorwalker who rides the bus with me. "It always arrived."

"You know the expression I mean. All the rest of the year, shoppers have a normal intelligent look on their faces. They don't come down from their offices and factories and they know what they want. Briskly, purposefully, they enter the store, they go directly to the department they wish to deal with.

"But at Christmas," he said, heaving a big sigh, "the entire picture changes. Nobody knows what they want. Even when they arrive down town, they haven't the foggiest notion. They just realize it is time they did their Christmas shopping, and they come down hoping to see something that might do. It is idea they want. And the longer they stay down town, the foggier they get. I can spot a two-hour shopper from a three-hour shopper. The four-hour shoppers have the worst look. They're so lost, that can't be mistaken. After four hours of wandering around, peering more and more uncertain, they begin to just stand and stare into space. They're the ones you will notice blocking traffic in the aisles. They're the ones in your way, which way to turn. If you pause beside them, you will hear them faintly moaning.

"It will grow steadily worse, now, until the day before Christmas. That last day, of course, everybody goes mad. Like sleepwalkers sweltering, they will come stumbling about, buying anything, everything. It's a maddening, nightmarish day. It always has been, and always will be, the joy of God.

Rail Grinding Train Starts Operation on C.N.R. Tracks

TORONTO — Sidewalk superintendents of the railroads will encounter a new phenomenon next month. Along Canadian National tracks will appear a train of nine odd-looking cars, running at a steady two mph, yet periodically showering sparks and dust from its wheels.

The "thing" will be a rail-grinding train, in use for the first time in Canada. It is coming on a test run over certain CNR lines in Southern Ontario and Quebec.

As the train moves along, 96 power-driven abrasive wheels mounted beneath the cars grind out corrugations and other rail surface irregularities. Four of the grinder cars are equipped with contol cabs, while the others are remotely controlled from the adjacent car. The ninth car houses a power generator.

A CNR locomotive and caboose will complete this novel consist.

The grinder train and its crew are from the Frank Speno Railroad Ballast Cleaning Company, Ithaca, N.Y. The train has been in service for about four years on various U.S. railroads.

The train is scheduled to begin its test runs at Sarnia today. From there it will work to Woodstock, Brootz, Toronto, Belleville and several points in Quebec. It will grind sections of track ranging from half a mile to 13 miles in length.

Three Townships to Hold Elections on Monday Next

PICTON — Municipal elections will be held on Monday, Dec. 7 in the townships of Sophiasburgh, North Marysburgh and South Marysburgh. All other centres in Prince Edward County chose council by acclamations.

However, Hillier township has one vacancy on council. Reeve Kenneth Wood was returned with councillors Gordon Lloyd, John Taylor and McRae Danford. Albert Cammons did not seek re-election and none of the other three nominated qualified, making a second nomination necessary.

Contesting the reeveship are Kenneth Carson and Kenneth Hicks. Seven are seeking the four councillor seats, they being Harold Harrison, Wilfred Kennington, A.S. Moira, Crowe Conservation Bodies to Meet

The final full authority meetings of the years for the Moira River Conservation Authority, and the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority are scheduled for successive days next week at Cannifton and at Marmora.

The Moira meeting will be held at the Thurlow township hall at Cannifton on Wednesday Dec. 9, while the Marmora meeting will be held on Thursday at the Marmora town hall.

In both instances reports on the year's activities will be given by the various committee chairmen. Also up for discussion will be the proposed programs for next year.

At Cannifton one of the items on the agenda will be discussion of regulations regarding permits to place fill in the Moira River. This measure has been recommended by the Moira Water Control Advisory Board and with approval of the Authority members would be forwarded to Toronto for department approval.

At Marmora on Thursday members of the Crowe Valley Authority will inspect the Marmora dam and repair work which has been done on this structure this year.

GREENLAND ICE BOUND

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuters) — Greenland was icebound for the winter Sunday when the last ship this year sailed for Copenhagen after bringing in supplies — which included Christmas trees. No passenger ships are expected to sail between Greenland and Denmark until February or March, following last year's disaster when the carliner Hans Hedtoft went down on her maiden voyage, with the loss of 95 lives, after hitting an iceberg en route to Copenhagen.

Sidney, Thurlow Township Councils Remain Unchanged

With the time limit for qualifications running out Saturday evening, the number of acclamations for councils in district rural municipalities were increased over the weekend.

In Thurlow township present council members were acclaimed as three other nominees failed to qualify. The entire councils of both Thurlow and Sidney townships have thus been re-elected by acclamation.

Acclaimed in Thurlow were Reeve Allred T. Wannop, Deputy Reeve Harry H. Pound, and councillors Clayton Hall, Carl Thompson and Horace Casey.

In Sidney township Ebenezgh Hamilton received acclamation for reeve, Gerald Irvine as deputy reeve and Alwin Hart, Jack M. Bush and Ernest Kells as councillors.

In Hungerford township Reeve Harold Varty and Deputy Reeve Vincent Hesler have been acclaimed but four men contest for the three seats on council.

Tyendinaga township holds its nomination late in December with the election date on the first Monday of the new year.

Thomas Walker of Ameliasburg township has been appointed clerk of the County of Prince Edward. He will fill the office left vacant by the recent death of clerk C. G. Rutter. The Belleville Citizens Committee For Maintaining Sunday Free From Commercial Sports . . . Is

A temporary, non-political, non-sectarian group of persons concerned about maintaining one day out of seven, specifically Sunday as "The Lord's Day", as free as possible from commercial and industrial activity so that all who so desire may be assured of a day of rest and renewal.

The purpose of this committee is to make clear what is involved in the question on which citizens are asked to vote on December 7th. The question does not specify that it is COMMERCIAL sports and games that are involved but that is the fact.

NO LAW NO PROHIBITS SUNDAY RECREATION

Commercial Sunday Sport will certainly force Sunday labor and will probably lead to an "Open Sunday".

SMITH — MCINTOSH

White gladioli, white chrysanthemums and ferns, together with tall candelabras adorned the altar of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Stirling, recently for the wedding of Margaret Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh and Marion Farrel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clemon Smith, all of Brockville. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker, of Belleville, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. K. J. Rooney, of Stirling.

Wedding music was played by Miss Grace Pitman, the soloist being William Reynolds, who, before the ceremony, sang "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride wore an original gown of pure white satin peau de soie, on classic princess lines with close fitting bodice, long fily-point sleeves and scoop neckline edged with re-embroidered Alencon lace, which was repeated at the shoulline. Her gown had a very full skirt flowing into a full chapel train. Her headdress was a train length veil of silk tulle illusion held in place by a crescent of the same Alencon lace which trimmed her gown. She carried a cascade of Better Times roses and stephanotis.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Jack Jones, Belleville, as matron-of-honor; Mrs. Margaret Sadler, Ottawa and Miss Isabelle Bates, Toronto, as bridesmaids, who were gowned alike in short dresses of scarlet velveteen. They were fashioned with close-fitting bodices, Sabrina necklines, tiny short sleeves and full circular skirts. Their headdresses were double bows of velvet to matching lace. They carried semi-cresent bouquets of white chrysanthemums and red sweetheart roses.

Mr. George Smith, Brockville, attended his brother as groomsman, while Richard Dunn, cousin of the bridegroom, Messrs. Ellis Empey, Brockville and Hyde, Ottawa, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bridal table was laid with white damask cloth and centred with a three tier wedding cake, mistletoe about the base with white tulle and scattered rosebuds and topped with an arrangement of red roses and white 'mums.

The bride's mother received the guests in blue crepe, with dusty rose accessories, and corsage of white 'mums, she was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore moss green crepe with mink brown accessories and a corsage of yellow and bronze 'mums.

For the wedding trip, by plane to Florida, the bride donned a three-quarter length coat and skirt of taupe lightweight French wool with a circlet collar of Emba Haze Mink. Her hat was an English model by Otta Lucas of London, fedora shaped, in chamois beaver felt, touched with taupe mousseline. Her other accessories matched her ensemble. She wore a corsage of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained in Brockville at three miscellaneous showers, one at the home of Mrs. Stewart Empey, with Mrs. Howard White and Mrs. Ellis Empey as co-hostesses, one at the home of Mrs. Robert Hardy, with Miss Nancy Mitchell and Mrs. Roy Franks as co-hostesses, also one by the staff of Leeds and Grenville Health Unit with Miss Eleanor Earle, supervisor, as hostess. Mrs. Joseph Hudson, Lyn, entertained the bride to a kitchen and pantry shower and Mr. and Mrs. George Smith entertained several friends in honor of the bridal couple at their home. In Stirling, Mrs. Don Williams was hostess to a miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Grant Sunley and Mrs. Robert McCullough as co-hostesses.

Guests attending the wedding from Gloversville, N.Y.; Miami, Florida; Kingston; Toronto; Brockville; St. Annes; Ottawa; Belleville; Trenton; Waterloo; Plainfield and Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are residing at 29 James Street East, Brockville. The bride is a public health nurse with the Leeds and Grenville Health Unit and the bridegroom is associated with his operation of the family dairy.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Joseph O'Shaughnessy are pictured following their recent marriage in the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption, Cobourg. The bride is Mary Martin, daughter of Mr. Cyril Martin, of Ottawa, and the late Mrs. Martin. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Shaughnessy, of Belleville. O'SHAUGNESSY — MARTIN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the setting for a very pretty wedding recently when Joyce Ellen Martin, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. Cyril Martin of Ottawa, and the late Mrs. Martin, was united in marriage to Michael Joseph O'Shaughnessy, of Belleville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Shaughnessy. The Rev. Peter Ambrose officiated before a background of white chrysanthemums and snapdragons. White satin bows marked the guest pews.

Miss Margaret Grant presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, in his rendition of "Ave Maria." "Purple Angelus" before the ceremony, and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father Mr. Cyril Martin, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon with fitted bodice having a scalloped square neck-line at the front and slightly raised at the back, with long fitted sleeves ending over the wrists. The full skirt flowed into a long panel at the back, and train lace straight panel at the front. She wore a matching sequin and pearl-studded headdress with fingertip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses centred with white stephanotis and trailing ivy. Cultured pearl earrings completed the nuptial costume.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Christa Petit, of Guelph, Quebec, sister of the bride, was attired in shrimp-tinged nylon net, in strict-length featuring a boat-shaped neckline, matched bodice and full skirt accented by a bustle back caught with a rose shower. She wore a matching beaddress, gloves and shoes and carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of yellow and carnation pompons.

The bridesmaids, Miss Kathleen Lonergan of Trenton, cousin of the bride, Miss Betty Embury of Belleville and Miss Betty Scott of Stirling, were all attired alike in strict-length crystalette in Kelly-green, featuring fitted bodices with front bows, short sleeves and round necklines. Matching fedora headdresses, gloves and shoes, with single strands of pearls and matching earrings, the gifts of the bride, completed their ensembles. They carried crescent bouquets of white carnations.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Gail Caldwell of Ottawa, niece of the bridegroom, was gowned similarly to that of the maid of honor with matching headdress and mitts, and carried a basket of baby 'mums and snapdragons. Her flower girl, the gift of the bride, accompanied her.

Mr. Eugene O'Shaughnessy, of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while the ushers were Messrs. Douglas Karl Longman, Bill Sutherby, all of Belleville, and Hon. Rudolf of Ottawa, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Club Rooms, Bridge Street, where the bride's stepmother, wearing brown-tip brocaded taffeta in a fitted style with stiff neckline, beige accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests, who was assisted by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. William Caldwell, of Ottawa, gowned in beige wool with brown mink trim, brice accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was presided over by the bridegroom's mark, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of pink and white carnations and mistletoe. Tall lace with pink tulle and centered pink candelabra. Tall pink and white baskets completed the nuptial setting.

For motoring around Lake Ontario, the bride donned a black dahlkin suit with three-quarter jacket, white mink collar with white and black accessories and corsage of white 'mums. They are residing at 262 Dufferin Ave., Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Hull, Quebec, Brockville-Alymer, Thomasburg, Point Anne, Shannonville, Read, Stirling, Oshawa and Peterborough.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Ivan Embury, Belleville, with Mrs. J. I. Vesterfelt and Mrs. I. Embury as co-hostesses; at a miscellaneous shower at the lounge of the Bell Telephone, of which the bride is a member, and at a presentation of matching step-end tables.

Mr., Mrs. Frank Belnap Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

On November 24th, 1900, the wedding took place of Miss Grace Gowse and Mr. Frank Belnap, both of Ivanhoe.

They were married by the Rev. Percy Allison, minister of Ivanhoe Methodist Church, and were attended by Miss Mills, bridesmaid, and Mr. Mr. and Mrs. William Brickman who were married the same day at Rochester, with Miss Gertrude Gowse and Mr. Belnap doing the honors.

They were driven to Ameliasburg by Mr. Evan Thompson at the time kept a livery stable in Belleville, by a pair of white horses. Unfortunately the weather was very cold with much snow.

After the wedding they returned to the bride's home where a wedding supper was served, which was attended by a host of friends, who wished them many happy years ahead.

In church and the W.M.S. work both have been active workers. Mr. Belnap served on the board of directors for 25 years and Mrs. Belnap has been and still is a valuable member of the W.M.S., serving as a treasurer over the years.

They are remembered for their friendliness and hospitality, always ready to assist in helping others and working to better the community in which they have served a life time.

May their future years be filled with many of the good things of life.

Mr. Belnap has lived all his life on the homestead where he was born 72 years ago last February. Mrs. Belnap, who is 68, has been a life-long resident of this village. Mr. Belnap has one brother, Ed, of Belleville, and was sister, Mrs. Ida Belnap Clapp) of Belleville and the youngest sister, Myrtle, resides in the U.S.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Belnap have three daughters, Mrs. Pat (Dr.) Tweddle, Mrs. Jerry (Hilda) Bladon, Mass. and the youngest daughter, Don (Joy) Finkle, Belleville.

There are nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Fifty years later on Tuesday, November 24, their daughter, Mrs. Don Finkle, Belleville, held "open house" for the family when 25 sat down to a scrumptious turkey dinner. The centrepiece for the table was a money tree, decorated and every present held the gifts of their children and grandchildren, reading in nice parcel of money for the bride and bridegroom of 50 years ago.

Returning to their home later in the evening they found it invaded by neighbors and friends who came to pay tribute to this honored couple who have lived and served this community since childhood.

A large bouquet of flowers from their Massasaga friends graced the house earlier in the day. Potted plants from their friends and neighbors and a lovely setting, as this honored couple greeted their guests on arrival.

The bridesmaid of 50 years ago, Mrs. Willard Brickman of Trenton, was in attendance. All her old friends remembered Mrs. Brickman was organist of Rossmore church for many years.

Forty guests spent an evening reminiscing about the old times which they have shared over many years, with the exception of Mrs. Belnap's youngest sister, Myrtle, who was unable to be present.

The rest of their family was in attendance.

The gifts, cards, telephone calls and telegrams are too many to record here.

Guests were present from Trenton, Toronto, Oshawa and

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

PACK 2

Brown Owl Mrs. Watkin, Tawny Owl Mrs. Craighead and Mrs. Miles — Fairhaven Corners.

Tawny Owls are busily engaged with guessing pre-school element tests at Pack two, which makes this the home of Christ Church; also the Brownies are making great strides towards Golden Bars and Golden Hands. One hundred and fifty tulip bulbs have been carefully planted by Brownies hands in the gardens at the front of the Church as a "thank you" from the Pack to the Church which has been so kind over the years in letting the Brownies hold their weekly meetings in the Church Hall. These bulbs are part of the great "River of Tulips" which members of the Movement throughout Canada have planted to bloom next year — the Golden Jubilee of Guiding in Canada. Pack 2 is very grateful to Mr. Ryland, the Church Verger for his kindness in helping the Brownies with this project. The Pack has another project too which is keeping everyone busy. They are making and selling very attractive Christmas and gift enclosure cards, the proceeds from which will be their donation towards the building of the much needed and anticipated new Canada Guide Headquarters in Toronto.

PACK 3

Brown Owl Mrs. Bongard — Pack 4 meets at Prince of Wales School, to which they also have donated a "thank-you" of gold cup and saucer. Fifteen Brownies and nine twenties eagerly await by their weekly meetings, and as this is a hall Pack there are always some scold-le twenties just a little impatiently waiting their turn to join Brenda Dack a Brownie from England who welcomed several Brownies before finally being transferred to Middleton Park, and the Pack hopes perhaps to see her again at some Brownie Revel. Each girl planted paper white narcissus bulbs in their containers which they took home to keep for the Christmas season — and to watch the wonderful growing process! Recently Mrs. Houlet was welcomed into the Pack where she showed her excellent collection of slides taken of the Pack last year, and also some of her trip to England and Wales, and of the Queen's visit to Kingston. This afternoon, topped off with one of Mrs. Houlet's wonderfully told stories, and then a wiener roast in Brown Owl's back yard was a very special one for the Pack. Four Brownies who had earned their Brownie Wings flew up to Company 2 in a special ceremony. Look for more about this in the Company 2 news!

PACK 4

Brown Owl Miss Shantz, Tawny Owls Miss Argile and Miss Dennis — Shelburne. A welcome to a new pack at the OSD this season. Pack 4 is the one very large pack was operated as two last year, but now the second pack has its own Brown Owl, its own number, meeting place and "bed-time food — and we are very happy that as a result a few more girls will be able to join the fun. Last week the Brownies gave a very warm welcome to Mrs. D. G. Diamaddies, Division Commissioner, and Mrs. R. Ross, District Commissioner, who were very happy to see so many eager Brownies!

PACK 11

Brown Owl Miss Fox, Tawny Owls Miss Dorothy Arnold and Cockburn — Pack 11 is happy to welcome two brand new Tawny Owls this year, and also, with Pack 16, is enjoying the thrill and adventure of having evening meetings — not very late in the evening, mind you, but there is something very exciting about going out to a Brownie meeting when the stars are out! As a matter of fact star-gazing was part of a recent meeting when everyone went out on the campus to find the North Star. It was a job too, as the big Dipper, which usually points so clearly to the North Star, was that evening peeping shyly behind a tree and didn't look like itself at all! Division Commissioner Mrs. D. G. Diamaddies, and District Commissioner Mrs. Bettle also visited Pack 11 for part of its meeting that evening and enjoyed being included in the star-gazing, and in the games which followed.

PACK 16

Brown Owl Mrs. Sisler, Tawny Owl Mrs. Green — Pack 16 welcomed four new Twenties this fall, Wendy Green, Susanne Hopwood-Jones, Diane Wilson and Diane Wheeler. The Pack is also very pleased to have a new helper this year — Mrs. Rack, who has been devoting most of her time to helping Brownies with handicraft. At the present time they are working on clown dolls to give to the children at the Home for Mentally retarded Infants at Plainfield, and Brownie hands are busily putting hundreds and hundreds of stitches into the very nice good worn. Each Brownie has planted two Golden Jubilee Tulips in front of their meeting place, the Parkdale Community Centre. The completed shape being in the form of a Trefoil. A very timely recent meeting the pack had was based on the Alice in Wonderland story. After eating a cookie which magicked everyone (grown-ups too) into being small enough to pass through a Magic Door, a group of Brownies made a dress for Alice, another group made presents for Alice, another group composed a poem for Alice and still another group set a table for Alice. After sleeping a singing game it was time for these tiny folks to eat another cookie, which made everyone grow back to normal size again and come back to reality. Don't you think you'd seen there too? Some Brownies from this pack flew up to Guides just recently, too, and you may read an account of it in the Company 2 news.

1ST AVONDALE PACK

Brown Owl Mrs. Isenson, Tawny Owl Mrs. Denike. The 1st Avondale Pack waved goodbye to some of their number who were moving last Spring, and then this Fall were happy to welcome several Brownies from other places who had come to live close to the Pack meeting place which is the Avondale School. Since then they will be Golden Tulips blooming in the Spring — a "thank-you" gift from the 1st Avondale Brownies to their community. Five Twenties have just been enrolled, and they are Christy Haig, Penny Berg, Ann Christine Morquodale, Susan Schaefer and Evelyn Terry. On the day of their enrolment Tawny Owl was unexpectedly and to her great disappointment, unable to be there, and both Brown Owl and the Pack were very grateful to Christy's mother, Mrs. Haig, who had come to see her daughter enrolled, and stayed to help out!

COMPANY 2

Captain Mrs. Street, Lieutenant Mrs. Wilcox, Company 2, Pack 2 — Captain and Lieutenant and kindly assisted by Mrs. Pinnell, off on a seasonal flying start with a registration of thirty-one Guides. After Patrol — in — Council meetings and a Court of Honor it was decided to hold a company election for two new Patrol Leaders, and the Linda Guest and Janette Wilson were elected. Also planned by the Patrol Leaders was a Hallowe'en party which turned out to be a huge success, with everyone the Guiders included, in costume. After a grand march, a prize was awarded to Elizabeth Rice for the best costume, while Sandra Windall received a prize for the funniest get-up. Box lunches were shared, buffet style, with plenty for all, besides dancing to a record-player operated by Mr. Wilcox, who also acted as judge, each patrol contributing to the entertainment with songs, a game, a skit and a clarinet solo. Last, but not least, Mr. Wilcox, with his guitar, rendered song hits such as "A Pretty" which, in the judge by the "screams" of approval, was the favorite. Everything is in a cake — Topal All the Guides have been working hard at their various duties, and many of them took advantage of a day off school to do some outdoor work — for which opportunity a big thank you Mrs. Steenburg who assisted Captain with the teaching and testing. Mary recently a Flying Up ceremony took place when Brownie Pack flew up to the Guide Company. This was a wonderful evening, for to celebrate such an important occasion, a party was arranged to follow the ceremonies, and thus three Guides — Ruth Ann Chapman and Marie Taylor, earned their Hostess badges. Several parents and friends were present and one lucky Brownie was fortunate in that her Grandmother was there to watch her Fly Up Guides! Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Bedford. Local Association members for Belleville West, Lieutenant Miss Carroll and Mrs. Kostich — After the flying ceremonies of summer camping under energetic captain in which almost half the company, as well as many Guides from Company 2 took part. Company 2 got off to an early outdoor start with a hike to a various outdoor tests. Later on an election for new patrol leaders was held, with the following results: Lily Pedwell, Karen Lindsay; Forest — me — not, Meryl Wright; Rocky Patrol, Cheryl Deline; Trillium, Erin Feather stone; Daffodil, Joyce Hammond, Carol Linsell, Elinor Andrews are secretaries.

Company 2's tulips were donated to the division display for the city, and Karen Belcher, along with Elizabeth Rice of Company 2, Number Brown of Pack 2 and Mary Lee Duggan, Pack 4, represented Belleville West in helping plant some of the bulbs at the Cenotaph Pack.

1ST. CARMEL COMPANY

Captain Mrs. Hiram Howe — Having enjoyed a happy camp with their cousins in nurse and Cadets and Guides of Company 2 this summer, the 1st Carmel Guides were enthusiastic about starting regular meetings this fall, and got off to a good start with three new recruits. Due to illness of their captain they had three weeks from the District Commissioner in rather quick succession, the first of which was a very happy occasion when captain feeling chipper once more, the Guides and girls were enrolled as Guides. Those enrolled were Cynthia Howes, Linda Hamilton and Gloria Sinclair. The Guides took part in Remembrance Day services at Centreville the next Sunday since then have been busy with Guide work and

COURTESY AND SHOPPING

Perhaps a check list of courtesy points might help some of our salespeople, for realize why ruffled tempers so often punctuate their day in the store. With only a short time until Christmas, the path might be made a little less bumpy during the rush if the issue is faced honestly.

Do you serve your customers with a take-it-or-leave-it attitude? Or do you greet them with a smile, listen attentively to what they have to say, and then try cheerfully to find the article they are looking for? If you fail to find it, do you try to force a substitute, remarking that what you are showing is, after all, the latest thing? The inference here is that the customer is showing lack of taste if she is not interested.

Do you deluge your customer with endearments and honeyed words, and then turn haughty when something you offer is refused, stating in a superior manner that "we believe" in this article?

If you know full well that you haven't in stock the particular thing the customer is seeking and nothing similar that might be acceptable, do you explain this regretfully, leaving her in a mood to return at a future time? Or do you try to stuff something down her throat that she obviously doesn't want?

Do you train yourself to greet your customer with a smiling "May I help you?" and then show a gracious willingness to really help her find that gift for Aunt Minnie? Do you keep your temper, even though the customer has no idea what she wants to give Aunt Minnie and wastes a half hour of your time trying to make up her mind? Or do you let it goes without saying that great fortitude is needed when a particularly difficult customer descends on the defenseless salesgirl, demanding to see this and that, and, after being shown everything in the place, ends up not with the comment that "she was just looking"

Now let's take a look at the other side of the fence. We customers talk so much about the insolence and inefficiency of salespeople that I wonder if we realize that too often we, ourselves, are responsible. I did a little experimenting last week. I stopped at a glove counter where the clerks were rushed to death. Each customer was loudly convinced that it was her turn to be waited on next. One woman kept up a running chant to the effect that she'd been waiting ten minutes, twelve minutes, fifteen minutes.

The saleslady at my end of the counter was obviously tired out and nervous. She didn't even look at me when I said "Hand medium size seven." But when I said, "Don't rush, I can wait," she stopped dead in her tracks, and turned around with a bewildered, incredulous look. I grinned at her and, after a minute, she grinned back. That smile on her face was one of the most rewarding things I ever hope to see.

All of this only goes to prove that lack of time doesn't excuse lack of courtesy. There's plenty of room on both sides of the counter for improvement. If the salesperson and the customer will only remember that "courtesy begets courtesy," there will be fewer frazzled nerves during this Christmas shopping season.

Question: We have been asked to spend Christmas with some friends of ours. They are entertaining for us at dinner and then we're going on to a dance afterwards on Christmas eve. I am wondering if my husband should present our hostess with a corsage for the occasion. — Mrs. L.

Answer: It is not obligatory in this instance that he do so. It would, however, be a very gracious gesture. I suggest that, if he does present your hostess with a corsage, it would be fitting that he also present you with one.

EARLY CHRISTMAS — Three-year-old Fernande Denomme is too excited with meeting Santa Claus to question why Christmas has arrived so early. Because Fernande has a liver condition known as biliary disease and may die any day, Santa turned his sleigh toward her suburban home following his annual parade in downtown Hamilton, bringing her a doll and carriage she had been wanting. There was a Christmas tree and candies and presents from neighbors also. Fernande, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Denomme, has spent two-thirds of her life in hospital. The Judge Was On Time

by Mary Moore

The Ontario Department of Agriculture sponsored an apple contest in the Owen Sound-Collingwood-Barrie area for high school pupils. I was asked to be one of the judges.

I had to drive a long way to do this and I went through a snow storm, fog, icy roads, and ended up in the ditch but, thank goodness, right side up.

At that moment a driver's truck came along, stopped, and two cattlemen piled out of their truck, and hauled me out of my car intact. It was deep in some loose gravel so I locked it, jumped into the cattle truck between the two big men and they drove me the remaining fourteen miles to Thornbury and I was exactly on time.

It was a sight that warmed my heart. Their ages were thirteen to seventeen. Some were little apple-cheeked beauties with pony tails. Others were plump with apple-appliqued aprons. All were dead in earnest with their minds on winning honor for their schools and taking home the $50.00 first prize.

Jay Laws, Home Economist from Toronto, Frances Denney, Women's Editor of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record and I had to make the choices, and we tasted and judged fourteen apple pies. And I still like apple pie!

I want to give you the recipes for the pies that won first, second and third prizes, so I will start today and give you the other two on Wednesday.

I would advise you to make each one precisely as the young bakers have done. Thus you will learn new or different ideas and may just find something that will improve your apple pie technique.

MARGARET DORAN'S FIRST PRIZE APPLE PIE:

Margaret is from Meaford and is seventeen years old.

Preheat oven to 375 deg. Fahr. Sift together 2 cups all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1-3 cup shortening, 1-3 cup butter. Sprinkle with 4 or 5 tablespoons ice water. Mix lightly with a fork. Form in two balls. Roll pastry and line a 9 pie plate. Slice 6 or 7 pecled Spy apples. Put in pie alternated with sugar and spice — 1 cup sugar; 1-4 teaspoon apple pie spice (see note below). Bake at 475 deg. for 25 minutes, then turn to 425 deg. and bake for 10 minutes longer.

NOTE:

Apple Pie Spice is a subtle blend of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and cardamon. Use only 1-4 teaspoon.

Dinner Menus

MONDAY

Fortunately!

.S. Govt. Screens Mail, eeds Out What It Considers o Be Dangerous Propaganda

By STANLEY MESSLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the big days of the 19th century the forceful diplomacy of Metternich tried to stop pamphlets and the French revolution from riding the mail boxes of its time.

Times then, in sporadic moments of crisis, the United States government has continued to seek out and weed out what considers foreign or dangerous propaganda. Such moments have been in the civil war days, during the two world wars, and now in the cold war.

But the present little - known program, a joint effort by the post office department and the Treasury bureau, is a far cry from the strict censorship of the first three lawsuits have been filed against it.

Under the program, the customs bureau checks foreign mail for articles—mail as it enters the U.S. If translators and inspectors decide the mail contains foreign Communist propaganda, the post office generally holds it up and sends a notice to the addressee.

The notice says the propaganda would normally be considered non-mailable but the addressee may receive it if he signs an enclosed form. By signing it, the addressee states that he ordered, subscribed to, or desires the material. Many do not sign, and the post office destroys the unclaimed material.

NO LEGAL BASIS

No law details this procedure. It is based instead on a finding of Attorney - General Robert H. Jackson in 1940, handed down after the post office department had seized large shipments of Nazi propaganda. His ruling involved a complicated interweaving of the Espionage Act of 1917 and the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938.

After the war the program lay dormant. But the start of the Korean War prompted congressmen to put pressure on the customs bureau and the post office to do something about an increasing influx of Communist mail. The Jackson procedures were revived.

Under the Jackson theory, the post office may destroy all foreign propaganda—Communist or not—without giving the addressee a chance to sign a form requesting it, or without even telling him about it. And until this year the program operated much that way.

The present system of notifying the addressee was started recently by Herbert B. Warburton, the new general counsel of the post office.

CHAOTIC ASPECTS

At the start, the current program had chaotic aspects. The post office and the customs bureau went after propaganda without much advance preparation. They did not even have a set of rules of procedure that the public could read.

On one occasion the customs bureau handed a Russian-English dictionary to a St. Paul employee who could not speak Russian. His task: To wade through a warehouse of Soviet material and pull out all items containing Communist propaganda.

With such procedures, errors of judgment were easy. The government confiscated, among other material, a Soviet book titled Chess for Beginners, German-language editions of the works of Karl Marx, the Soviet newspaper Pravda, an anti - church book in England, the London Economist, and a children's story by Sholom Aleichem.

Universities, libraries, political scientists and reporters discovered that important Russian books and newspapers, needed in their work, were not reaching them. One scholarly magazine, a typical review, for example, did not receive any Russian mathematical publications for a year.

COMPLAINT BARRAGE

Complaints descended upon the post office and the customs bureau. Under the barrage, procedures were gradually changed until the present system evolved.

In the main, only Communist propaganda coming from behind the Iron Curtain is held up now. But the post office releases most of it to anyone who signs a form. The chief exception: Bulk shipments of Communist propaganda. The department destroys them.

The department admits its system is dangerous to let subversive, Communist propaganda reach the American public and it is foolish to subidize it by using the mails at low rates. But critics say this puts the federal government in the business of deciding which opinions are fit for Americans to hear, and that anyone asked to sign a statement that he desires Communist mail may listen to the requirement as a form of intimidation.

Attacks by the American Civil Liberties Union are testing the legality and constitutionality of the customs and postal procedures.

Perth and Huron Counties Vote Today on Whether They Want Liquor Legally

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Residents of Perth and Huron counties go to the polls today to decide whether they want their liquor and beer sold legally under controls, or not sold at all.

The two counties are the only ones in Canada that still prohibit liquor and beer sales under the Liquor Control Act, passed in 1878 under a provision of the British North America Act.

The county residents — about 30,000 are eligible to vote — will mark their ballots either for or against revocation of the old act. The question has caused a vigorous pre - referendum campaign that hasn't just been a matter of wet versus dry.

CONTROLS BIG ISSUE

The morals of drinking haven't been neglected. But the big bone of contention is control.

The Perth-Huron plebiscite say the only way to control drinking is to outlaw it, although its legal and regulated sales.

The anti - revolutionists say liquor and beer are liquor consumed and the more outlets there are the more liquor and beer will be consumed. They say the best situation when liquor can't be sold and all that's needed is effective prosecution of bootleggers and an educational job on the act that will prevent minors from drinking.

The pro - liquor forces say the only way to control drinking is to control liquor through its legal and regulated sales.

LOCAL OPTION

Provincial legislation, which would immediately take force if the old act is revoked, says that the matter of sales up to local option or beer by direct stringent penalties for selling or supplying liquor to minors, consuming liquor in cars or public places, drunkenness, bootlegging and illegal possession.

John E. Hutchins of Goderich, chairman of the Huron Citizens' Legal Control Committee, says voters are running wild and embarrassing police.

Make Jakarta Closed Town For Foreigners

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Military authorities Sat. declared the Indonesian capital a closed town for aliens "in the interests of public order and security." The Antara news agency reported.

A city parkview spokesman said the ban will not apply to children under 16 who with to join their parents already in the city.

It will affect foreigners planning to live here permanently or temporarily. He said violators would be subject to up to three years in prison.

Some other towns in west Java also were reported closed to aliens.

The order follows conflicts over Indonesia's ban on foreign retail traders, mostly Chinese, from the country's rural areas.

The ban on traders is due to come into effect at the end of the year. The Indonesian army recently ordered foreign Chinese to quit their homes in west Java villages and go to cities and towns "for security reasons."

Code of Ethics Designed To Guide Buyers, Cut Down Misleading Ads Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—Drafting of a code of ethics designed to guide buyers and cut down misleading advertising is proposed by the royal commission on food price spreads.

Its report, made public today urges that the Association of Canadian Advertisers in co-operation with the food industry draw up and administer such a code.

The commission says characteristics of a "defence of the sovereignty of the consumer" and of the widest possible choice are the part of the consumer.

The report makes a number of findings about the growth of advertising—spending on it rose almost 600 per cent between 1926 and 1957—and about the proportion 11 cents of every dollar added to the cost of food after it leaves the farm—almost five per cent in 1926 and more than double the 1949 proportion.

FACILITATE PURCHASE

Dr. Andrew Stewart, commission chairman told a press conference that the idea behind this and other proposals for consumer protection is that "consumer sovereignty" is served by measures which facilitate informed choice.

"... If the increase in the price spread of food products is to be checked, or slowed, new legislation and the administration of policies under existing laws should be directed more by the criteria of the general or consumer welfare."

On the basis of this philosophy, the commission makes 14 recommendations:

1. A consumers' office in the justice department to which the views and representations of consumers will be taken and which would publicize measures to protect consumers and make them available to them.

2. Continued efforts by government departments in co-operation with the trade towards more information available, standardization of container sizes and simplification of grading.

3. Where stamp plans are in effect, the retailer be required to offer the buyer a specified cash discount as an alternative.

MAJOR EXPENSE

The fivefold rise in advertising expenditure as food moves from farm to shopping basket was by far the greatest increase in all the things added to the food marketing bill although it represented only five per cent of the total bill.

Advertising spending increased considerably at different stages of the marketing process but the food processors' share of total advertising rose steadily in the period 1926 to 1957 and declined in 1957.

At the same time, the relative importance of advertising by wholesalers and retailers declined. Among the retailers, food chains increased their advertising over the 31 years more than did retailers.

Against this background, the commission commented particularly on the growth of television advertising and on advertising rates in newspapers, popular magazines and business publications.

TV accounted for the greatest part of the increase in total advertising spending, due partly to the extensive and rapid coverage of TV in the 1950s. Rates for advertising in publications rose moderately in the period.

HELPS ECONOMY

In general, the commission said, advertising, by obtaining public acceptance of new products, contributes to the growth of the economy. Simple and direct advertising added to the convenience and welfare by enabling him to make informed choices in disposing of new incomes.

But the commission expressed reservations about some forms of advertising. All were agreed that false advertising should be prevented.

"Misleading" advertising and promotion are a cause for complaint. It would be interesting to know the total expense involved in advertising by competing firms to assume consumers their product is the best.

"The ultimate misconception to which people can be led is that anything in the market is 'free'."

Consumers might never find out whether they were being misled by being induced to buy something said to be better.

The commission was reluctant to accept the argument that "better informed consumer they are misled, the lesser is to use better judgment next time. With new products the consumer had no way of knowing, until after buying, whether she wants it.

"For this reason, we feel that any argument that condones misleading advertising indicates cynical disregard for the welfare of the consumer."

Regarding labelling and packaging, the report said complaints were expressed that multiplicity of packaging, varieties and brands confuse the consumer.

The commission's view was that [illegible] is generally valuable to the consumer more choices. But in the case of the great variety of offerings the public welfare and the consumer's welfare is assured "only if and to the extent that merchant accepts his clear responsibility to assist the consumer to make informed choices among the alternatives offered."

Certain simple ways of doing this at little or no additional cost to the merchant included restricting the identification of price, clear marking of volume and weight of contents and clearly recommended consistently applied and meaningful grades of quality.

The commission drew attention to a section of the Food and Drugs Act which says no one shall label, package, treat, process, sell or advertise any food in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive or likely to create an erroneous impression regarding its character, value, quantity, composition, merit or safety.

RECOMMENDS PROPOSAL

The report commends the government's proposed amendment to the act which seeks to prevent sale or use of an article through misleading representation of its character, composition, merit or quality.

The commission also commends the establishment of a consumer section in the justice department is another step in consumer education, the commission says government efforts to effect more effective ways of informing consumers of particular groups without regard to their membership in highly organized and inarticulate body of consumers.

"... The welfare of the consumer cannot be assumed to be adequately represented by large industrial organizations."

The consumer section of Consumers could act as a channel of communications but both it and the justice department [illegible] would be helped if there were some office to which particular representations could be taken.

A function of the office would be to see that these were dealt with as speedily as possible by the appropriate branch of government. It also would publicize measures to protect consumers or consumer protection and services available to the consumer.

The commission said it had in mind a document similar to that published in Britain, entitled Consumer Protection and Guidance No. 1, which this consumer office would publish.

DIDN'T LIKE NOISE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Thomas Mannion, a steel construction worker who loves quiet Sundays, told police: "I like to sleep late enough—I was fed up. That's why, he said, he fired two pellet shots at 18-year-old Robert Valdez. They struck a window of the fender of his hot rod in front of his car across the street and below Mannion's second floor apartment. One bullet grazed the head of Valdez. A second pierced the car's roof. Police charged Mannion with suspicion of attempted manslaughter.

Says Rich Group Plotted to Make Captive of FDR

NEW YORK (AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. says some wealthy Americans plotted to make a captive of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in the time of his third-term election in 1940.

In an autobiography published today, Vanderbilt says rich industrialists and others who met around fashionable dinner tables in New York, Newport and Washington conspired to get "that loan" out of the White House by hook or crook.

"I use the word conspiracy," Vanderbilt writes, "I really am talking of a plot or a seething, long-discussed plan to — shall I say — capture the president."

A precipitating motive, Vanderbilt says, was to prevent Roosevelt from interfering with preparations for large profits in the developing war crisis.

Vanderbilt, a writer, an associate of Roosevelt, and a member of a wealthy society family, says he became privy to discussions among the anti-Roosevelt financial group that "really mattered."

But he says they never went beyond talk and that he was allowed to tip them off that Roosevelt and the FBI knew about it.

The FBI had no comment to make. It has confirmed all the story in Vanderbilt's book, Man of the World: My Life on Five Continents. But U.E. Baughman, chief of the secret service which protected presidents, said he has never heard of such a plot.

Neither commented on that at the time Vanderbilt says the plot was made. Frank J. Wilson, now retired, also said he had no recollection of such a scheme.

UN Will Stage Algerian Debate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN opens debate on Algeria's bid for freedom from the French-French talks on how to end the Algerian revolution.

Tunisia's delegate Mongi Slim was to be the first speaker in the debate in the General Assembly's political committee.

The French served notice they would boycott the debate, contending Algeria is an internal French problem and the UN is forbidden to intervene in domestic matters.

But Algerian rebel representatives planned to attend the debate under rights provided by the Tunisian delegation. They also hoped the discussion would prompt France to give a clear answer to their latest offer to settle the Algerian political future, instead of discussions of a military cease-fire only that has been offered.

LIGHTNING KILLS SEVEN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Seven Negroes were killed and two seriously injured when lightning struck through a window and spread along the whole length of a building near here Sunday. A baby died in the arms of a woman who was killed suffered no injuries at all.

Royal Commission Recommendations

OTTAWA (CP)—Specific recommendations of the royal commission on food prices include:

Extend combines investigations into food buying practices including contracts between buyers and primary producers and into food industry practices, and publish the results.

A permanent and independent commission on prices, productivity and income to review the food industries and report yearly to the federal cabinet.

Require private companies to report financial operations to the federal government under the Companies Act, as is required of public companies.

Where retailers give trading stamps, require them to offer the consumer as an alternative a specified cash discount on purchases.

As a protection to consumers, draft a code of ethics by the advertisers in co-operation with the food industry, to guide advertisers and reduce misleading advertising.

Continue efforts by government in co-operation with the trade towards more informative labelling, standardization of container sizes and simplification of grading.

An office in the justice department to which consumers could make complaints and which would gather and publish information on consumer protection legislation and on services available to aid consumers.

A firm stand by government in defence of a stable domestic price level and public support of policies aimed at this.

Develop an approach to statistics designed to detect areas of industry where efficiency is increasing most rapidly, requiring a closer look at operation of firms in particular industries.

A federal fair trade practices act to be used, where provinces agree, for the fish marketing arrangements similar to compulsory agricultural marketing boards.

As a long-term measure, limit any share of the consumer dollar, federal incorporation of farm co-operatives.

More complete information on operations of small enterprises.

More attention to improving statistics on data on incomes derived from productive services.

Assistance by government to establish a fish grading system defining size and quality conditions or quality raw fish and similar grade definitions for products processed and sold by fishermen.

As part of a bureau of statistics effort to improve measurement of incomes, provide information on total incomes of fishermen, including earnings from all other occupations.

Better statistics for owners of small businesses.

Coordinate information on retail and wholesale trade and on manufacturing.

Continue a program to improve statistics for Newfoundland fisheries and integrate them into the general fisheries statistics of Canada.

Marketing Services, Higher Prices for Services Cause Of Wide Gap in '49-57 Period

OTTAWA (CP)—The widening gap between the price paid to the farmer for most food products and the price paid by the consumer resulted from more marketing services and higher prices for those services in the 1949-57 period, the price spreads commission said today.

The royal commission, reporting to the government on a two-year study of food price spreads, said the widened farm-retail gap in 1952, narrowed for the next two to three years and stretched out again in the period from 1954 to 1957.

For 20 basic food commodities it lists the following percentages the farm share of the retail price:

	1949	1957
Beef	63.9	55.7
Pork	57.9	55.7
Fluid Milk	54.5	47.5
Evaporated whole milk	61.8	41.4
Process cheese	53.5	36.4
Butter	76.3	77.4
Chicken broilers (1953-1957)	61.7	57.5
A-large eggs	61.3	57.4
Wheat-flour	49.0	34.2
Rolled oats	10.2	10.0
Potatoes	47.2	47.2

The commission says that, in some cases these figures are deceptive. In the case of beef, the rapid rise in the price between the two years was due to the fact that the prices were at different stages of a cycle variation in production and prices.

OTHER PRODUCTS

On the widening gap in the other products the report has these comments:

Pork—The main factor in the widening spread "seems to have been the increased amount of processing and packaging particularly for the smoked or cooked pork products."

Fluid milk—Increased processing and delivery costs, particularly payrolls and containers, appeared to have been the main reasons for the widening spread.

Cheese — the widening spread was due mainly to the addition of more processing services, such as cutting into smaller sizes or slices, and to more packaging and advertising.

Butter — the spread narrowed. The commission reports absorbed some butter marketing costs.

Eggs—the spread widened substantially due mainly to increasing costs of grading and wholesale selling.

Cereals—prices to producers declined but flour and bread prices rose. Increases in the cost of milling into-flour widened substantially but not nearly as fast as the spread on wheat-into-flour because of the rise in milling costs came from the increased amount of consumer-like packaging. The gap widened between the 50 per cent mainly due to higher labor, packaging, promotional and delivery expenses.

Potatoes—higher labor costs of packaging, piling, transportation costs and constant per cent charges for wholesale and retail on a rising farm price helped widen the spread.

Canned fruits — increased processing costs were the main factor in the greater spread.

Canned peas—increased wholesale and retailing charges extended the spread.

Frozen vegetables and fruits—supply has been increasingly plentiful. Increased freezer space in retail outlets and keen competition from other frozen foods exerted a downward pressure on prices.

Apples—longer and more expensive storage, higher packing house costs due to higher wages and a multiplicity of containers, higher freight costs and more advertising and promotion were at work in widening the price spread faster than for any other commodity studied.

"It's more than he'd want to pay, but ha-ha I'll take it."

16 Accidental Deaths Recorded During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic mishaps, most on icy roads during poor driving conditions, were responsible for all accidental deaths in Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday until midnight Sunday showed that the deaths occurred in Ontario—seven in collisions and one by carbon monoxide poisoning while a truck was stuck in a ditch.

There were four deaths in Quebec, two in Nova Scotia and one each in Manitoba and Alberta.

The toll includes accidents connected with all forms of holiday activity.

ONTARIO LIST

The Ontario dead:

Ewald J. Klaus, 45, and his wife Audrey, 46, of Sunderland, Friday night when their car collided with a transport truck three miles south of Cobalt.

George Steven Thomas, 43, of Odessa, Saturday when his car ran off a highway near Kingston and overturned three times.

Mrs. Bruce Mitchell, 32-year-old mother of four, of Hillside Centre, when her car left a highway 26 miles south of Owen Sound and overturned Sunday.

Cindy Hope, 18, of Carleton Place, early Saturday in a car crash five miles south of her home in which three other teenagers were injured.

Lawrence Hayes, 29, of Toronto, Saturday when hit by a car while walking on a city waterfront street.

PANEL TRUCK FATALITIES

Emery Bonter, 62, of Caledonia, Sunday when a panel truck went out of control on a curve near the village and plunged into a ditch.

James Sunday as he sat in his steel tractor cab in a field near South Pengrupie. A companion, Velma Hickman, 15, was injured.

Couple was found frozen and dead Sunday by Joe Hopkins, a passing motorist. Police have taken to hospital, is described as being in good condition.

Perpetual Price War Among Stores Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Spokesmen for supermarket companies in Toronto today denied the suggestion of the royal commission on price spreads that there is too much price war and too much competition and too little profit in the food business.

Scott Ingram, vice-president of Dominion Stores Limited, said there is "a perpetual price war" among food retailers and it has cut the supermarkets' profits to a point where they are down to about half that of manufacturers.

An official of Loblaw Groceterias Limited, who asked that his name not be used, declared that promotion expenditures have become very high.

Mr. Fagan said contests and giveaways have a legitimate place when introducing new lines, new products, or in connection with events that are of public interest on a temporary basis.

AGREE ON ONE POINT

He agreed with the commission's finding that "firms who find themselves involved in the use of promotional devices that are unsatisfactory to them" should form an association and agreed limitation of these activities.

R. E. Logsdon, general manager of the Association of Canadian Advertising, said he could not understand why Sue Ford Industry had been singled out. The association already has a code of practice which it considers members to adhere to it.

Of all the national supermarket chains, only Dominion Stores Limited belongs to the advertisers association, he added.

The Loblaw spokesman said his firm spends about 1½ per cent of its sales on advertising. It would support any reasonable measure to prevent it in the industry.

SUBWAY TO BE ENLARGED

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow's 30-mile subway system will be increased by a further 34 miles before 1965 to serve the suburbs and outlying housing developments, the Soviet news agency Tass reports. The subway carries about 2,700,000 passengers daily.

Retailers Giving Trade Stamps Should Offer Buyer Choice Of Specified Cash Discount

OTTAWA (CP)—Retailers giving trading stamps should be required to offer the buyer the alternative of a specified cash discount, the royal commission on price spreads recommended today.

Reporting to the government on a two-year study of the spread in the price received by the food producer and that paid by the consumer, the commission said the consensus is that premiums and trading stamps are in self-defeating — gains in traffic, sales and profits are dissipated when competitors imitate the innovator.

Furthermore, such promotional devices had not increased the per consumption of individual Canadians.

The commission found that the cost of these "services" is passed along to the consumer. Dr. Andrew Stewart, commission chairman, said that "in moving in the direction of preventing food price increases, the commission believes that the services which are provided by food retailers with are the promotional services such as contests, giveaways and gimmicks".

OPPOSES GIMMICKS

Dr. Stewart in an interview that "gimmicks' means such things as towels or cutlery in soapflake packages and offering premiums to include stamp plans.

Such promotional devices were part of an 86-per-cent increase in the cost of marketing a basket of food between 1949 and 1958. Premiums and trading stamps accounted for a large part of the promotional expenses of food chains.

Stamp plans are in operation in most provinces but have been prohibited in Alberta, although Premier Fulton has said they are a provincial responsibility to deal with insofar as they affect merchandising devices. He has promised to place before the legislature in the criminal code prohibition against trading stamps that might endanger the currency or be fraudulent.

In addition to its recommendation on stamp plans, the commission also suggested:

1. "As an alternative to any possible limitation of promotional expenditures of food processing firms might elect, as they are permitted to do under present legislation, to pay patronage dividends similar to those paid to members and non-members of consumer co-operative organizations."

2. "Where prices continue to be controlled, as in the case of rent of return on investment, and no effort can be possible to effect a reduction in gross remuneration might be given to decrease the cost of the service and reasonable return on investment. Any such reduction in rent would be subject to a higher assessment."

ATTRACT TRADE

The basic aim of premiums and stamp plans, the commission said, is to attract and retain trade. Stamp plans reward customers for their patronage by giving them specified articles without monetary compensation to the retailer.

The commission said replies to questionnaires sent to food processors and distributors indicated a lack of agreement among retail chains as to the relative importance of premiums and stamp plans as promotional devices.

One big chain spent 75 per cent of its promotional budget on such devices while another spent nothing.

The commission said sp-cavities driving.

Not Impressed With System Of Democracy

OTTAWA (CP) — A Russian observer of Canadian affairs in Ottawa for six years, Vladimir Vasheshchenko, said Sunday he has been relieved meeting Canadians but is not impressed by their system of democracy.

The representative of Tass news agency, (which serves daily and weekly newspapers in the Soviet Union (was interviewed on the CBC's nationally - televised program News Magazine).

In good English he said he has been all of Canada's provinces and described the country as young and developing. In the cultured sphere he found Canada progressing, and he mentioned the National Ballet of Canada, theatres such as that at Stratford, and the formation during the 1958 session of the Canada Council.

He said that at no time did he have difficulty obtaining information of any kind for his work as a correspondent.

He said Canadian democracy has many limitations.

One of these is the difficulty experienced by political parties and newly-formed groups in getting such as the CCF was in its backward position because it wouldn't accept enough funds for campaigns, and its revenue from workers' dues was not sufficient.

In Russia, he said, candidates for legislatures were provided opportunities to campaign at meetings and through radio and newspaper advertisements. Russia has just one major political party— the Communist party.

Commission Members Split As to Chain Stores' Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a permanent and independent council to make a continuing review of prices, productivity and income in the food sector of the Canadian economy was proposed today by the royal commission on price spreads.

It recommended that the council be endowed with funds to enable it to act quickly independently for periods of five years. This was preferable to parliament voting funds period-ically or funds being provided by the government.

The council would present an annual report to the federal cabinet reviewing changes in food price prices and incomes which had occurred in the previous year. It would focus particular attention on changes in productivity and to situations in which increasing efficiency offers prospects of price reductions.

The commission said the council — similar bodies were established in Australia, New Zealand, United States and Britain—could

The fire, believed to have been started by a cigaret butt, was discovered by a tenant who aroused occupants to flee with only the clothes they were wearing.

Damage to the three-storey building was estimated at $33,-000.

Minor Hockey Notes

A couple of 1-0 shutouts featured the busiest minor hockey schedule games at Memorial Arena Saturday morning and, strange as it may seem, the same result got both.

Quinte blanked the Maple Leafs in the 10.45 game, with David Hurst getting the shutout in the Quinte nets. David Carr scored the lone goal with Bill Phillips assisting.

In the next game, at 11.15, the Mets shut out the Beavers 1-0 with David Hurst again in the winner's net. Allen Mott scored the only goal, unassisted.

Red Wings won a close 3-1 decision over the Canadiens. Robert Reddick and Jim McGuigan were the Wing scorers with Bill Dovey getting an assist. Frank Farrell scored for Canadiens. Fraser assisted.

Rangers downed the Black Hawks 3-1. Jack Boyle and Jack Thompson had a goal and assist each with Paul Bennett, John Burnett and Bill Leslie also scoring. Ethier drew one assist. Paul Stinson scored the Hawks marker with J. McGuire and Ingram helping.

Bytes racked up a 4-1 win over the Browns. Bill Goode'sslow had two goals, one unassisted to Hazlewall and Chambers, Dougherty and Muldoon got assists. Blakley tallied for the Browns.

Draft Day For College Football Stars

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 12 National Football League teams draft a total of 340 college players today and then set out to enlist the fledgling American Football League for their services.

Each NFL club selects 30 players. Acting commissioner Austin H. Gunsel, named to fill in for the late Bert Bell about a month ago, will preside.

AFL teams last week drafted most of the graduating stars sure to be named in today's NFL meeting. The NFL, in its 40th year, is hopeful its stability, its security and prestige it offers, as well as cash, will influence the stars to play in the established organization.

AFL teams, backed in most cases by millionaires, offer cash and a pitch that players signing with the new league have a better chance to make the grade. The AFL hopes to begin operations next season.

NFL teams will select according to the standings at the end of Sunday's games. Chicago Cardinals and Los Angeles Rams have 3-8 records, so one of them will get first pick and the other second. In the next round the order will be reversed.

Choosing after them, in order, will be Detroit Lions, Washington Redskins, Green Bay Packers, Pittsburgh Steelers either Chicago Bears, Philadelphia Eagles or Cleveland Browns, San Francisco 49ers or Baltimore Colts, and last, New York Giants.

Will Play 154 Game Sked

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —The International League Sunday adopted a 154-game playing schedule for 1960 with the season opening April 20 and ending Sept. 11.

Opening day pairing will be: Montreal at Columbus, Toronto at Richmond, Buffalo at Miami, Rochester at Havana.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the Triple-A circuit, said the league members, after listening to Havana owner Roberto Maduro, expressed their satisfaction with the Havana situation. There had been some talk Havana might be dropped from the league.

Shaughnessy said the league meets again Tuesday to discuss the amendments which will be voted upon at the regular minor league session Thursday.

Problems Face Minor Leagues Annual Confab

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —The minor leagues opened their annual convention today, faced with perennial bonus, player and money problems.

The agenda included 28 proposed amendments but for the first time in almost 30 years radio and television were not listed. The minors apparently have become resigned to the fact no relief measures against radio-TV network broadcasting into their territories are feasible as long as the United States Congress declines to pass control legislation.

Sharpest debates during the five-day sessions probably will centre around plans to set up an unrestricted draft of all minor leaguers and a free agent draft, similar to exist in the present first-year draft and another effort to establish a bonus rule that will work.

The first order of business, however, was the annual major league draft followed by the minors' own player selections.

Washington Senators, who have first call this year because of their last - place finish in the American League, were expected to draft Don Lee, 25-year-old right-hand pitcher who won 14 games and lost nine at Louisville in 1959. Philadelphia, last in the National League, had next call.

When all clubs have indicated no further plan to select, it becomes the minors' turn, starting with the leagues of triple - A classification.

Last year's draft elevated 30 players, 12 to the majors at a cost of $200,000 outlay. Only three remained in the big leagues all year.

Olympics

Inference Canadians Pros Disturbs Dutchies' Goman

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian sportsmen were disturbed Sunday night at a suggestion by two of the worlds top international sports officials that the Winter Olympics should be abolished by 1968.

Speaking in Geneva Sunday, Marc Hodler, president of the International Ski Federation, and Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, said the Winter Games are "too tainted with professionalism to be worthy of the Olympic tradition."

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and president-elect of the International Ice Hockey Association, challenged an inference that the Winter Games are more tainted that the summer games.

NOT YET PREPARED

"Certainly the IIHF is not prepared at the moment to recommend to the IOC that the Winter Games be abolished," he said.

However, Canada is having increasing difficulty in organizing representatives who can compete with other nations in the Winter Olympics.

"Olympic regulations cut down our scope considerably," Dudley said.

Both Mayer and Hodler stressed that any move to abolish the games would not affect the 1960 games at Squaw Valley, Calif., but Mayer said it is at least possible the 1964 Games at Innsbruck, Austria, might be the last of the series.

"If the sports federations would suggest the abolition of Winter Games I am sure the IOC would be only too delighted," he said.

"Most modern winter sports have no place in the Olympic Games and too Olympic idea as a whole would only gain in dignity if it were divorced from these sports."

Ernie Goman, business manager of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, Canada's hockey representatives for the 1960 Olympics, was disturbed by what he considered as obvious inference that the Canadian team is tainted with professionalism.

"I can see no reason why Mr. Hodler and Mr. Mayer should differentiate between winter and summer games," he said.

H. Rae Grinnel, president of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association's northern and southern zones, found the suggestion "most surprising."

"Our skiers never compete for monetary gain," he said. "It is only in the field of instructing that they receive any remuneration. I can see no reason why Mr. Hodler and Mr. Mayer included skiing in their report."

Indians Win Third in Row

Springfield Indians, whose American Hockey League lead was in jeopardy a week ago, today have a five-point margin.

Since Gump Worsley came down from New York Rangers to play goal they have posted three victories. After topping Hershey 7-4 last Wednesday, they turned back Cleveland Barons 3-2 Saturday and whipped Buffalo Bisons 5-0 Sunday night.

Providence Reds got back into winning stride Sunday night with a 4-2 victory over Cleveland and the third-place Rochester Americans dropped a little farther off the pace when Hershey won 3-1.

Floyd Smith got two goals in the first period at Springfield Saturday, Cleveland's Mike Laughead beat Worsley in the third period to make it 2-2, Dennis Olson added the third Springfield goal before Greig Hicks connected for the second Cleveland goal.

GYR KEPT SUNNY

Rookie goaltender Claude Cyr sent to the Barons from Hull-Ottawa of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, made 32 saves, Worsley 28.

Harry Pidhirny scored three consecutive goals and Worsley registered his first league shutout against the Bisons as Buffalo. Bruce Cline and Bill Sweeney scored the first and last Springfield goals.

Goals by Lorne Davis, Earl (Dinkey) Reibel, Pat Pasquale and Dan Pollicisi gave the Reds their win at Providence. Gregory McAvoy and Ed Mazur scored for Hershey.

At Rochester the first two Hershey goals came with the Americans a man short. Herb Brooks and Brian Smith scored them. Dave Creighton's goal while Hershey was a man short put Rochester back in contention, but rookie Ray Kinasewich of the Bears sewed it up with a 200-foot shot into the empty Americans' cage after goaltender Ed Chadwick was withdrawn in favor of a sixth attacker.

Canucks Hold 9-Point Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks leave on a prairies tour this week with a nine-point lead over their nearest Western Hockey League rivals.

Canucks opened their eight-game road trip at Seattle Sunday night and lost 4-2 to the Totems. On their last prairie tour, Canucks won only two of six games. With Seattle and Victoria Cougars tied for second place and both getting hot, Canucks need a better result from this tour to retain a healthy edge.

Totems' win pulled them back into a three-way tie with Victoria at 27 points apiece. Cougars beat Totems 3-1 Saturday. Spokane Flyers picked up a 5-2 victory over Calgary Stampeders to give them a tie for last place with Winnipeg Warriors at 17 points.

Seattle had a 3-0 edge over Vancouver going into the third period. Canucks scored to within one goal late in the frame but Tommy Wylie added their hopes by scoring in an empty net.

Bill MacFarland, Gayle Fleidge and Rudy Filion scored Seattle's other goals, Ray Cyr and Dave Balon replied for Canucks.

In Victoria, Doug MacAulay and Art Jones scored for Cougars. Totems' only reply came from Fielder.

Chuck Johnson led Spokane against Calgary with two goals. Ron Attwell, Mac Meiklok and Bev Bell counted the others for Comets while Lou Jankowski and Gordie Vyprava scored for Stampeders.

Sterling Hayden Talks of Trip To Tahiti With Four Children

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"One day out in the Pacific I sat alone with a book. I looked out on the horizon and I could see in my mind's eye—the boat I sailed to Tahiti when I was 22. And I remember all the dreams I had then, and how I had lost sight of them."

This was Sterling Hayden talking about his trip to Tahiti with his four children. The rugged idealist was back in Hollywood, but only briefly. He doesn't intend to lose sight of his dreams again.

"I'm taking the kids back up to Marin County, near San Francisco to live," he said over coffee. "I'll put them in school and then get squared away so I can settle down and write. I want to write about not only what has happened to me, but what is happening to this country."

The words come pouring forth from the tall blond actor. Some of them are bitter, but much of what he says makes sense. You get the picture of life-long rebel with a cause. The cause?

"I hate lies to see what America has become," he explained. "The philosophy now is 'gimme, gimme, gimme. I did take everything I can get as long as I don't have to be the pokey."

WRONG IMPRESSION

"It's not only in Hollywood. I didn't mean to give that impression when I landed in San Francisco: I was tired and not up to facing a press conference. Hollywood is only an extension of the prevailing philosophy.

"The same thing exists in every industry—television, subways, shipping. I was reading a maritime journal at sea and it said that Panama is the No. 3 nation in shipping tonnage. Why? Because freely American shippers won't go to evade paying taxes."

Hayden said it was his abhorrence of greed in Hollywood that triggered his departure.

"A big TV outfit came to me with a proposal," he recalled. "It would pay me big money and free abroad while I made a series. I could bank $125,000 clear every year for four years.

"All my salvators — the lawyers, business managers and others who surround a guy making $100,000 a year—told me to take it. That's when I mortgaged my boat for $15,000 and took off. I wasn't going to make my kids live in a foreign country while I made a lot of money working in a crummy, no-good TV series."

Why did he return from Tahiti?

NOT REAL DESTINATION

"As you know, I didn't intend to go there fi the first place," he said the was heading for Scandanavia, but didn't want to risk arrest at the Panama Canal on his former wife's contempt of court case.) "Tahiti was not a place I would have chosen to stay. It is strictly for those seeking escape—in the popular use of the word, but that's not for me.

"It was a rare experience for the children. But I didn't want them to stay there. They needed to come back to American authority. We have some stability in their lives."

He's proud of how the youngsters came through the experience: "They were 42 days on a small schooner. Some bone, without a woman to mother them. They did great. It was the calm on the voyage had been as malaria. It would have been a much pleasanter line."

Grammy Show Runs Into Some Snags But Good Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Historically, the Award Show (the giving of Oscars and Emmys) is a television format which has run the gamut from complete fiasco to plain dull.

It would seem, however, that a show where the makers of the world's best phonograph records are given statuettes and also repeat their winning performances would be a natural for a musical show. Unfortunately, the Grammy Show on NBC Sunday night ran into the same snags that slowed down and often stopped the earlier ones. There are those awkward moments of five grammys.

The "grammy" is a small golden replica of the old-fashioned sliding machine which is awarded by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. The show made 24 awards and presented a double handful of performing stars.

The producers did a handsome job of dressing up many of the numbers.

VAN CLIBURN MIXED UP

But there were also the long awkward moments. For instance, Van Cliburn came up the center so thoroughly in making some presentations that it was hard to tell whether Jack Moerlein and the Boston Symphony won a statuette or whether it was Roberta Peters and Morazt. But anyway, the Grammy people stopped all that rushing up from the audience and those breathless thanks to all the good people who made it all possible.

Who won? Lots of people including Ella Fitzgerald for best feminine vocal performance, Bobby Darin for the best record of the year (Mack the Knife) and the best new artist of the year, and Duke Ellington for the best musical composition of the year (Anatomy of a Murder).

Frank Sinatra's album, Come Dance with Me, won him two awards. John Horton got top billing for country and western performance with The Battle of New Orleans and Jimmy Driftwood was honored for writing it.

Best orchestral jazz performance was presented to Jonah Jones, and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir gave the best choral performance.

Artur Rubinstein took two awards for classical piano performances and Van Cliburn one.

And in case you're still wondering, it was best classical performance by opera cast or choral group that won the statuette for Roberta Peters, Montreal - born George London, and others, who performed in The Marriage of Figaro by Mozart. Jussi Bjoerling got his statuette for best classical performance by a vocal soloist, and the Boston Symphony was given the classical performance by an orchestra.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The annual famous football "Tale of Two Cities" is now a memory.

The jigsaw puzzle that was Toronto and Winnipeg for the past few days is about back in place under the bulbous leaves known as their tiles; the hotels, motels, hotels, Montreal, etc., are licking their wounds and counting the pennies and the jangle-jaloo and palmer outlets are re-furnishing stocks.

Thousands tried to prove which moves the quicker, caution or bafflerin and do not know yet.

From this corner's pleasant box-seat on the living room fifty-yard line, the family tiger-cat and I almost pressed through a door and fired point. Duff, that is, unless you like brilliant defensive football. It was all of that, but nothing else.

The Tigers led at the half by a score so meagre say kind of a play could wipe it out.

Then Winnipeg's fabulous bemused the Bombers in their own corral the most of the time, it looked as though it might end in a record low score. But the Cats could do with a strong wind them, was a field goal.

Their defensive unit was doing a fine job as was that of the Bombers, in the fateful fourth quarter it almost fell to pieces. Their offensive platoon on the other hand, bobbled and fumbled and when the chance on the Cats fait the shelter slipping when the re-Bobbie Garvey McDougall, who up to this point had played a fine game, bobbled a couple of bad punts.

Then came the now easy-talking fullback, Charlie Shepard graduated his educated toe. Four times he kicked single points, one a tremendous 74-yard quickie. He also bolstered cover from the two-yard line for one of the touchdowns tallies.

From our point of view and vantage the Bombers won it by taking full advantage of the Ti-Cat lapses. They proved opportunists of the first water. They varied their plays, they used four backs in the attack. They mixed running plays with passing attempts in convincing fashion. And their quick-kicking left nothing to be desired. The Cats were fully warned by the first one, but were caught flatfooted on the succeeding ones.

When Scott's tackling and plunging, some fine plays, and bobbles by McDougall and Goldston Shepard's punting averaging 46 yards, Fumbler Ted Gerela and Jack Gotta's sweet passing were among the features of a Grey Cup game that failed by a lot to rank with the best since the series was inaugurated.

As events proved the troubles of the Bombers' supporters were over after the big fellow took the lead. They loosed one barrel of effervescent joy when the score was 14-7, then let go the second thunderous volley when Ernie Pitts caught the last-second touchdown pass.

Wildly celebrating Winnipeg and Hamilton fans, aided and abetted by only too-willing residents of the host city, yanked the halcyon out of staid old Madam Toronto's wig, and let that austere old lady's hair down in one of the maniest, wildest Grey Cup celebrations since the Calgary Stampeders and Ottawa Rough Riders inaugurated the merry-making shambles way back in 1948.

Some reports said the pre-game celebration reached near-riot proportions that lasted all Friday night and wound up with a two-mile long parade that snaked through some sound-proof Toronto streets Saturday morning.

Almost as noisy in comparison but more orderly was the heroes' welcome given the Bombers in Winnipeg yesterday afternoon. Loyal Fraysers turned out to give the champions a thunderous reception.

Tinsley's Fumble Recovery Key Play in 21-7 Victory; Cats Had Third-Quarter Lead

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Porter Tinsley, 35-year-old daddy man of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, dropped his 226-pound frame over a fumbled ball Saturday and all instinct and purpose the Grey Cup hopes of Hamilton's Tiger-Cats were squashed then and there.

Probably no one realized the awesome truth — quarter still awaiting the Cats. In 10 minutes after Hamilton fullback Gerry McDougall's bobble the Bombers had struck for 18 points and a 21-7 victory.

For the capacity crowd of 33,123 in the Toronto National Exhibition Stadium the fourth quarter provided the big fireworks and delayed spectacle the chilled fans wanted.

On the slippery, soggy playing field the teams had fought 46 minutes in a bitter but colorless struggle for points that came hard-earned.

BOMBERS OPEN SCORING

One quick thrust by the Bombers in the opening minutes paved the way for a 21-yard field goal by Gerry James. A blocked kick — on a play that will long be talked about — gave the Ticats a single point in the second quarter.

The third quarter was half over before the Cats squeezed into a lead. On third down from the Winnipeg two-yard line Hamilton elected to go for a field goal instead of the inviting touchdown. Steve Oneschuk boodled the three-pointer from the 10-yard stripe. With only 31 seconds of the quarter left Oneschuk kicked another—this time from 27 yards —and Hamilton carried a 7-3 lead into the final quarter.

Up to that point the Tiger-Cats, doing a great job of containing the Winnipeg offence and keeping play largely in Bomber territory, appeared good enough to hang on and perhaps get a few more precious points.

But a team of Hamilton supporters soon turned into a Bomber cheering section. Ex-Bomber veteran tackle, made his Hamilton debut Saturday, quarterback Kenny Ploen hit his pass receivers with telling effect and Charlie Shepard kicked singles as fast as he had the opportunity.

GAINS REVENGE

Ploen's work was a measure of revenge. The 24-year-old Edmonton was the Bomber pilot when Winnipeg lost 32-7 to Hamilton in 1957, Jimmy Van Pelt, sidelined with injuries, was the man who carried the Bombers to a 33-28 win over the Cats last year.

Ploen made possible the first touchdown in the game when a fleety five minutes of the final quarter. His 40-yard pass to Fullback Funston put the ball on Hamilton's three-yard line and Shepard rammed over.

The game was in the bag for the Bombers—10 seconds left to play—when Ploen fired a 33-yard touchdown pass to Ernie Pitts in the end zone.

Apart from his touchdown, Winnipeg's kicking was outstanding and he was voted by sports writers the outstanding player of the game.

Failure of Tiger-Cats to score a touchdown marked the first time a losing team has been unable to cross the goal line in a Grey Cup game since 1950, when Toronto Argos won 13-0 over Winnipeg.

WEST IS POWER

In the 32 East-West meetings for the national title the East has won 23 times and the West nine. But later years tell the story of the West's revival. Saturday's game marked the fifth victory for the western champions in the last six years.

Sparkling defensive play held attackers of both teams to a net total of 216 yards rushing—129 by Winnipeg and 87 by Hamilton.

The Tiger-Cats, built around back Bernie Faloney throwing all but two of the 23 passes, produced only 10 completions and 85 yards. Bombers, with Ploen making 19 passes and halfback Leo Lewis one, connected four times for 104 yards.

Winnipeg had 12 first downs, all but one in the first and fourth quarters, and Hamilton managed 11.

TICATS BLOW CHANCE

The Tiats' hurry Vince Scott burst through the Winnipeg line, blocked Lewis' kick and delivered the ball into the end zone.

Scott dove for the ball. It got away from him and Winnipeg's Jack Delveaux fell on it among a swarm of players, giving Hamilton a single.

After the game referee Paul Dojack of Regina and Scott never had the ball, that it went to him. Scott said both he and the ball kept sliding and it got away from him.

There was still no touchdown in the game as the fourth quarter opened. In the final seconds of the third, Oneschuk kicked his second field goal and James carried the ball into the Winnipeg 35 to the 38.

The teams switched ends and the Bombers moved slowly along to the Hamilton 36 from where Shepard kicked to Hamilton's Ron Howell for a single. The Cats then led 7-4 and the ball automatically went into play at the Hamilton 37.

START OF DOWNFALL

Ralph Goldston, back in the game after a knee injury in the second quarter, carried for nine yards and McDougall for two. On the next play, a sweep to the right, McDougall fumbled and Tinsley fell on the ball on the Hamilton 47.

Ploen fired a pass to Funston on the Hamilton five and he took it over the three. Shepard then kicked for a touchdown, James converted and Winnipeg was in front 11-7.

That was the beginning of the end for the Cats, who had followed Winnipeg in Hamilton territory only once until the first play of the final quarter.

Less than two minutes after Shepard's kicking was outstanding and he was voted by sports writers the outstanding player of the game.

Grey Cup Statistics

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Looking for a Grey Cup hero? Or goat?

For the accolades meditate a bit on the defensive linemen, backers by brawny fellows who do most of the hard work but usually get little glory.

They were prominent Saturday —even the tackle-the-gentleman who led for Hamilton Tiger-Cats, beaten 21-7 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The defensive teams played so brilliantly they limited the attackers to a total of only 11 points for nearly 50 minutes of the game. On the ground the two teams managed only a net 216 yards—129 by Winnipeg and 87 by Hamilton.

Consider whom the Bombers got the ball with:

Gerry McDougall, explosive 225-pound fullback who led Big Four ground-gainers last season and second this year. The six-foot-two Hamilton was held to a the Winnipeg line—an average of 1.3 yards a carry.

COSTLY FUMBLED

And McDougall, if anyone, might have been considered for a goat's role. His fumble in the fourth quarter paved the way for Bombers' game - winning field goal and touchdown.

Then there was Ralph Goldston, 190 - pound halfback who made only 29 yards in nine carries for an average of 4.4.

Running against Tiats were tough backfield customers as fullback Charlie Shepard, 210-pounder, Leo Lewis, 190 - pound breakaway Exvision who once played for Lincoln College of Missouri, and 190 - pound Canadian Gerry James.

Shepard, the game's leading punter in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season with 70 punts in 74 carries for a 6.18 average, barged his way to only 34 in 16 runs.

Saturday, He averaged 2.4 yards.

MADE BUT 31

Lewis, No. 2 man on the Bomber blitz corps this year with 730 yards in 112 carries for a 6.52 average, was able to log the ball a mere 31 yards in nine attempts.

James, left - footed plateplunger and convert kicker, went for 34 yards in nine tries.

No records were set. The passing was spotty and the kicking, while great, fell short of marks in previous games.

The Bombers completed four of 11 pass attempts for 104 yards, Quarterback Kenny Ploen hit end Ernie Pitts with strikes of 23 and 33 yards, the latter for a touchdown with 10 seconds remaining in the game, and Fullback Funston for 40 yards to set up the winning touchdown early in the final quarter. Lewis pasted to James for eight yards.

FORTE FLOPS

The Tiats' vaunted passing attack was pitiful, picking up 85 yards on 10 completions in 22 attempts. Quarterback Bernie Faloney, rushed on many of his attempts, completed nine passes for a total of 36 yards.

The Bombers got 12 first downs, Tiats 11. Not much for the powerhouses of East and West.

Give a lot of credit to the defensive linemen.

Charlie Shepard

Blue Bombers' Great Kicker Named Outstanding Player

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Fullback Charlie Shepard of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 218 - pound, six-foot-two Texan, was voted the Grey Cup game's outstanding player after coming up with one of the greatest kicking performances in the history of the East-West clash.

The 26-year-old import from North Texas State College and Pittsburgh Steelers scored 10 points, crashing over for the winning touchdown from three yards out and kicking four singles in Bombers' 21-7 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

He did a tremendous punting job, with a 46.0 average, particularly rocking Ticats back on their heels. His booming spirals in all but the third quarter kept driving the eastern champions back into their own end of the field and his quick - kicks each time caught them by surprise.

Shepard, key of Bombers' offensive attack, picked up 85 on 22 carries, the latter for a 3.9 average.

Shepard, in Canadian football since 1957, played it from scrub to an average of 44 yards, four times Cam Fraser's average for Hamilton on 16 punts.

His first single came early in the first quarter, and put Hamilton's lead to 7-4 early in the fourth quarter. He then scored his first touchdown to put Winnipeg ahead 11-7 and added two more, the first a 79-yard quick kick. The second was another surprise touchdown to put Winnipeg ahead 18-7 and the last, a field goal that completed the scoring.

Shepard, a bouncing contractor in the off season, joined Bombers in mid-season in 1957 and this year led the Western Interprovincial Football Union in punting with an average of 43.2 yards. He was Winnipeg's top ground-gainer with 1,078 yards for a 6.18 average.

Navy Hands Army Stunning 43-12 Rout

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. college football's major bowl games have only one thing on the agenda today and that one is Navy's for the accepting.

Navy, after climaxing a so-so season with a stunning 43-12 rout of Army Saturday, is expected to say in a day or two whether it will play Penn State Dec. 19 in the new Liberty Bowl at 100,000-seat Philadelphia Stadium, the setting for their romp over Army.

If Navy (5-4-1) says no, it could be Alabama (7-2-1). If Alabama isn't interested, it could be Pitt (6-4) which handed Penn State (7-2-1) one of its two losses during regular season play.

All other big bowl spots were filled Saturday. The lineup:

Dec. 19: Bluebonnet at Houston—Texas Christian vs Clemson; Liberty—Penn State vs team to be selected (Navy invited).

Jan. 1: Rose at Pasadena—Washington vs Wisconsin; Cotton at Dallas—Syracuse vs Texas; Sugar at New Orleans—LSU vs Mississippi; Orange at Miami—Missouri vs Georgia.

Jan. 2: Gator at Jacksonville, Fla.—Arkansas vs Georgia Tech.

SOME GAINED SATURDAY

Mississippi, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Clemson nailed berths after the last big Saturday program of the regular season. Only a few games remained, however, the important one at Los Angeles next Saturday between top-ranking Syracuse, the only major unbeaten team in the U.S., and UCLA, now 8-1 after a 35-6 warm-up victory over Utah.

Mississippi won a Sugar Bowl rematch with Louisiana State, its only conqueror, after routing Mississippi State 42-0 as Jake Gibbs scored two touchdowns and passed for two more.

Georgia whipped Georgia Tech 21-14 and both wound up in bowls.

Clemson got its spot after smuling Furman 56-3. TCU closed out an 8-2 season and gained a triple tie with Arkansas and Texas by cuffing Southern Methodist 12-0.

Navy, led by Joe Tranchini and Joe Bellino, toyed with the Army defences. Bellino matched an Army-Navy record with three touchdowns and runs of one, 14, and 47 yards.

Canadiens Stretch Unbeaten Streak To 18 Games

Blank Wings, Defeat Bruins In Third Weekend Sweep; Leafs Take Over Second Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Possibly a team of Bronco Horvaths could stop Montreal Canadiens. Nothing else seems able to turn the trick.

Boston Bruins have only one Horvath and he accounted for both their goals as they fell on Sunday night before the powerful Canadiens, who haven't lost since Oct. 17.

Canadiens' win in Boston, following a 1-0 triumph at home over Detroit Saturday night, stretched their unbeaten streak to 18 games and fattened their lead atop the National Hockey League to 10 points. It was their third consecutive weekend sweep.

Toronto Maple Leafs hurtled into the runner-up slot Sunday night, dumping The Red Wings 4-1 in Detroit. Leafs got the decision at the Montreal juggernaut, scrutinizing it in Toronto Wednesday night.

HAWCHUK DUE BACK

There was some cheer in the Detroit camp today, however, with the word from doctors that goalie Terry Sawchuk is probably rejoin the lineup for the next game, at home encounter against Boston Bruins Saturday night. Leaping lads have forced Sawchuk to sit out Detroit's current three-game losing streak.

Chicago Black Hawks appeared finally to be getting somewhere when they walloped the visiting New York Rangers 6-2 Saturday night. Rangers bounced back to tie them 3-3 in New York Sunday night.

Horvath's 19th and 20th goals availed nothing against a fast, methodical club still rolling in high gear.

Claude Provost led the Montreal attack with two goals and Jean Beliveau provided the exclamation point with his 12th tally of the season and 1000th in NHL regular schedule play. It was the seventh straight game in which he scored. Dickie Moore fired the other Canadien goal.

HAUNES PERFORMER

Ex-Wing Johnny Wilson started Toronto off on the right foot with the only first period goal and Larry Regan, Gerry Ehman and Dick Duff served it up with second - period counters. Centre Howe, with his 13th goal, scored the only Red Wing goal.

Dean Prentice scored both goals for Rangers as they fought back from a 2-0 lead and kept the two teams tied in fifth place, 10 points behind Boston.

His second goal just past the half-way mark of the third period knotted the score after Camille Lissenberger and Eric Nesterenko gave Chicago their margin. It was Rangers eighth straight game without a win.

Saturday night in Montreal, Boisvert made a valiant effort to stem the Hawks' plaudits but the only when Beliveau finished off a quick play with Moore and Harvey in the last minute and a second goal.

HORTON SAVEN LEAFS

Toronto salvaged a 2-2 tie against Boston at home when defenceman Tim Horton rifled a shot past Harry Lumley with a little more than five minutes to play. Ron Stewart scored for the other Toronto goal.

Boston marksmen were converted forward Doug Mohns and Don McKenney.

Rookie Stan Mikita's two goals set the pace as the Black Hawks, Bobby Hull, Ron Murphy, Al Wharram and Lissenberger also scored for the Hawks.

Camille Henry and Prentice scored for Rangers, who have been the victims in three of Chicago's recent victories this season.

ELECTRICAL DISPUTE

LONDON (Reuters) — State power officials have worked on plans to maintain essential supplies of electricity during a threatened 24-hour walkout Monday by workers at nine electricity stations in London and southeast England. The walkout stoppage comes after a breakdown of wage negotiations between the unions and Edmund Dell, minister of fuel and power. Dell said Saturday the offer was the best the government could make. Unions rejected the offer. Dell said the unions had been told the offer was the government's last word. Unions said the offer was a disappointment and a setback to hopes of settlement. Industrial Hockey League Results

Williams Brothers and Booth TV's failed to settle their battle for the Industrial Hockey League crown in two periods of play. Chris' Drive-In gained ground Saturday by defeating Rita Printers 8-2.

Booths and Williams fought to a 3-3 deadlock, thus remaining tied for first spot with identical five points apiece. Chris' trailed by one point after last Saturday's win while the Printers bring up the rear with two points.

Williams Brothers built a 3-0 lead yesterday but Booths came back to earn the tie when Hans ran into a mess of penalties. Then Brownbeam got one back for Booth's on a play with St. Denis while his club held a two-man advantage.

Williams drew another penalty with about two minutes left, still leading, but for having too many men on the ice. They were the first penalties given a player change when the puck was dropped and despite bitter protest, a minor penalty was called on Art St. Denis fired the tying goal with about two minutes left in the game. Bert Faulkner and Doug Lucas scored the winning earlier goals for Williams brothers, Doug Lucas getting one assist.

Both clubs expressed dissatisfaction with the officiating following the games. Referees were Gord Gregory and "Hank" Ford.

Huck Chevrier sparked Chris' to victory with a pair of goals and one assist while Les Coyne added a goal and two helpers. Vern Hamilton scored for one and one with Phil Cornell and Bill Hamilton also scoring. John "Shaker" Thomas earned three assists and Dave Feeney one.

The Chris' line-up: Cornell Bill Hamilton, Chevrier and Coyne; Thomas, Feeney and Vern Hamilton; Ken Hamilton, Ken Hamilton, Ken Hamilton,

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

GEESE ON THE MOVE

For more than two months now geese have been on the move from Canada's northland to their winter quarters. Their routes are so regular and their timing so perfect that all along the way people can pretty much make dates ahead for meeting them.

Of course the best known and most numerous are the Canada geese which breed from Labrador to Alaska, south to Newfoundland and James Bay and into the U.S. These geese winter from Nova Scotia, southern Ontario, South Dakota, and south east Alaska south to northern Mexico. Unlike most birds, they travel either by day or by night, so that when we catch even the big flocks in their V formation we can sometimes hear them passing overhead in the darkness.

Banding has proved that Canada geese which have their summer homes in Newfoundland and the desolate coast of "Labrador migrate down the seaboard to marshes south of Delaware Bay. Those coming from the Islands and on the shores of Hudson Bay start of Hudson Bay, where ice and snow remain on the ground all the year, but where in July and August, the North coast of Baffin Island, and of Ellesmere Island, is the most northerly piece of land belonging to our continent and no ice bound that only 18 species of birds are found there.

Using restricted routes of travel and not mixing with any other species, these geese (which many people believe to be merely another colour phase of the same species), great V shaped flocks of snow geese come down the north west and the north east to converge about mid-October in one comparatively small area. As in spring so again now they gather in flock of thirty then a flock of hundred or more at Cap Tourmente, below Quebec City, to rest and feed. This usually by the end of November or early December, depending on the full time moving towards the Atlantic, where they spend the winter.

Many of the holidays in coastal marshes anywhere from southern New Jersey to the western end of the Gulf of Mexico.

Says Catholics Ignore Ban on Birth Control

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Episcopal (Anglican) Bishop James A. Pike said Friday it is time "some leading American Catholics bring out in the open" what he called the fact that the official Church ban against contraception is less and less observed by U.S. Catholics.

"Many American Roman Catholics, in responsible planning of parenthood, use medically approved methods of birth control," he asserted.

Bishop Pike, head of the California diocese of his Church, commented in answer to a policy statement by the U.S. Catholic hierarchy in Washington, D.C., Wednesday that it was "simply not true" that the Catholic Church is gradually accepting artificial birth prevention.

SCULPTOR WITH WORK — Government sculptor William Oosterhoff is seen with one of the three wooden models of Canadian coat of arms. The model shown here is 40 inches square while the others are 27 inches and six feet square. He is completing these models of the coats of arms to adorn public buildings across Canada. (CP Photo).

Sculptor Imparting New Life To Canadian Coat of Arms

By JACK REET
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — In a room on the ninth floor inside the main Parliament building a Dutch - born stone carver is imparting new life and new dimensions to Canadian coat of arms.

The rather arid, fluorescent-lighted room is cluttered with small sculptures and steeped in creative atmosphere. It is the combined office, studio and workshop of William Oosterhoff, government sculptor. It is reached by a steel cantilevered leading down from an out-of-the-way corner of the lower ground floor.

Mr. Oosterhoff, 54, came to Canada from The Netherlands 34 years ago. With his silvery hair and accented speech, his lively eyes and jolly dispatition, he seems to epitomize the legendary old-world artisan.

Surrounded by lifelike animals hewn from stone and by likenesses of such figures as Sir John A. Macdonald that he has fashioned from bronze, Mr. Oosterhoff for nearly two years now has been directing his talents to the production of three standard models of the coat of arms.

MASTER MODELS

These models will be identical except in size. One is about six feet square, another 40 inches square, the third 27 inches square.

When a coat of arms is required for some new public building, it will be made from one of the prototypes. In the past, although a single, somewhat tame prototype was the most readily available here, the national symbol of Canada was created independently in the city where it was required.

"The variations have been endless," said Mr. Oosterhoff.

He envisages a particular use for each of the three prototypes. The smallest can adorn the inside of a public building, such as a post office. The middle-size one can rest on a pedestal at the entrance of another structure, while the large one can sit 40 feet above the ground on the face of a building.

CLEAR PROJECTION

"It will be possible to read the big one from a distance of 60 to 70 feet," said the artist.

He gestured toward a great rectangular polyster hanging on the wall of his picturesque workden. An aluminum cast of the work already has been made and it soon will be turned out in quantity. The lettering at the bottom (from sea to sea)—projected on a gracefully-waving ribbon, stood out bold and clear.

The lion and unicorn fairly ripple with muscles, and are truly rampant, conveying brisk and striking action. The other symbols and decorations—the thistle, shamrock, rose and golden lilies—and the maple leaves at the bottom to the imperial crown, at the summit—are characterized by bold lines and strong projection. By comparison, the old prototype, which Mr. Oosterhoff keeps at hand, seems lifeless.

DOWN TO DETAILS

With the small model also ready for casting, his long labor of love has come down to the carving of final details of the middle-size version.

The jobs are carried out in three stages: preparing a paper design, carving a representation out of wood supplied by the public works department, and casting in metal. Mr. Oosterhoff handles the first two stages, in addition to touching up the aluminum prototypes when they come back from the foundry.

Mr. Oosterhoff, who has picked up a solid knowledge of heraldry and Canadian history in his job at government archives, has been the moving spirit behind scores of beautiful stone carvings that adorn the Parliament Buildings and the actual creator of many. But his normal work he has had helpers, but he has worked alone on the coat of arms project.

"With our public buildings becoming sleeker in design, the coat of arms which goes with them has to change accordingly," he said. "One of the new ones will surely enrich a building."

These new models will be metallic counterparts to the official printed representations of the coat of arms, which is in color and is kept in the government printing bureau at neighboring Hull, Que.

Metro Chairman of Montreal, Roland Chagnon, Has Hard Time Getting Idea on Road

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

METRO CHAIRMAN

Roland Chagnon, 49, is chairman of the Montreal Metropolitan Corporation, formed last April. President of a yeast-producing company, Mr. Chagnon says the corporation's main job at the present is planning for the future. (CP Photo) 1959 (Star).

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Metropolitan Corporation is finding out of the throes of organization and is trying to discover where it stands.

The corporation came into being last April 4, empowered to govern a number of services of metropolitan character if members municipalities request it. So far municipalities have constituted mainly of hiring personnel and furnishing committees. It needs to be given definite rulings on how much power it may exercise.

"We want to know what we can spend, how much and on what," says Roland Chagnon, metro chairman. "I want to find out what is available for the next five years and plan on that basis."

Assessing probable income is difficult because the corporation has no taxing powers of its own. It may be given a slice from the tax revenues of the 14 suburban municipalities on the island of Montreal, but only after each has looked after its own needs. There are more than 30 municipalities on the Montreal region.

Two main projects now occupy the corporation. It is attempting to get members to put their tax rolls on the same basis as those of Montreal. It is also making a study of main roads linking municipalities on Montreal Island.

"We've been given the power to study the roads, now we want the power to act," says Mr. Chagnon. The Quebec legislature will be asked to give this power at the coming session.

The corporation will also form a planning board to study community planning for the whole area, which covers 200 square miles. Later, it is hoped, it will be able to carry out its suggestions.

DOES TWO JOBS

At 49, Mr. Chagnon supervises two full-time jobs into his working day. He is also president of his own yeast - producing company.

"It's a big job," he says of the MMC. "It is just starting to go. When it does get rolling it will be a little tougher."

He arrives at his company office around 8:30 a.m., working there until noon. From noon to 2 p.m. he can be found in the corporation office atop a 19-floor provincial government building in east-end Montreal. Then he returns to his office for up to four more hours of work before heading home to the west end.

Mr. Chagnon was not connected with any political party when the late Jay Peter Dupuis announced his appointment last winter.

"I knew Municipal Affairs Minister Paul Dozois when he was a young man and we have remained friends," said Mr. Chagnon. "It wasn't in politics. I never attended a committee meeting."

Mr. Dozois just just called me and offered me the job. It was a challenge and I decided to take it.

So far, he said, he hasn't found the 25-hour-a-day-year post much of a challenge—"but it will be."

SKILLED ACCOUNTANT

Trained as a chartered accountant and with a master's degree in commerce, Mr. Chagnon was an accountant for eight years. In that time he made his first contact with practical municipal government during the reorganization of Montreal's finances in 1937. He spent the next 15 years in the retail fields in Quebec City and Montreal.

He has no intention of seeking elective political office, he said. "I want to keep on being a businessman."

He has "no idea" what eventual powers the fledgling corporation may be given. He hopes the MMC never will take over any public control of Montreal Island. "I don't see any use or necessity in it," he said. "If we're to tackle anything it must have a definite metropolitan character.

"There are many things that can be done on a smaller level than by a big corporation. The smaller municipalities have a definite understanding of their people and their needs."
